Beaver Island to be site of writing workshop

A writing workshop on Beaver Island will be reprised this summer by Western Michigan University.

"Writing for Publication: A Workshop on the Craft of Publishing Articles in Magazines or Professional Journals," will be offered from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday, July 12 through 15, at the Beaver Island Community School in St. James.

This coached, hands-on writing experience is aimed at educators and others who have little experience in writing for or getting published in magazines, particularly professional journals. Attendees will leave with a completed article and submission letter.

The workshop will focus on how to perfect a clear, forceful writing style and will address effective ways to start articles, eliminate jargon and fuzzy writing and make articles attractive to periodical editors.

It is being given on Beaver Island as a way of stimulating the creative senses. Attendees will spend their mornings in an intensive learning environment, then have their afternoons and evenings free to continue working or tour Beaver Island and enjoy its recreational amenities. They are encouraged to use part of their free time to vacation on the island with family and friends.

Leading the workshop this year will he Dr. Lawrence B. Schlack, WMU associate professor emeritus of educational leadership and a former superintendent of the Barry Intermediate School District in Hastings. Schlack has taught writing for the past 20 years and has helped a variety of people produce articles suitable for publication in periodicals.

Preregistration by July 2 is required to attend the workshop, which costs $275 per person. An additional fee is charged for those taking the workshop for academic credit from WMU. Space is limited, so early registration is advised.

To register, follow the instructions in the event brochure, which is available by visiting the Web site at conference.wmich.edu or by calling WMU's Conferences and Seminars office at (269) 387-4174.

Those planning to attend the workshop also are advised to make their travel and lodging arrangements early, as Beaver Island plays host to numerous summer visitors. More information is available online at <www.beaverisland.net> or hy calling (231) 448-2505.

Construction to begin on US-31 north, south Monday

Road work will get underway next week.

Rise Rasch, the manger of the Michigan Department of Transportation's Traverse City office, said maintenance crews will be working on the north and south sides of town all of next week.

They will be doing crack sealing along US-31 from Norwood to the M-66 intersection and north of the hridge near the city limits.

"This will be a fast moving operation. We want to get the work in before the heavy tourist season starts," Rasch said.

Flaggers will be directing traffic in areas of lane closures.

Rasch said the closures will be for short distances. Work will start early in the morning and will continue into the early evening.

Historical society awards Charlevoix scholarships

This year four Kohler/Bartlett scholarships were awarded to graduating seniors from Charlevoix High School.

The awards, each worth $500, were presented to the students at Honors Convocation on May 19.

Rebecca Kanine, out of curiosity, chose to explore why "Rayders" is spelled with a "Y." She knew that the mascot of Charlevoix High School was supposedly named after a famous coach and teacher, Ray Kipke, but then she heard that the "Y" was in Rayders before Ray Kipke's time. She attempted to uncover the mystery, but could not find anything as proof. She did however; discover why Charlevoix chose coach Kipke to embody the Rayders. She found his story inspiring and thought it was important for Charlevoix, especially the students, to remember this influential man.

Kanine will be attending the University of Michigan this fall and tentatively plans on pursuing the field of psychology.

York Smith wrote about Smith Farm and Lake Charlevoix or Schmidt Farm. Because of all the stories told him by his father and grandfather that had a special meaning to him, an interest was sparked to learn more about his family's historical ties to the Charlevoix community.

Smith plans on attending the University of Nevada-Reno's College of Engineering to pursue an education in the field of chemical engineering.

AnnaKate Trubilowicz, submitted an essay about "Big Rock Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow." Big Rock has been a part of her life since she was born because her father has been employed at Big Rock for that long. She of course had access to a wealth of historical information as well as a lot of old photographs.

Trubilowicz will be attending the University of Michigan to pursue a degree in political science, after which she would love to become part of the political scene in Washington, DC.

John L. Wilkerson's essay was written on The Charlevoix Life Saving Station, Coast Guard Station 258. Wilkerson , his family and friends used to fish the site where the station was built. There was not a lot of information available about the station and because of his interest in it he began researching the history of the station.

Wilkerson plans on pursuing a degree in mechanical engineering at Kettering University in the fall.

The Alanson Area, Boyne District, Crooked Tree District, Jordan Valley District libraries and the Charlevoix and Petoskey Public Libraries, in cooperation with Northern Michigan and Charlevoix Area Hospitals are pleased to announce the 2004 "Born to Read Babies."

"These were the first babies born after 12 a.m., Sunday, April 18 — the first 'official' day of National Library Week," said Valerie Meyerson, Library Director at the Charlevoix Public Library.

The family of each baby has received a bag of reading related items, including some Born to Read clothing, books for the parents and baby, a "Reading...It Becomes You" book bag, "READ" coffee cups and a Michigan "READY Kit," among other things.

This is the eighth year that these libraries have cooperated in declaring a "Born To Read Baby" during National Library Week.

"We do this to publicize the fact that the foundations for lifetime learning and literacy are laid down in the human brain from birth," Meyerson said.

The Born to Read Baby from Charlevoix Area Hospital is RevaSue Norton of the Boyne District Library. Her parents are Catrina and Shawn Norton. She also has two brothers, Kaleb and Nickolas, and a sister, Angela.

The Born to Read Baby from Northern Michigan Hospital is Olivia Peterson of the Petoskey Public Library. Her parents are Heidi Peterson and Geoff Linklater and her sister's name is Chloe.

Meyerson said the participating libraries are gearing up for their summer programs right now and readers may wish to contact or visit the web site of their respective library for more information.

Rayders make strong run, but lose in final game

The Rayders girls soccer team kicked off district play with a convincing win over Boyne City but couldn't hold out to claim the title.

Charlevoix opened up district play beating the Boyne City Ramblers 3-0 June 1.

The Rayders controlled play throughout managing 23 shots on net. Boyne City forced Charlevoix's keeper, Laura Nitchman into just six saves, with Nitchman earning her tenth shutout of the year.

Charlevoix scored early when Madison Ramsey sent home a cross from senior Shayna Drost. The Rayders followed shortly thereafter, when junior Jaime Pettis scored on a breakaway opportunity made possible by Ramsey's assists. The 2-0 lead stood through most of the match until senior Alyssia McDonough sent home a 24-yard shot, assisted by Pettis late in the game.

Charlevoix controlled the midfield, led by sophomore Stevie Murray, juniors Sarah Cross and Madison McKenzie and freshman Zita Anderson, who played her strongest game of the season. Murray stopped several Boyne scoring opportunities, tracking down and tackling the Rambler' strikers whenever they broke free.

Then, Charlevoix moved on to the district semi-final against Burt Lake NCMA June 3, where they continued their shutout streak winning 10-0.

Charlevoix scored early and often against the undermanned Eagles who were missing some key players. The Rayder defensive line of Cross, Murray, McKenzie and Lisa Kuebler dominated the midfield and sent consistent passes up to their waiting teammates.

Nitchman earned her eleventh shutout of the season, adding to her school record total in tuning away five chances hy NCMA.

Charlevoix goals were scored by Drost who had four, McDonough and Meghan Lame who each drove home one and Pettis and Ramsey who both had two. Assists went to Anderson, McKenzie, Ramsey, Pettis and Theresa Potter.

"Our whole team is playing well together now, just at the right time," she said.

But the team couldn't beat the dominating Harbor Springs squad and fell 6-0 in that final match.

The Rams took advantage of their scoring opportunities to dismantle a determined Charlevoix team.

Kalie Grambeau took the Rams by the horns and led them to a district championship.

Charlevoix managed nine shots, missing a couple of open net chances, while Nitchman made 13 saves.

Nitchman had little to no chance of saving the Harbor goals as they were sent from short distances following the Harbor strikers breaking down the Rayders' defense.

Cross had her best game of the season, matching up well with the Harbor midfielders. McDonough, Ramsey and Anderson played strong throughout the match.

Strong efforts by Rayder strikers Drost and Pettis were consistently turned back by the Harbor sweeper.

The Rams had a tight rope on Drost, Charlevoix's all-time scoring leader, playing her final game. She graduates with the career school scoring record with 57 goals and 26 assists.

This game marked the end to Charlevoix's best ever season at 13-7-1 overall.

The team set the school season record for goals scored, best percentage of goals scored versus given up, wins in a season and shutouts.

Trout Tournament

June 11, 12 & 13, 2004

Get ready to fish!

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Anglers will flock to town this weekend to cast for bragging rights in Charlevoix's first tournament of the popular fishing season, the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

The Twentieth Annual Trout Tournament will kick off with registration June 10 in East Park. Fisherfolks from land and sea are invited to compete. Everyone on a boat associated with the tournament and those who plan to fish from land must be registered by 8 p.m. that day. Registration fees are $25 for adults, $10 for kids ages 6 -14 and free for children five years old and younger.

After participants get registration squared away, the busy weekend on the water and in town will begin.

When coordinator of the event Dave Juilleret was asked what he is looking forward to as tournament weekend draws near, he said, "Fun, fun, fun."

The fun will officially start when tournament fishing opens at 5 a.m., June 11. Frenzied fisherman will have until noon Sunday, June 13, to reel in their prize winning catch. At that time all fish must be at the weigh-in corral in East Park where official time will be kept.

The corral will be open from noon to 8 p.m., June 11 and 12 and from 9 a.m. to noon, June 13.

Waters that are free game for fishing include all of Lake Charlevoix, Round Lake and the Pine River Channel. Lake Michigan from Norwood to Seven Mile Point, north of Harbor Springs, is also part of the tournament's approved area.

Weekend activities include Kiwanis Club concessions in the park, a children's fish pond on Saturday when the little ones can catch the big ones, sponsor displays and an official awards ceremony.

Anglers who drag in the largest brown and lake trout and steelhead will be announced at 1 p.m., June 13 and must be present to win cash and prizes.

There is a 20 inch minimum size rule in the brown trout and steelhead divisions and a 24 inch minimum in the lake trout division.

Juilleret said he has even seen 4 pound fish win prizes.

The first place trophy will have a $1,100 check attached with second place taking home $600 and third place winning $300. Fourth through twenty-fifth places will also be awarded money.

Last year's winner in the lake trout division, Cathy Packo, dragged in a 11.08 pound fish. But Juilleret said that in his 20 years with the tournament he has seen 16 pound fish come in.

He said he is expecting a good turnout with huge fish like that swimming around. Last year over 700 people participated about one third of which came from out of town. These fish fanatics were joined by hundreds of spectators who flocked to the park to check the leader board and join in the fun.

Proceeds from the weekend event go toward the many endeavors of the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Board of Directors including county-wide scholarships for students going into environmental studies, fish planting projects and aquarium school projects.

Charlevoix Directory gives a peek into history

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

As the years go by, I realize more and more that living in the late 1930s and early 1940s was so much simpler, and we enjoyed the beauties of our area, just as we do today.

Things have become more complicated, and we are more restricted by countless laws, but living here is still a cherished privilege.

I am fortunate to own a 1940 Charlevoix Directory. The Charlevoix Courier, Usher and Usher publishers, presented this wonderful book to the general public.

This publication also included summer residents on the north and south shores of Lake Charlevoix, including Ironton and Sequanota, and all rural residents. A company canvassed the entire town and rural areas.

All the residents are listed, with their name, their wife's name, their address and occupation. They also listed the names of all their children.

The publishers were very proud of the fact that they had each firm and corporation in the city, and the designation of tenant-owned homes and the listing of telephone numbers opposite house numbers.

The books sold for $5, which was quite a bit of money then. The merchants who put an ad in, received a free book.

It has been so enjoyable to go back and reminisce with all that information. Every once in a while I get it out and am thankful it was done at that time. There are a few around today but most are gone. I only wish someone would put one out today, but with the transient public we have now, it probably wouldn't work.

The book listed Charlevoix's attributes with a map of the city, pictures of the new city hall and the modern sewage disposal plant and an airplane view of Charlevoix looking west. In the comments in the book, they were especially proud of their classified business directory which under appropriate headings listed in alphabetical order the names of all businesses and professional concerns of the whole community.

One interesting observation on the map of the city, is that the land one block over from Petoskey Avenue to the north and bordered by an unnamed street to the east was called Lake Breeze Park. Some of the other additions listed were Mason's Addition, Dixon Addition, S.M. Moore's Addition, Lindsay Farm Addition and Chicago Resort. The Belvedere was called Resort Park.

Charlevoix was called Green River; then Pine River. In 1865-66 it was platted as a village, incorporated and named in 1879 in honor of Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix, an early French missionary and explorer. "The Beautiful" was combined with the name in 1882.

The first house was built in 1856, the first post office in 1867. The Belvedere resort was started in 1878 and the Chicago Club in 1880. The railroad arrived in 1892. The Inn Hotel was built in 1896. Charlevoix Golf Course was built in 1895. Charlevoix's newest resort section was Boulder Park, with Lake Michigan frontages on Lake Shore Drive. Boulder Park on Lake Michigan was restricted to summer homes built with stone.

Many of the summer residents came here because of the delightful climate and the westerly prevailing winds which swept over 80 miles of lake, bringing the refreshing water-splashed air. Hay fever sufferers experienced instant relief after arriving and many of them stayed until autumn. The Pere Marquette Railway provided overnight service from Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Toledo, Indianapolis, Louisville and other cities of the middle west.

To assist visitors in selecting activities, the Charlevoix Board of Commerce maintained an information bureau. There were ample hotel accommodations, including The Inn with 250 rooms, the Belvedere Hotel with 75 rooms, Lakeview Inn with 75 rooms, the Alhambra, Bartlett and Tower hotels. There was also the Charlevoix Hotel, which provided year-round service.

The Board of Commerce also touted the abundant Lake Charlevoix fishing for Mackinaw trout, steelhead trout and small mouth bass. There were also spring and fall "perch runs" and fall fishing for smelt, which at the time were plentiful off the docks in Round Lake. Of course dozens of small inland lakes were close by with an abundance of bass, pike and pan fish. No wonder the resorters flocked here.

Then, we boasted two 18-hole golf courses, The Belvedere Golf Club and the Charlevoix Golf Club of course. Also, there was our municipal bath house on Lake Michigan with playground equipment for children.

Both Lake Michigan and Lake Charlevoix offered beautiful sand beaches. Truly a wonderful place to live all year, or vacation for the summer.

There were two bathing beaches on Lake Charlevoix, complete with lifeguards. They also had a picturesque auto camp on the terrace on Lake Michigan where the hospital is located today. One of the things I remember most was the large horse swing in one of the tall trees. It was so popular with the kids, that it took some waiting to take a ride.

There were also camps. Camp Charlevoix, a boy's camp, was directed by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Reimann, and Kamp Kairphree, a girl's camp on the north shore of Lake Charlevoix, nine miles east of town. The directors were Mr. and Mrs. George Swain of Ann Arbor.

Tennis was also very popular in town and the Charlevoix Tennis Club sponsored tournaments which were held. Of course, the yachting, boating and sailing, were unsurpassed, with our land-locked harbor and docks. By the way, the docks were free then.

Just going over these enticing facts about our little town, I can see why people came here summer after summer to enjoy this little bit of heaven on earth that we enjoy year-round.

himself to do damage control helping carry out bodies and assisting the families living there. While he was working, a woman approached him and thanked him for his help. She asked him to attend her coronation that evening. That woman was queen Elizabeth and he attended that historic event.

In the early 1960s he was in a Jeep in Guam loaded with supplies for Vietnam that was involved in an accident. The accident left him paralyzed and wheelchair bound for life. He retired from the Air Force in 1966 with 20 years of service.

In spite of the accident, McGinnis said he wouldn't have changed any of his decisions.

"The experiences I had are something you can't even explain," he said.

Grundman described him as a very positive person who never complained about being in a wheelchair.

"In fact he said it was the best thing that ever happened to him," Grundman said.

Since his retirement, McGinnis has spent time driving his fellow veterans to the hospital, volunteering at four different veterans hospitals and being active in veterans affairs. He received a 100,000 mile award from the veteran's administration for the miles he drove to help his fellow vets.

In 1999 his work earned him the prestigious title of AmVet of the Year and the Silver Helmet Award.

His graduation with the over 100 students at the high school was not only meaningful for him but carried a special message for students.

"It showed them how important getting a diploma can be and it showed them what unselfish service is all about," Grundman said.

MDEQ: Marina plan flawed

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix's initial proposal for renovations to the municipal marina have come under fire by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ).

The marina planning process was finalized in late September of 2002. The proposal replaces the sea wall and removes the current 17 docks that at the furthest point extend 75 feet into Round Lake and puts in their place a 67-slip state-of-the-art floating dock system that extends 220 feet into the lake at its furthest point.

In December of 2003, with this $4.8 million plan in place, 75 percent of the project funding from the Michigan Waterways Commission was secured and it was announced that Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority could pick up the rest.

But having money secured to pay for it doesn't mean the final product the community agreed on almost two years ago will come to fruition. The project needs permits from several agencies including the MDEQ, the United States Army Corps of Engineers and the Michigan Department of Public Health.

The first step, a permit to construct the facility, is sitting in the Voters approve library plans

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix will be getting a new library following its approval at the polls Monday.

Registered voters in the Charlevoix School District which includes, the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix, Eveline, Hayes, Marion and Norwood townships voted for a new library to be located at the old Charlevoix middle school 942 in favor to 776 against.

"We couldn't be happier," Charlevoix Library Director Valerie Meyerson said. "We are all very excited about this next phase and incorporating the community into the design part of the project."

This millage would be levied for a time period not to exceed 20 years and will cost a homeowner whose taxable value is $100,000, $75 a year. It is a .75 mill bond that would cover $7.45 million of the $8.5 million transformation of the former Charlevoix Middle School off Grant Street into a new library.

The renovation and expansion project at the 80-year-old school will result in a 24,000 square foot brick facility, with all the library's main functions on the first floor.

This primary floor will include small additions, totaling just under

Chamber to present a 'Taste of Charlevoix'

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

The "Taste of Charlevoix" is a family event that combines food from local restaurants along with entertainment to provide a new fun pre-season activity for Charlevoix residents and visitors.

The event will be from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 19 in East Park. Tickets will be $1 each or six for $5 and there is no need to pre-register or buy tickets in advance.

Maura Snabes, chairman of the board, said, "The overall scheme is to support the community and bring in a new event. It's not only to benefit the restaurants, but the rest of the community in general."

Proceeds from the event will go to benefit the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce relocation and operating budgets. The chamber would like to relocate to the old Charlevoix post office building on Mason Street. Their current location will be torn down in the near future for planned rennovations to East Park and the Charlevoix Municipal Marina.

Snabes added that she hopes the event will become a tradition "as renowned as Apple Festival." This is the first year for this event.

Participating area businesses are hopeful that the event will generate more business in the downtown area.

Chuck Whitney, owner of Whitney's Oyster Bar, said the event is "an opportunity to show off premier products," and he hopes that people will find more opportunities to go out and have dinner after sampling some of the town's finest foods. Whitney also said that the event is "a nice opportunity for people to support downtown businesses and restaurants."

Jacqueline Merta, president of the chamber, said, "Setting the event in the shoulder season (sic) will hopefully increase activity and business."

Blaming it on the media, sports everywhere

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Here it is, the start of another summer in Charlevoix.

In addition to the usual busy office, the Courier is in hyper tizzy lately. We are out of a reporter — Julie Witthoeft has left us for a job at LexaLite International — thus leaving me to be the only one writing, editing and taking pictures for the Courier. On top of that, I am expecting a daughter any day now.

Instead of running down the street screaming, I want to get some of my stress out through words. So here are some of the issues boggling my brain.

Green Dye

Recently I was having a chat with a resident who was telling me about a conversation he had with another resident on the whole green dye in the Pine River Channel issue. If you remember, on St. Patrick's Day this year someone dumped a bunch of green dye into the channel during the Pub Crawl. This was done even though the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce was told several times by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality not to do it.

Thus, the MDEQ was a bit miffed. Therefore, the MDEQ may slap the chamber with a hefty fine.

But it seems that some people just don't get it. According to this friend of mine, some of these people are blaming me for all of their troubles. They are saying if I did not report about it in the Courier, then the MDEQ would have dropped the matter.

These people are probably the same people who, when horsing around in their family living rooms when they were children and they broke their mother's favorite lamp, would blame the dog — even if they didn't have a dog.

Therefore, let me explain the situation one more time to these folks. The MDEQ is very upset because after telling the chamber several times not to do something, someone went and did it anyway. Plus, when the MDEQ went to investigate the matter, they ran into a bunch of tight-lipped people who seem to think the rule of the playground — never snitch — still applies.

Therefore, the MDEQ, in order to prove that it is not an elementary school hall monitor with no power, must use Charlevoix as an example. Hence the civil fine that may be levied against the chamber.

Let's rehash this. The MDEQ said no. Someone did it anyway. The MDEQ is forced to punish.

The media has nothing to do with this. Only the egos of a select few people, whose fingers are dyed green, are to blame.

If you still don't understand this, please give the MDEQ a call and complain to them about how you believe I am the one to blame.

I am sure they will be understanding.

Fun with weights

Here is an update on your beloved editor's insane hobby called the Highland Games. If you remember, last year I started taking part in this Scottish strength sport. In it, I dress in a kilt and throw various sized weights for distance and height, as well as throwing what looks like a large telephone pole called a caber, while competing against very large men also dressed in kilts.

Courtesy photo

At the end of May, a new season of Scottish sports started for me with the Alma Highland Games.

While there I broke four personal records in the hammer toss, 28 pound weight for distance throw, 56 pound weight for distance throw and the stone put (which looks like a shot put with a boulder). I was not able to keep my winning streak that I started last summer with the caber going — I placed second in the caber at the Kalamazoo Highland Games in August 2004 — and could not get the Alma caber turned this year.

I ended the games sore, but it was good to get back out on the field once again to relieve a little stress and have some fun with other large men in kilts. At least I know I won't have to endure any kilt jokes while around those guys.

Sports mania

While I appreciate that Charlevoix loves sports, sometimes we go just a little too far. Take for example the Charlevoix Venetian Festival's new theme of "Charlevoix Sports Legends."

While it is odd, to me, to have a theme for a festival whose theme should already be something to do with Venetian, sports legends just kind of bugs me.

Again, I appreciate our love of sports and the fine abilities that locals have been showing on the field of competition in Charlevoix and I appreciate the hard work put forth by Venetian Festival volunteers.

I just wish we had this same kind of love for the rest of education. How about Charlevoix science legends as a theme? Or Charlevoix math greats? You know, someone whose genius helps put us into space or invents cures for diseases.

All this hoopla about sports is fine, but we should spread around the honors a little to the non-sporting public.

Before sending me nasty letters on this, remember to take this with a grain of salt. I am the type of person who believes in making all after-school sports pay-to-play in order to save money for educational opportunities in our school district — you know, the reason we have schools.

Historical help

Editor:

Please help preserve our Charlevoix County History!

I am writing as many people that I can think of that might be interested in preserving the history of Charlevoix County. Many histories have already been written but I am concerned that we are losing records that may never be recoverable. They are sitting in individual's homes, in township halls, in boxes in libraries, and in the basements of city and county halls. I have already heard of cemetery records that cannot be replaced being destroyed years ago in Eveline Township. Where else have we lost records, photos, interviews, stories, books, newspapers and other histories?

My name is Carol McWain Goodenough and I have been a permanent resident of Charlevoix County for three years now. Prior to that time I spent every summer here at our summer home, now our permanent residence, in Chula Vista, off Ferry Road in Eveline Township. My McWain family has been in the Boyne City Area since the late 1880s. I am a member of the Charlevoix County Genealogical Society and I am a professional genealogist. I have been enjoying teaching some classes at the Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan libraries. It was while teaching those classes that I have found out that there are no complete histories of the county, by townships.

Other counties have completed comprehensive books including geography, township histories, city, town and village histories, biographies of pioneers, histories of community buildings, businesses, churches, schools, libraries and clubs and groups. Is this the time that Charlevoix County begins such a project?

To discuss the possibility I have set up a Feasibility Meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 28 at the Boyne District Library, 201 E. Main, Boyne City.

Anyone with an interest in Charlevoix County History is invited. Please get the word out to anyone that you can think of. This meeting is to decide if we should proceed with such a project and to brainstorm what type of project it should be and how to carry it out. In this day of many types of communication we can consider 1 book, several books, CDs, videos/DVD or some combination.

If the project proceeds we will need the help of many, many people — and they do not all have to be historians, genealogists and writers. We will need note takers, interviewers, proofreaders, photographers, scrap bookers, fund-raisers, grant writers and lots more.

Will you help us decide if this is a worthy project? Will you ask others to join you? Will you pass this information on to others? I sincerely hope that you will read this letter seriously and make a commitment to "pass the word on" and encourage everyone to "attend the feasibility meeting."

Would you like more information? Please contact me at 582-7042 or e-mail me at cgooden123@aol.com. If you can't attend the meeting but are willing to work on such a comprehensive project let me know. And, if you know of someone that you think might be interested in the project get me their name, address and phone number. I appreciate your willingness to do this. You are out in the community and you know the people that are interested in local and family history.

At this time there is not an organization sponsoring this project. It is just me, a concerned genealogist, trying to interest others to join me in a very important project.

The black hole

Editor:

Our president sure has a short memory. In 2000 he promised to fix our national park system which needed $5 billion to make repairs to the deteriorating parks. Four years later still no money and the cost has risen to $6 billion.

This past week our president showed concern for our Great Lakes with the promise to appoint a new interagency task force. Again, there was no money put forth to correct the problems of the Great Lakes.

Fortunately, Representative Bart Stupak co-sponsored the Great Lakes Restoration Financing Act which would provide $4 to $6 billion over eight years for existing programs.

While our president is spending $200 to $400 billion in Iraq and is the only president to create his own "black hole," it is obvious money is no problem for "black holes." The National Parks and the Great Lakes are nearer and dearer to our hearts and will show greater dividends.

Road follow up

Editor:

This is a follow up letter on the road situation in Norwood Township. After seven months of asking for a road report, I still don't have it and Mr. Boss said at the last township board meeting that he doesn't plan to do one.

Money spent on road projects in Norwood Township comes from tax dollars collected from Norwood Township citizens. So is it asking too much from the supervisor (who incidentally is also the road commissioner and road engineer) to make public his plans for the use of the public's money? I have recently gotten a copy of the road proposal that was written by Mr. Boss before the last road millage was passed in July of 2001.

It is interesting to note that the most expensive road undertaking we are currently paying for, Ferry Road, was not even on the millage proposal, yet our tax dollars are being used for that road. What will be on the proposal this August and can we believe what Mr. Boss' proposes?

We citizens of Norwood have a right to complete disclosure of where our tax dollars are being spent. I think it is about time that Mr. Boss begins to respond to the public's desire for information on road plans and expenditures of money to be used on roads.

Kids time at the movies

Editor:

For the benefit of our community, I think we should have a kid's time at the movie theater.

Recently, this past month, a group of about eight sixth-graders went to the movies on a Saturday night. When we first walked into the theater, a man in about his early 50s shouted to us that kids our age are really loud and rude. I can see where he was coming from. Some kids our age are obnoxious, but instead of him judging us on our behavior level, he judged us on our age. That wasn't fair to us, and it hurt our feelings.

I would also like to include that there is a senior time at most theaters. If the elders can get a special privilege like that, I think that kids 20 years and younger should get a privilege like this too.

You may think that if you have just kids in the theater that they will be destructive, but usually the only reason kids rebel is because nobody trusts them. If you do trust us enough as to letting us get this privilege, then kids are less likely to be destructive.

Also, the adults that are there are very rude to us. A girl got up to go to the bathroom and fell. Out of courtesy I asked how she was in a whispered voice and a lady behind us stood up and yelled, "Sit down and shut up!" My point is that no one else in the theater was obviously bothered by it and yelling like that was atrocious and completely unnecessary. We all thought what the lady and man said was rude, but we didn't make a scene about it and they shouldn't have either.

In conclusion, I would first like to thank you for your time, and second, I hope you support my idea and have a kids time at the movie theater.

Traverse City to buy decent clothes. We have to make a one-hour drive to Traverse City and it wastes car gas. If you need to get clothes in a hurry, it wouldn't be such a hassle if we had a mall in Charlevoix.

We don't have a lot of clothes places in Charlevoix. We need more clothes places in Charlevoix to shop at. In Traverse you have JC Penny, Target and American Eagle. You can't find a lot of kids clothes in our city.

If you think about it, we only have Kmart that carries certain varieties of clothes for kids. They don't always have the right sizes. Sometimes they're out of stock on certain brands and colors.

In conclusion, I think Charlevoix would be a great place for a mini-mall. More people would shop here. There would be more choices for buying clothes.

No smoking

Editor:

Do people really understand how harmful smoking really is? What about secondhand smoking? If people knew that other people were breathing smoke in and were getting hurt, what would they think? I think that smoking in restaurants should be illegal.

One very important reason why I think smoking should be illegal in restaurants is because not many customers can enjoy their food if there is smoke in the room. For example, on Sunday mornings I like to go to one of my favorite restaurants, Flap Jack. I love Flap Jack's food, but because of secondhand smoking I sometimes may lose my appetite. Even though I sit in the nonsmoking area I still smell and breathe in the smoke.

Another reason why I think smoking in restaurants should be illegal in restaurants is because of secondhand smoking. Secondhand smoking is very unhealthy for your body. Also, smoking can really affect your breathing to the point of not breathing at all.

People shouldn't have to worry where to eat because of smoking. This is another important reason why smoking in restaurants should be illegal. Parents shouldn't have to be concerned where they or their children sit in restaurants because of smoke from smokers. I know that my parents try to get us a seat away from the smoking area. Being seated in a non-smoking area is better than being in a smoking area but the smoke still can get to people in the non-smoking area.

In conclusion, I think smoking in restaurants should be illegal. Everybody that goes into a public restaurant is entitled to breathe in smoke free air. I believe that smoking is a very harmful way to live your life and wish that smoking should be prohibited from restaurants just like New York and California do.

Make school later

Editor:

I am a sleep deprived sixth grader writing to you to talk about the daily school starting time. Upon completion of this letter I hope to convince you, with my fact-based opinion, that school needs to start later in the morning through the middle school and high school years. As a result of a later starting time, adolescent health and behavior would certainly improve.

I know parents and adults think it is our own fault that we are sleepy, because we stay up too late. However, investigators in Brazil, Japan and the United States of America think that our sleep-timing mechanism is reset along with the other changes our bodies are going through in the teen years. Our bodies are telling us to go to bed later and also to sleep later in the morning.

The average 13-year-old should be getting 10 hours of sleep in a 24 hour period. Numerous students get on the bus as early as 6 a.m., which means they have to wake up at about 5 a.m. In order to get enough sleep at night they would have to be in bed and sleeping by 7 p.m.!

Sleep deprivation affects us by impairing memory and blocking creativity. When you're in your class, you can't pay attention as well. It's very hard to focus on each subject when you're thinking about sleeping.

Sleep deprivation adds on to what we are going through in the teen years. So as you can see in the above information teens need more sleep.

In conclusion I hope this letter has really inspired you to consider a later school starting. Thank you for your time.

School too early

Editor:

I think students of Charlevoix Middle School need to start school no earlier than 8:41 a.m. Right now the school board is making students get up at 6:30 a.m. to go to school.

The reasons for my concern are that students can't concentrate in class in the early morning. Furthermore maybe they would get a bad grade on a paper because they're just too tired to concentrate. There could also be a big test that day and they're too exhausted to concentrate.

Another reason which happens to me a lot and probably other people too, is that I get in trouble because of my grumpiness. Then you probably are going to get grounded by your mom or maybe get sent to your room because you're moody. Worst of all you get in trouble at school because you are impatient, and that wouldn't be cool.

Tardiness is bad too because school starts too early. You might be tardy three days in a row because of when you're tired you might wake up later. Also you might be really tired lying on the couch not ready, and the teacher will give you a tardy.

It will make a difference if you change it. So make the right choice.

More sponsored sports

Editor:

I'm a sixth grader at Charlevoix Middle School and I think the fifth and sixth grade students should have school sponsored sports. I came up with a couple of reasons why I think we should have sponsored sports.

First of all, the only sports our parents have to pay for us to be able to play them. Some children can't even play those sports because their parents can't afford to pay the high prices. Besides, we can't get rides to some of the games because of the price for gas.

Secondly, we could be more fit and not overweight because of the exercise from the sponsored sports. If we can't play the other sports, we might not get enough exercise. Sports might make us want to be more fit so we can play better. We would also learn a fun way to stay in shape.

Last of all, with sports that we can play, we would have better grades. We would have more confidence in ourselves to do better and to keep our grades up. We would keep our grades up so we won't get kicked off the team. for low grades.

I really think my idea is great. Don't you agree with me about how the fifth and sixth graders need school sponsored sports?

Car kills area man after falling on him

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is investigating the death of a 32-year old Wilson Township man around 6 p.m. Monday, June 14 at his residence.

Thomas E. Sheldon was working on the exhaust system of a friend's car.

Sheldon had used a vehicle jack to raise the vehicle; the jack slipped on the sandy soil pinning him underneath. Friends inside his residence heard him call for help but were unable to raise the vehicle.

A Boyne City Police Department patrolman and a sheriff's deputy extracted Sheldon when they arrived 8 minutes later, however efforts to revive him failed. He was pronounced dead at the scene by the Charlevoix County Medical Examiner's Office.

The Sheriff Office was assisted at the scene by the Boyne City Police Department, Boyne City Fire Department, Boyne City EMS and the East Jordan EMS.

Beacons of Blessing

When I drive into town to my office I pass right by the golf course (out by one of the "Charlevoix the Beautiful" signs that I mentioned last month!)

This morning I was thinking about this Beacons of Blessings article as I drove and I was struck by an analogy. First of all, let me say that I am familiar with the joys and frustrations of chasing a tiny white ball over miles of grass and trying to get it in the elusive little cups spread around on those miles of grass! I started playing as a teenager and played for probably about 30 years. I was never "good," but there were times when I "wasn't bad."

In any case, it seems to me that we can draw some parallels between playing golf and living a life of faith. The first is the variety of situations you encounter on a golf course. There are short holes and long ones. There are straight holes and dog-leg left and dog-leg right. The greens are different shapes and sizes — and some are flat and some have more than one level. And yet the purpose is always the same— get your ball in the cup with a minimum amount of effort and mistakes. So too is our life. We encounter situations that call on us to solve problems and get from point A to point B in a way that accords with God's will. There are general lessons that we can learn but each hole (or each situation) has to be approached on its own.

Secondly, if you "hit the ball" wrong, you may end up in the rough or in a trap. Sin or bad choices can get us off the "fairway of life" and into some kind of difficult place. Sometimes we can recover (through repentance and forgiveness) and sometimes we face a "penalty stroke." One big difference is that there is no "par" for the situations of life. We do not judge ourselves against the abilities or performance of others.

If there is any comparison to be made, it is to prior times that we have faced similar situations. That helps us to evaluate if we are growing in our understanding and application of God's will.

Golf is actually two games. The first game consists of the drives and approach shots and the second game consists of putting. Many a good round of golf has been ruined by two-putting and three-putting the greens. When you get close to your objective, you have to make some fine calculations about that final stroke.

Which way is the grass lying? Is there a slope to the ground? How far are you from the hole? Too light a touch will bring you up short; too hard a hit will carry you past the hole - sometimes well past. Bringing things to a conclusion is a task requiring judgment and skill.

One last thought about analogies. Something I learned about golf is that you have to play frequently if you want to play well. The only time I ever broke 90 was when I had been playing on a weekly basis for a while. Practice is usually the only way to work out problems in your game. We also need to practice using the standards and directions of our faith is dealing with the situations of our lives. If we use the parameters of the world around us to "play the game," we may end up "getting the ball in the hole," but it won't be a good score for the life of faith.

We all have a tee time every day when we wake up. We play a new course each day on a different course. Well, tee off! I'll see you on the links.

Skatepark plans coming along, fund-raiser planned

At a recent planning meeting, Charlevoix students got a peek at their proposed plans for a new skatepark layout and design they helped create with two nationally recognized professional skatepark designers and vendors.

The group is in the final decision making stage for choosing the vendor. Over 30 kids and parents gathered at the temporary site for the Charlevoix Community Skatepark, located at the old Middle School on Mason Street, where the portable classroom once used by Mrs. Garver's English class is being transformed to function as the skatepark's office and entrance to the park.

Parent volunteers were on hand to offer their assistance for many of the upcoming events and operational needs of the skatepark.

"We really need parents and people in the community to help us complete this project. There are many opportunities at every level for people to become involved; fundraising, volunteer park supervision, grant writing, clerical, concession and serving on special committees," said group member Vickie Daman.

The group's goal is to have phase one of the skatepark operational by the end of June and the reality of seeing their dreams taking shape is creating excitement among the kids who have worked so diligently.

The skatepark is currently pouring a new cement slab and will be moving the existing fencing to fit their plans for a fully enclosed, outdoor, supervised park. The community will soon begin to see the temporary equipment (three ramps, a 7 foot half pipe, rails and a spine) they will use until funding can be obtained to purchase the permanent equipment from the selected vendor.

Cost for the permanent equipment is estimated at $100,000.

Laura Stebe, a group member, said, "This equipment can be purchased in stages as money becomes available and can be added to over time."

The skatepark has been invited to participate during Venetian week, beginning with a exhibition at 4 p.m.. on July 22 at the Castle. Semi-pro and local skaters will be on hand to demonstrate their sport.

They will also participate in the Venetian Parade on Saturday, July 24.

The group is also planning a fundraising event entitled "Sk8-A-Thon II, 20/20 Vision: See The Park" from 7- 9 p.m. . July 22 at the skatepark.

Each student has a goal of collecting $20 from 20 people and those reaching that goal will be able to attend a skateboard, in-line or BMX clinic at no cost. The clinics will be presented by semi-pro's and a nominal fee will be charged for those who do not meet their goal.

Charlevoix Community Skatepark will soon be launching its capital campaign with hopes that area businesses and individuals will help meet their financial and long term goal for providing a year round, indoor, skatepark. Opportunities for advertising sponsorship displayed on fencing and equipment will truly make this a "community built skatepark."

In-kind material and in-kind service donations will be welcomed as well. Total construction cost for Phase II is estimated at $220,000. The equipment to be purchased for the temporary park will be transferable to the permanent location.

If you are interested in assisting the skatepark in any way, please contact Daman at 547-8063 or e-mail Vicki Hankins at vichankins@hotmail.com.

Information can be obtained on the group's web site by visiting planner.eskal8.org/charlevoixskate.

Northwest student wins viola

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Andy Tuck, the youngest member of the esteemed Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, was recently awarded a high quality instrument to enhance his studies.

Tuck, a 13-year-old Northwest Academy student from Charlevoix, entered the American String Teachers' Association national contest in late March hoping to win a Potter's viola. The association gives away three Potter's instruments annually, two violins and a viola, with a total worth of $10,000.

He was the first Northwest student to enter the contest and was shocked to find out in early June that he won.

"I didn't think I would ever have a chance of winning. They were giving away one viola for the entire United States," he said.

The music prodigy plays trumpet at Northwest Academy in the school's intermediate, advanced and jazz bands and dabbles in piano and violin. But his real passion is the viola.

His interest in the viola was sparked in fifth grade when he attended Charlevoix's St. Mary School and Crooked Tree Arts Center Strings teacher Karey Johnson came to the school to teach an introductory to string instruments course.

"She played the viola for us and I just loved the sound," Tuck said.

Now, two years later, Tuck can play with the best of them. His instructor is David Holland, the principal of the viola program at Interlochen Arts Academy, and he is also one of 15 students in Northwest's new strings program. Tuck said his specialty on the viola is classical music, but he said he can also "fiddle" playing songs like "The Devil Went Down to Georgia."

While Tuck was shocked to come away with the viola, Northwest administrator Scott Cochran wasn't surprised he was selected. He said the instrument couldn't be in better hands.

"One of the neat things about this to me is he is obviously a gifted, talented musician. But he also works really, really hard at it and holds himself to such a high standard. I just know the instrument is going to get its due use and that's awesome," Cochran said.

Tuck said the viola he currently plays is a beginners viola that isn't capable of producing the caliber of music he can make.

He said he will use it to practice frequently for his orchestra performances in both the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra, who he started playing with in January, and the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra.

Woman arrested for credit card scam, thefts

After an 18-month investigation involving the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, the FBI and a multi-jurisdictional task force, a 36-year-old Miami, Fla. woman was arrested in Utah last week concerning the theft and use of stolen credit cards in the area.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater said Julissa Veronica Roman was extradited back to Charlevoix on Thursday for a Friday arraignment following her arrest in Utah, where she had been serving a prison sentence for similar crimes.

He said Roman and several other accomplices would enter parked vehicles at ski resorts, beaches and other large parking lots in Charlevoix County and steal credit cards. She also did this throughout the nation to thousands of cars.

Her and her accomplices would then use the credit cards, within minutes of stealing them, at chain stores to buy electronics and phone calling cards. These items were shipped out of the state and even out of the country.

An investigation into her activities began in February 2003. She has already been convicted in Colorado and Utah on state charges.

Additional state and federal charges are forthcoming against Roman and her accomplices.

City Council appoints Ochs to clerk's position

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

Charlevoix native Carol Ochs has been appointed to the vacant city clerk's seat until November.

Carol Ochs

At its June 7 meeting, city council unanimously selected Ochs over one other candidate to fill the rest of former clerk Liz Gooch's term.

Gooch resigned unexpectedly in April, a year and a half before her term expired. Since then, Stephanie Brown, the city's deputy treasurer/clerk has filled the vacancy.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain who made the motion to appoint Ochs, said, "Carol demonstrates the maturity it takes to take care of the needs of the city of Charlevoix."

Ochs, 35, is the daughter of Bill and Shirley Ormsby and the wife of Tom Ochs, who is the son of John and Lani Ochs.

She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1986 and then attended Hope College in Holland where she earned her bachelors degree in English. Her appointment to the seat is a temporary position. She has to win in the November general election to secure the seat for the next two years. She has filed to run.

Ochs' name will be the only one on the ballot for city clerk. Which means a write-in candidate is the only one that can steal the seat from her. But right now, she isn't worried about a write-in campaign, she is concentrating on the work at hand.

"I'm excited to get in here and get caught up," she said.

Coast Guard to have boating safety event

Coast Guard Station Charlevoix will host a series of family-oriented events from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., June 25 in recognition of National Safe Boating Week.

The event is open to the public and will be at East Park in downtown Charlevoix. It will feature activities for children and boating safety demonstrations.

The demonstrations will include how to use fire extinguishers and flares, cold water and drown-proofing demonstrations, damage control (how to stop a sinking boat) and knot tying.

"Coastie," a radio-controlled talking boat will be at the park to educate children on boating safety. There will also be a children's boating safety obstacle course where children race to rescue "Oscar" and become an honorary boat crewmember of the Coast Guard.

The final demonstration of the day will be a Coast Guard rescue vessel and helicopter performing a simulated rescue mission of a sinking boat and person in the water.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary will also be conducting free vessel safety examinations at the Charlevoix City Marina. Representatives from the Coast Guard Auxiliary and the Charlevoix Fire Department will also be providing safety information.

Venetian looking for individual sports stars

The Venetian Sports Committee has sprinted down the home stretch in its quest to identify "Charlevoix Sports Legends," the 2004 Venetian theme.

The committee, which previously completed its initial review of "Coaching Legends," "Legendary Teams" and "Team Sport Stars," set it sights on "Individual Sport Standouts" in its final category of review.

The highest of laurels rests with the many individuals who have starred on the most successful series of teams in the history of Charlevoix High School sports, the seven time state champion cross country team. Heading this list is the beloved and departed Jeff Drenth, in whose memory the annual Venetian footrace has been named.

Drenth was a 1978 Charlevoix High School All Stater and All American at Central Michigan University. Drenth also participated in the 1983 World University Games, the 1984, 1985 and 1986 USA World Cross Country Teams and qualified for the U.S. Olympic Trials in 1984.

The Charlevoix High School cross country stage is shared by other Rayders with similarly brilliant careers.

Bill Taylor, IV was an All State runner in 1982 and a high school All American and State Champion in 1983. Taylor earned NCAA All American honors in track at Central Michigan University in 1988 and 1989, qualified for the 1992 U.S. Olympic Trials in the 5,000 meter and 10,000 meter distances and was a participant in the 1990, 1991 and 1992 World Cross Country Championships.

Another Rayder distance runner who excelled both at Charlevoix High School and in college is Scott Miller, who earned All State honors in 1987, was the State Champion in 1988 and 1989 and was an NCAA Nationals qualifier at William and Mary College.

Doug Bergmann likewise had a fantastic career, earning All State honors at Charlevoix High School in 1985 and qualifying for the NCAA Nationals at Central Michigan University in 1988 and at William and Mary College in 1989. Other Rayder distance runners with impressive credentials include Becca Chamberlain, Mike Bush, Matt Smith, Matt Dickinson, Christopher Meier, Michael Sevenski III, Matt Peterson, Patrick Rajewski, Mark Russell, Walt Drenth, Tricia Hodge, William Crook, Gerhy Wiesner, John Tunison, Liz Ulrich, Kati Swenor, Gordie Selph, Peter Gorkiewicz and Julie Bush.

Local golf achievements are more recent in vintage, led by the Rayders' David Shearer who currently plays at North Kentucky University and Keith Grunch, the Aquinas College standout. Mark Custer was also a Charlevoix High School All State golfer who advanced to the "Sweet 16" State Amateur Tournament. Several local players have also earned reputations of excellence, including Joe Etienne, Bob Wallace and Bob Livingston.

Charlevoix High School track and field accomplishments date back to the opening era of Rayder football and basketball brilliance.

Richard "Big" Bergmann looms large in this regard, having won three individual events in the State Championship track meet in 1938 to single-handedly score all the points which Charlevoix High School needed for a second place finish. Bob Carey, the Charlevoix High School multisport star who excelled in football and basketball at Michigan State University, also brought honor to the Spartans as the Champion Shot-putter of the Big Ten Conference.

The exploits of Jason Whitley remain noteworthy, as Whitley won State Championships in the 300 meter hurdles in 1987, 1988 and 1989, along with the 110 meter high hurdles in 1989. Whitley still holds the Charlevoix High School record in the pole vault, the 300 meter hurdles, the 110 meter high hurdles as well as in the 800 meter relay.

Others who have earned consideration for outstanding track and field careers include Gary Stutzman, Larry McBride, John Ferguson and Steve Smith.

Several Charlevoix High School wrestlers have earned All State honors and individual weight championships, including Phil Christ, Ken Wojan and Jason and Greg Whitley. Other champion Rayder grapplers under consideration include Craig Golovich, Jason Pajtas, Mike Kiteley and Keith Parish.

The Pace sisters, Noni, Lauren and Chris, were the dominant consideration for legends of the ski slopes. York Smith, a recent graduate, also schussed to excellence.

Charlevoix bowling circles reverberate with the mention of Randy DeYoung, who has dominated the local circuit, passing opportunities to go professional.

The Venetian Sports Committee again encourages interested sports fans to weigh in with their opinions and provide the Committee names of other local standouts who have excelled in individual sports.

You may make your opinion known by calling Venetian Festival Headquarters at 547-3872 or by conveying your information to any of the Committee members who include Dwight (Ike) Boss, Leroy Buchanan, Toni Felter, Jim Lewis, Jack McKenzie, Marilyn Novak, Dave Novotny, Ken Plude, Vane Smith or Dean Davenport.

Charlevoix Children's House to have Summer Discovery Camp

As the school year comes to a close, Charlevoix Children's House is gearing up for its Summer Discovery Camp. As a day camp for 3 – 6-year-olds, this program is unique in the Charlevoix area and filled with surprises throughout the summer.

On tap for this year are visits from an array of animals with hooves, scales and feathers. Fur and Feather of Petoskey will visit, and there may be a pony dropping in from time to time.

There will be instrument making, songs, water play and crafts. Reportedly, there will also be some serious clowning around in the first week and harvesting of fresh vegetables from the school garden as they mature. The close of each camp day is at 1 p.m.

To cap off each week, area restaurants are donating special lunches on Fridays.

Sessions run from June 21 to Aug. 13. Children can be registered for any or all weekly sessions. For more information call the Charlevoix Children's House at 547-5599 or visit its web site at charlevoixchildrenshouse.org.

Northwest's jazz band to open summer concert series

The first of eight Thursday night concerts in the park June 17 will feature the very popular Northwest Academy Jazz Combo and "friends."

These concerts sponsored by the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau have become a welcomed addition to the events that take place at the East Park Odmark Pavilion during the summer months.

The Northwest Academy Band program has become known as one of the premier small band programs in Michigan. The band was one of 13 groups throughout Michigan that was invited in January to perform in Hill Auditorium for the 59th annual Music Inservice Conference for Music Educators throughout the Midwest held each year in Ann Arbor. This is a very prestigious event and only the very best bands have the opportunity to be invited to audition and perform.

Many area businesses supported the group through donations and new uniforms were purchased and contributing individuals and businesses names were sewn into each uniform.

This year the Jazz Combo will feature Trish Watkins on keyboard and bass, Gina Attee and Devin Toton on trumpet, Trevor Lundgren on trombone and Joe Sievertson, Dan Sanchez and Liz Shepard anchoring the Saxophone section.

"Friends" will include former members of the group that have graduated and are back in the area for the summer. Rachel Bellairs, CJ Toton and Carolyn Bellairs will be featured guests during the summer.

Road construction underway on US-31

Road work is underway around Charlevoix.

Rise Rasch, the manger of the Michigan Department of Transportation's Traverse City office, said maintenance crews will be working on the north and south sides of town all this week.

They will be doing crack sealing along US-31 from Norwood to the M-66 intersection and north of the bridge near the city limits.

"This will be a fast moving operation. We want to get the work in before the heavy tourist season starts," Rasch said,

Flaggers will be directing traffic in areas of lane closures.

Rasch said the closures will be for short distances. Work will start early in the morning and will continue into the early evening.

Health department offers immunizations

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency will offer meningitis immunizations at local health department offices during the summer months so that college freshmen, especially those who will live in dormitories, can be vaccinated before the school year begins in the fall.

"Most colleges now recommend a meningitis immunization for incoming freshmen," said Patricia Fralick, Director of Family Health Services for the health department.

"Freshmen live in close quarters with lots of other people so they have a higher risk for communicable diseases. Meningitis can be a deadly disease, but it's preventable with just one dose."

Meningitis vaccines will be offered during June, July and August at health department locations in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties for a cost of $75.

"It's an expensive vaccine," Fralick said. "We're offering it at our cost to encourage as many college freshmen as possible to protect themselves from meningitis."

Because appointments for immunization clinics fill up quickly, Fralick recommends booking an appointment soon by calling (800) 432-4121, during business hours.

Meningococcal disease is a serious illness, caused by bacteria. It is the leading cause of bacterial meningitis in children ages 2 to 18 in the U.S.

Meningitis is an infection of the brain and spinal cord coverings. Meningococcal disease vaccine can prevent two of the three important types of Meningococcal disease in older children and adults.

About 2,600 people get meningococcal disease each year in the U.S.

Ten to 15 percent of these people die, in spite of treatment with antibiotics. Of those who live, another 10 percent lose their arms or legs, become deaf, have problems with their nervous systems, become mentally impaired or suffer seizures or strokes.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

For additional information about meningitis vaccines, contact your health care provider, local health department office, or visit www.cdc.org.

Venetian to host Young Americans at Castle Farms

In its ongoing effort to secure the financial future of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, the Venetian Board is promoting another professional entertainment offering for area residents and visitors.

The Young Americans, acclaimed coast-to-coast in reviews by such critics as the Los Angeles Times and New York Times, will perform the inaugural concert at the beautifully renovated Castle Farms on Friday evening, June 25, 2004.

The two hour, open air show will be the only 2004 Charlevoix performance by the Young Americans and will feature a rare combination of both the Boyne and the Traverse City performing troupes, comprising a total of 50 Young American singer/dancers.

"The festival continues to actively pursue income generating opportunities, so that we may maintain the quality and array of Venetian events such as fireworks," Venetian President Dan Barron said. "With the generous support of the owners of The Castle, Richard and Linda Mueller, we have been provided a wonderful opportunity to raise money and bring great entertainment to town."

Seats will be provided on a general admission basis. No lawn chairs, coolers, food or beverages may be brought to the concert. Food and refreshments will be offered for sale the night of the show.

Tickets are $20 each an may be purchased in downtown Charlevoix at Bridge Street Book Shop (phone 547-7323). Because the number of tickets is limited, tickets will be sold at the door only if they remain available.

Gates will open early at 5:30 p.m., to allow concertgoers to select their seating and to enjoy free of charge, Castle Farms lawn games such as shuffleboard, croquet, bocce ball and badminton. Showtime is 7:30 p.m. Concert proceeds will help fund the sensational fireworks displays of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, which will be shot on July 23 and 24.

WMU to have writing workshop on island

A writing workshop on Beaver Island will be reprised this summer by Western Michigan University.

"Writing for Publication: A Workshop on the Craft of Publishing Articles in Magazines or Professional Journals," will be offered from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Monday through Thursday, July 12 through 15, at the Beaver Island Community School in St. James.

This coached, hands-on writing experience is aimed at educators and others who have little experience in writing for or getting published in magazines, particularly professional journals. Attendees will leave with a completed article and submission letter.

The workshop will focus on how to perfect a clear, forceful writing style and will address effective ways to start articles, eliminate jargon and fuzzy writing and make articles attractive to periodical editors.

It is being given on Beaver Island as a way of stimulating the creative senses. Attendees will spend their mornings in an intensive learning environment, then have their afternoons and evenings free to continue working or tour Beaver Island and enjoy its recreational amenities. They are encouraged to use part of their free time to vacation on the island with family and friends.

Leading the workshop this year will be Dr. Lawrence B. Schlack, WMU associate professor emeritus of educational leadership and a former superintendent of the Barry Intermediate School District in Hastings. Schlack has taught writing for the past 20 years and has helped a variety of people produce articles suitable for publication in periodicals.

Preregistration by July 2 is required to attend the workshop, which costs $275 per person. An additional fee is charged for those taking the workshop for academic credit from WMU. Space is limited, so early registration is advised.

To register, follow the instructions in the event brochure, which is available by visiting the Web site at conference.wmich.edu or by calling WMU's Conferences and Seminars office at (269) 387-4174.

Those planning to attend the workshop also are advised to make their travel and lodging arrangements early, as Beaver Island plays host to numerous summer visitors. More information is available online at <www.beaverisland.net> or by calling (231) 448-2505.

Republican candidates discuss the economy

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With the economy on the minds of many voters in the 105th District, repuhlican candidates for the general election are giving their thoughts on the topic.

Most of them say in order to improve the economy, we need to make the business climate in the state more open. And many say the best way to do that is to end the single business tax and lessen regulations on businesses.

Candidate Jack Apol said, while an individual candidate will probably not have much impact on the state's economy, he looks at fixing the economy as a matter of providing jobs to the people.

"If we don't have jobs, we are not going to have much of an economy," he said.

And in order to hring in these jobs, he said the state needs to make itself more competitive with other states. To do this, we need to lower the taxes on businesses, or cut them out — such as the single husiness tax and some property taxes.

He added we need to take some of the focus away from trying to keep manufacturing jobs from leaving the state. He said those jobs are going away, no matter what we do, so we need to find replacements for them.

Apol suggests training young people or retraining workers in higher skilled jobs. One way is through more courses being available at community colleges. Also he suggests encouraging businesses to bring their higher skilled jobs to Michigan.

Apol also said we need to plan for more jobs on a regional basis. He said we could look to Oakland County's economic success and find out what they did to achieve it.

But, he stressed he does not have all the answers to this topic.

"People who are dogmatic and say my way is the only way are going to get laughed at," he said.

Therefore, he said people in government and private business need to cooperate and listen to one another.

Candidate Kevin Elsenheimer said the simplest solution to improve the economy is to make northern Michigan and the state more husiness friendly. He also suggested reducing taxes on businesses and eliminating the single business tax.

"We need to make the tax situation more favorahle. It is a real clear economic principal that when you allow people to keep more of their own money, you get more taxes hack in sales tax and property tax (due to those people huying more of these items)," he said.

Elsenheimer also suggests creating more enterprise zones in the area. Enterprise zones are areas of a community where, for a certain period of time, businesses are free from paying certain state and local taxes.

Candidate Bonnie Nothoff also said we need to lower some taxes on businesses, such as the single business tax.

"When businesses do come to Michigan, especially the 105th district, they want to stay. What we have do to do is make the climate favorable enough for them to stay," she said.

She added there also needs to he regulations on businesses that take away from our economy, such as mail order pharmacies, which she said do not have to work on the same field as local pharmacies.

But Nothoff said we need to end deficits in the budget to start to work toward a better economy. Without deficits, the state will be able to make needed infrastructure improvements, such as road improvements, that encourage businesses to locate to the area.

She also suggested more helping and mentoring of businesses that want to come to the area.

"We've lost that spirit and need to return to that helpful nature when someone wants to start a husiness," she said.

Candidate Jeff Garfield agreed with Apol that we need to get away from a purely manufacturing economy.

"That is the first place jobs are cut," he said. "We need more technical jobs."

To do this, Garfield said we need to solicit more technological jobs to Michigan. We also need to make infrastructure improvements and get the state help with them in the 105th District, like it has done in the past for communities in the southern counties.

He said we need to sell the area to businesses.

"A lot of places don't want to locate up here because they think it is so far from everything," he said.

He also suggested reducing or eliminating business taxes.

"We are seventeenth in the nation in the amount of business tax that we pay," he said.

Jack Apol

Kevin Elsenheimer

Candidate John Ramsey said he has three steps to helping the economy of Michigan and the 105th District.

First, he said we need to contain the johs we have and get rid of "screwy" tax laws, such as the single business tax.

Second, he said we need to provide the right climate for business. He said the key principle to that is "capital investments."

Ramsey suggests a group of investors that will look at business ideas and provide investments to get those ideas off the ground. He said this is something he will put together whether he is elected or not.

Bonnie Nothoff

Jeff Garfield

The key to this group is getting the people with business ideas in front of it. So, he will need someone to get the information out to business owners and future husiness owners.

To further make this group successful, he said the state government needs to make sure the tax laws will not impeded these businesses.

He added the government needs help selling the state and communities to businesses by putting together a booklet that shows what each community has to offer for business, such as land and infrastructure.

John Ramsey

Craig Ryan

Another part to this plan is to create a husiness "swat team" that will go after any company that is thinking about relocating or starting up in Michigan or the 105th District.

"If we get word that someone wants to

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay understands that "Goodbye" is much more than word.

I'm Bob Vance, Family Counselor with Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. I built my career by learning from those I serve, and I'm proud to work for an organization that grows in the same way.

I like to refer to our program as a full service hospice. We have learned that the experience of dying is more about life than death. Every death ripples outward and spreads, touching many lives.

Of course we're here to help our patients but, just as importantly, our role is to help the people who love our patients. We help them to cope, understand and take the time they need to say "Goodbye".

Some hospices are reducing services to the bereaved. At Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, we constantly strive to create new services. We understand that "Goodbye" is much more than words. Not all hospices are alike.

move to northern Michigan, we need a sales team to jump on those guys," he said. "This team goes after potential businesses and tries to bring them in."

Michigan has a good work force and an attractive climate, Ramsey said. These need to be promoted to potential businesses.

The third part to his plan, Ramsey said, is to promote our recreational industries and invest in them.

Candidate Craig Ryan also said the key to the economy is lower taxes and less regulation for small businesses.

However, he added, his general philosophical approach is government does not solve the issue it only empowers businesses to succeed.

Like the other candidates, he supports rolling hack the single business tax. As for regulation, he said he is talking about regulation that is simply a way for government to raise money — such as raising permit fees.

Ryan also supports promoting our state to businesses, to encourage them to relocate or start up here.

(Next week: Democratic candidates talk about the economy.)

Republican candidates discuss the economy

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

With the economy on the minds of many voters in the 105th District, republican candidates for the general election are giving their thoughts on the topic.

Most of them say in order to improve the economy, we need to make the business climate in the state more open. And many say the best way to do that is to end the single business tax and lessen regulations on businesses.

Candidate Jack Apol said, while an individual candidate will probably not have much impact on the state's economy, he looks at fixing the economy as a matter of providing jobs to the people.

"If we don't have jobs, we are not going to have much of an economy," he said.

And in order to bring in these jobs, he said the state needs to make itself more competitive with other states. To do this, we need to lower the taxes on businesses, or cut them out — such as the single business tax and some property taxes.

He added we need to take some of the focus away from trying to keep manufacturing jobs from leaving the state. He said those jobs are going away, no matter what we do, so we need to find replacements for them.

Apol suggests training young people or retraining workers in higher skilled jobs. One way is through more courses being available at community colleges. Also he suggests encouraging businesses to bring their higher skilled jobs to Michigan.

Apol also said we need to plan for more jobs on a regional basis. He said we could look to Oakland County's economic success and find out what they did to achieve it.

But, he stressed he does not have all the answers to this topic.

"People who are dogmatic and say my way is the only way are going to get laughed at," he said.

Therefore, he said people in government and private business need to cooperate and listen to one another.

Candidate Kevin Elsenheimer said the simplest solution to improve the economy is to make northern Michigan and the state more business friendly. He also suggested reducing taxes on businesses and eliminating the single business tax.

"We need to make the tax situation more favorable. It is a real clear economic principal that when you allow people to keep more of their own money, you get more taxes back in sales tax and property tax (due to those people buying more of these items)," he said.

Elsenheimer also suggests creating more enterprise zones in the area. Enterprise zones are areas of a community where, for a certain period of time, businesses are free from paying certain state and local taxes.

Candidate Bonnie Nothoff also said we need to lower some taxes on businesses, such as the single business tax.

"When businesses do come to Michigan, especially the 105th district, they want to stay. What we have do to do is make the climate favorable enough for them to stay," she said.

She added there also needs to be regulations on businesses that take away from our economy, such as mail order pharmacies, which she said do not have to work on the same field as local pharmacies.

But Nothoff said we need to end deficits in the budget to start to work toward a better economy. Without deficits, the state will be able to make needed infrastructure improvements, such as road improvements, that encourage businesses to locate to the area.

She also suggested more helping and mentoring of businesses that want to come to the area.

"We've lost that spirit and need to return to that helpful nature when someone wants to start a business," she said.

Candidate Jeff Garfield agreed with Apol that we need to get away from a purely manufacturing economy.

"That is the first place jobs are cut," he said. "We need more technical jobs."

To do this, Garfield said we need to solicit more technological jobs to Michigan. We also need to make infrastructure improvements and get the state help with them in the 105th District, like it has done in the past for communities in the southern counties.

He said we need to sell the area to businesses.

"A lot of places don't want to locate up here because they think it is so far from everything," he said.

He also suggested reducing or eliminating business taxes.

"We are seventeenth in the nation in the amount of business tax that we pay," he said.

John Ramsey

Craig Ryan

Candidate John Ramsey said he has three steps to helping the economy of Michigan and the 105th District.

First, he said we need to contain the jobs we have and get rid of "screwy" tax laws, such as the single business tax.

Second, he said we need to provide the right climate for business. He said the key principle to that is "capital investments."

Ramsey suggests a group of investors that will look at business ideas and provide investments to get those ideas off the ground. He said this is something he will put together whether he is elected or not.

The key to this group is getting the people with business ideas in front of it. So, he will need someone to get the information out to business owners and future business owners.

To further make this group successful, he said the state government needs to make sure the tax laws will not impeded these businesses.

He added the government needs help selling the state and communities to businesses by putting together a booklet that shows what each community has to offer for business, such as land and infrastructure.

Another part to this plan is to create a business "swat team" that will go after any company that is thinking about relocating or starting up in Michigan or the 105th District.

"If we get word that someone wants to

Hospice of Little Traverse Bay understands that "Goodbye" is much more than word.

I'm Bob Vance, Family Counselor with Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. I built my career by learning from those I serve, and I'm proud to work for an organization that grows in the same way.

I like to refer to our program as a full service hospice. We have learned that the experience of dying is more about life than death. Every death ripples outward and spreads, touching many lives.

Of course we're here to help our patients but, just as importantly, our role is to help the people who love our patients. We help them to cope, understand and take the time they need to say "Goodbye".

Some hospices are reducing services to the bereaved. At Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, we constantly strive to create new services. We understand that "Goodbye" is much more than words. Not all hospices are alike.

move to northern Michigan, we need a sales team to jump on those guys," he said. "This team goes after potential businesses and tries to bring them in."

Michigan has a good work force and an attractive climate, Ramsey said. These need to be promoted to potential businesses.

The third part to his plan, Ramsey said, is to promote our recreational industries and invest in them.

Candidate Craig Ryan also said the key to the economy is lower taxes and less regulation for small businesses.

However, he added, his general philosophical approach is government does not solve the issue it only empowers businesses to succeed.

Like the other candidates, he supports rolling back the single business tax. As for regulation, he said he is talking about regulation that is simply a way for government to raise money — such as raising permit fees.

Ryan also supports promoting our state to businesses, to encourage them to relocate or start up here.

(Next week: Democratic candidates talk about the economy.)

Awards given for pool work by board

The Charlevoix Area Community Pool Annual Meeting, on June 3, adhered to the three "Rs": Recognition, Re-election, and Relaxation.

The Pool Presidents Award for volunteerism was given to Bill and Ellen Schuiling. The Executive Committee's award to a board member went to Dr. Dave Strawbridge for his years of willing service. The Pool Director Al Gooch, gave three commendations: to Bruce MacArthur for his long term insistence on the best for the pool; to Mike and Rhea Dow for their efforts, most recently the gift of a new large inflatable toy for the pool; to Dave Robinson and Steve Hansen for their work to humanely safeguard the pool building from swallow nesting.

Board members re-elected to three year terms are Steve Hansen, Dave Garland, Karen Benning and Marty Strawbridge.

The re-elected officers are: Tim Boyko, president; Sandy Allard, vice-president; Karen Benning, treasurer; Steve Hansen, secretary.

Invention leads to new venture for area men

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Thanks to Dan Fenwick and Joseph Wilson's invention, sports enthusiasts can practice improving their skills by throwing or shooting at their own garage.

Fenwick and Wilson are the owners of Garage Door Sports, a Charlevoix business that has created a sports training device and toy for children and adults.

"The concept comes from playing sports as youngsters and utilizing my garage door for hockey and basketball," Fenwick said.

However, this left the garage door with several dents.

"Over time, my dad came up with an idea of hanging a painter's tarp under the door. It's evolved into a targeting system which crosses over into the toy world as well as the sports world."

Garage Door Sports design is a tarp-like sheet that hangs down from the bottom of a garage door that is up. A sports figure, such as a hockey goalie, is painted on it and there are various targets on the sheet to shoot at.

The sheet hangs from the garage door with Velcro straps, thus eliminating any damage to the door.

Garage Door Sports currently only has a hockey version of the target out, but will soon be releasing a baseball version. Versions for football, soccer and lacrosse are also being planned.

Wilson said the product has been in development for over a year and the company started selling it in March. And there are more developments, besides additional sports targets, that are being worked on.

Garage Door Sports is working on systems that can keep score or light up when you hit the target. They are also working on creating targeting systems with team logos on it, so you can pitch to your favorite team or shoot the puck at your favorite team's goalie.

Fenwick said currently they are selling their product through advertisements in various sports publications across the country and small wholesale sporting shops. In Charlevoix, they are sold at the company's location at 06777 South US-31, next to Michigan Officeways, or at the Charlevoix clothing store Halfway To The Top, Latitude 45.

Dan Fenwick, left, and Joseph Wilson are hoping their invention will help coaches, players and anyone looking for a new toy. Their targeting system allows users to throw baseballs, pucks, footballs and other sports balls at various targets that hang down from their garage door. So far, the men have only a hockey version of their invention, but are planning to expand to other sports soon.

Fenwick added they are looking for more retailers and in the process of signing up with a distributor out of Chicago.

Wilson added, Garage Door Sport's system is also available at wholesale prices to parks, municipalities, coaches and leagues.

He said people can also use them for fund-raisers. All an organization has to do is put down a deposit on the targeting system, and Garage Door Sports will let them use it to raise money for their group.

The retail price for Garage Door Sport's targeting system is $89.95 for a single door model or $99.95 for a double-door model.

Fenwick and Wilson are both Charlevoix residents. Fenwick has been in Charlevoix for the past two years and is retired from the cellular industry in Chicago. He has a wife, Suzy, a son in second grade, Tucker, and a 2-year-old daughter, Hope.

Wilson has been a resident for the past six years. He is a landscape designer for a local company and has a 2-year-old daughter, Gabrielle, and a wife, Lisa.

Garage Door Sports can be contacted by calling (231) 237-9028, e-mailing source3@charter.net or visiting their web site at www.garagedoorsports.com.

Their office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Firefighters respond to Charlevoix Manufacturing

At about 8:30 a.m. on June 10, the City of Charlevoix Fire Department was dispatched to a fire in a interior wall at Charlevoix Manufacturing at 8911 Martin Road.

When firefighters arrived employees stated the fire was already out.

Firefighters were on the scene about a half hour checking for fire extension. No one was hurt in the incident and Charlevoix Manufacturing resumed production after fire department units cleared from the scene. The fire was caused by sparks from a welder. Damage was minimal.

SPORTS

Student's soccer season ends with many awards

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Shayna Drost, a recent graduate, has set many impressive records on the soccer field of Charlevoix High School.

Drost has been playing soccer since she was around 6 years old with the 4-H soccer program. Since then, she has made many accomplishments in the sport including four all-time scoring records, a record for the most season goals, a record for the most assists in a season and a record for the most goals in a game.

"Being on the field feels right," Drost said. "It's the perfect spot to let out everything that's been bothering me."

She also feels that a lot of her success has to be attributed to her teammates, and she also said that her parents and grandparents have been a big motivation for her.

"I'm thankful that God gave me the talent," she said.

Drost says that watching her sisters play soccer helped her decide between soccer and softball. Soccer has kept Drost active and focused, and has played a big role in teaching Drost how to achieve her goals.

Drost does not just excel on the field. She recently graduated with honors and said "on the field, I gave 100 percent to soccer, and in school, I gave 100 percent to school," to successfully fit it into her soccer schedule.

Drost said she keeps herself focused by concentrating on the goals that she sets for herself.

For the future, Drost has decided to pursue intramural soccer so that she can focus on getting her elementary education teaching degree at Hope College. She hopes someday that she will have the opportunity to coach soccer so that she can help younger kids find the joy in playing.

"We're definitely going to miss her," said coach Carol Madison. "She's contributed a lot."

Voters pass all school requests Monday night

LIBRARY

4,000 square feet of space — one will house the program room and the other, a children's activity room.

The facility will offer adult, children's and teen collections as well as a popular reading room, quiet reading areas, gardens, a self check out, a staffed circulation desk and outdoor landscaped plazas for reading.

The rest of the $1.6 million price tag that isn't covered by the bond request is currently being collected in fund-raising.

So far a library support group chaired by Charlevoix resident Don Heise has raised $1,009,000, two thirds of the way to that $1.6 million goal.

But that was not all the good news for the library. The library's operational millage also passed Monday night 991 in support and 760 against.

According to Meyerson hoth the huilding and operation millage requests had to pass for the project to move forward.

This operating millage would bring in approximately $395,063 in 2005 and would be in addition to the .46 mills currently levied for operations. The additional millage would cost a homeowner whose taxable value is $100,000, $65.

It will allow the library to double its collection budget to buy more hooks, add new collections like music, double its staff and beef up resources like computer classes and coordinated programming with the schools.

In a previous interview, Meyerson explained that if the two pieces to this puzzle do pass, the library will start a six to nine month design process and will likely break ground on the project in the winter of 2005.

The Charlevoix Community School District and Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District also came out on top Monday night. All of their ballot questions passed.

Voters had to decide whether to renew a 1.16 mills special education millage for the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District and a five-year 18 mills non-homestead property renewal.

Charlevoix school's operational millage passed 1,228 yes to 503 no. The intermediate school district's special education millage passed 1,090 in support to 644 against.

Charlevoix Public School Superintendant John Sturock said, "We are real pleased the community has supported our school system once again. It was a positive night for Charlevoix Public Schools and the library."

Also on the ballot were school hoard secretary Larry Levengood and trustee Dianne Kilkenny. They hoth ran unopposed.

Chorale to perform at area church

On June 27 the "Sundays at Four" concert series will present the Brazeal Dennard Chorale, the premier choral group which performs regularly with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

The chorale, a favorite of Detroit audiences, has been featured several times on NPR during Black History month. It has a membership of professional trained vocalists and is deeply committed to bringing a tradition of choral excellence to classical repertoire as well as performing significant choral works by African-American composers and the traditional African-American folksongs.

The "Sundays at Four" concerts are at 4:00 p.m. at the First Congregational/UCC Church of Charlevoix at 101 State Street.

For further information call (231) 536-7018.

There is a suggested donation of $7. A reception honoring Dr. Dennard and his chorale follows the program.

MDEQ, city trying to agree on marina plan

MARINA

MDEQ's lap and according to a department representative won't be going anywhere unless several changes are made to the plan.

Brian Bury, an environmental quality analyst with the MDEQ, said there are three review criteria the marina project has to meet for the department to issue a construction permit and the city's plan doesn't meet any of them. These include an evaluation of its impact on the environment, the public trust and riparian owners.

In an April 19 letter Bury wrote to city manager Mike Wiesner, he outlines the MDEQ's concerns.

One problem he mentioned is with the plan to replace the old, dilapidated sea wall which separates the land and water.

The proposal is to run the new wall in front of the existing one in order to minimize the disruption of contaminated soils in that area.

Bury said the proposal moves the sea wall "substantially further out into the water" which would require back filling into the open water area, posing an environmental impact as it constitutes habitat removal.

He advised the city to bring the wall toward land and limit the amount of open water filling that would be required.

The 67-slip dock system was also a target of criticism. And Bury made recommendations to change the plan to minimize unnecessary occupation of Round Lake.

Piers in the plan extend 220 feet at the furthest point. The northernmost pier extends 186 feet with a viewing pier running perpendicular to it.

The pier below that extends 195 feet from shore, the pier south of it 220 feet and the southernmost pier 175 feet.

Wide, open fairways in between, open view corridors to Round Lake from shore.

The pier length didn't concern Bury as much as the width did.

He said the width is an "excessive occupation of public surface waters."

"The head piers are more than what is necessary to facilitate docking or mooring of water craft," he said.

The proposed piers are about 12 feet wide and the MDEQ asked to see them reduced to about 10 feet.

Bury recommended elimination of the 130 foot dock that runs parallel to the water near the sea wall because of its occupation of public surface water.

The 30 foot wide viewing pier at the end of the northernmost pier was also frowned on as excessive.

Bury advised that this be shrunk to the size of the 10 foot head piers.

"Using a dock system to view the water is not a water dependent activity. The same area can be viewed from shore," he said.

The concerns surrounding "unnecessary infiltration of the water" Bury said constitute an impact on the public trust.

On the south side of the project, the MDEQ has also asked that the 175 foot pier be reconfigured as it impacts access to the Ward Brothers business and infringes on their riparian rights.

Bury said the department did receive a letter from the Ward Brothers objecting to the plan and in evaluating the project, concurred with them.

Based on these recommended changes Bury asked that a revised plan be submitted by May 24.

On May 19, John Schlak, with United Design Associates of Cheboygan, the city's project engineer for the sea wall and docks, submitted a letter to Bury requesting an extension to July 9 to respond to the concerns.

The extension was granted.

In the meantime Wiesner said he plans to schedule discussions with the MDEQ on this issue. And it looks as though these suggestions may be a point of contention for the city and the department.

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality has many concerns about Charlevoix's plan for a new marina.

Wiesner said that the marina design team is not working on revisions right now. He is hoping that in discussions with Bury and his staff both the city and the department will find "room for give and take."

"What was developed by the community is still our goal," he said. "I don't think it's anything we can't work out."

Wiesner is hoping they will see eye-to-eye on the viewing pier which he says gives the non-boating public access to the lake.

He also claims that the 12 foot docks are necessary and that 10 foot docks are restrictive to users.

"With electrical boxes, you're down to about six feet which will just let two people walk side by side," he said.

In January, Wiesner said he expected permits for the project to come through mid-year which would be sometime this summer. Bury said if the revised plan to be submitted in July fits the requirements of the permit the MDEQ could grant it in a matter of weeks.

Budget forces school layoffs

By KRISTINA HUGHES
Petoskey News-Review Staff Writer
And by JEREMY MCBAIN
Charlevoix Courier Editor

Jane Kanine, a support staff member at Charlevoix Elementary School, will miss watching a kid learn to read or accomplish a new task and the friendships she's forged with teachers and staff.

Monday she was one of the eight support staffers laid off.

"I'm going to miss the kids the most," Kanine said. "I'll try to volunteer, because these kids have a connection with me, and I want to see them succeed."

Kanine said she was pretty sure she would be cut.

"As far as the layoffs, they were inevitable. I know it was a hard decision," Kanine said. "But these positions are crucial to the classrooms."

Kanine's story is duplicated by the layoffs of eight teaching aides, the school nurse and a part-time teaching position, stories which are becoming too common across the state because of the state's education budget deficit.

The Charlevoix School Board approved the layoff of Debbie Boss, the library assistant at the high school, Brenda Bryan, Kim Drost, a support staff member in the middle school counseling office, Sue Goss, of the responsible thinking classroom and 2003 OPIE (Outstanding Person in Education) winner, Kanine, Margaret Myers, Tyvin Whittaker, of the focus room in the middle school, Bonnie Withrow and Sue Dixon, the elementary school nurse.

"It broke my heart to make the cuts," board member Diane Kilkenny said after the meeting. "These are people I know. They're not just people who have a job, they're community members and friends."

One of those laid-off, Goss, said she is not sure what the schools could do to save her and the others' positions.

She said cuts to the busing routes and athletic department were discussed by some of the teachers in the elementary school.

"I would like to think they have already though of those," she said.

Goss said the people that were cut are instrumental to the education of our children.

"I know four people in our building that are being cut worked directly with kids every day," she said.

Goss said she is planning on going back to school to get her master's degree in counseling.

Superintendent John Sturock met with the employees last week, and the layoffs started with the lowest seniority.

"These people are outstanding employees in the district, but unfortunately, we have to draw a line somewhere

City making fixes to plant

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor
And by JULIE WITTHOEFT
Staff writer

The city of Charlevoix is hoping its corrective action plan will be enough to save it from hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) could levy for discharge permit violations that happened at Charlevoix's Wastewater Treatment Plant.

In early April the city hired Tim Truax, a Traverse City based consultant, to identify problems at the plant and to make recommendations as to how to solve them.

Truax's report was completed late last week and included recommendations for the city and 17 equipment and safety fixes needed.

Charlevoix City Manager Mike Weisner said Monday, "We already will have, by the end of this week, 15 plus of the items taken care of."

Charlevoix Courier

Former Courier intern, Pace, hired as staff writer

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Charlevoix Courier has hired Charlevoix resident Courtney E. Pace as the new staff writer.

Courtney E. Pace

Pace began working at the Courier on Monday and will be filling the shoes of former writer Julie Witthoeft — who left the newspaper for a career as a marketing coordinator with Lexalite International in Charlevoix.

"Pace is a welcome addition to the staff and I am sure she will do a fine job keeping the citizens of Charlevoix up to date on all that is happening in this area," Courier Editor Jeremy McBain said.

This is not the first time Pace has been a member of the Charlevoix Courier staff. In 2002 she was the summer intern at the Courier, covering various feature stories around town.

In her current position, Pace will be primarily reporting on the city government of Charlevoix and the school district. She will also be writing many stories about the people and events that make Charlevoix unique and keeping readers updated on what is happening in the townships.

Pace is a December 2003 graduate of Western Michigan University with a double major in journalism and creative writing. She also graduated Magna Cum Laude from her school.

Before attending Western Michigan University, she graduated from Edward S. Marcus High School in Flower Mound, Texas.

Her mother, Diane Pace, and sister, Lindsey Pace — a Charlevoix High School graduate — live in Charlevoix.

Pace said she decided to go into journalism because she always liked writing and wanted a job where she can do what she loves and get paid for it.

"It is hard to get a job as an author, so I was looking at other writing careers," she said. "I took a journalism class and liked it."

She said it was a perfect marriage between her love of writing and her love of asking questions and finding out about new ideas and people.

In addition to being an intern for the Courier, Pace also wrote for her campus newspaper, The Western Herald for about a year-and-a-half.

Pace said she applied for the Courier position because she had worked here before and knew what it was like.

"By working here I get to know the community I live in," she said.

As for the future, Pace said she would like to write for the New York Times or Vogue magazine.

Northwest Academy salutatorian Gina Attee, 18, of Charlevoix, has joined the staff of the Charlevoix Courier as its summer news intern.

Gina Attee

Attee will be writing about two stories a week this summer on everything from the interesting people of Charlevoix to the many events that keep us entertained.

"Attee already has the makings of being a fine journalist after college. Once her schooling is up, I am sure she will make the Charlevoix community proud," Courier Editor Jeremy McBain.

Attee has been a resident of Charlevoix since her kindergarten days at Charlevoix Elementary School. When she was in the eleventh grade at Charlevoix High School, she switched to Northwest Academy because of its fine music program.

After spending the summer writing for the Charlevoix Courier, Attee will be attending Grand Valley State University where she will be majoring in English.

She said she wants to be an editor when she graduates.

She said she decided on the internship at the Courier because she wanted to learn more about the journalism profession.

Attee also works at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, where she is a lifeguard, watersafety instructor, coaches the swim team and helps out with the "aqua-size" classes.

Attee enjoys sailing, swimming and music. She plays the trumpet, flute, French horn, baritone, trombone and piano, plus she is a member of the Northwest Academy Jazz Band and Charlevoix Community Band. Her parents are Keith and Karen Attee of Charlevoix. Attee also has a brother, Cameron, who will be a junior at Charlevoix High School.

Health agency offers HIV testing

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is expanding its hours to accommodate persons who want to get tested for HIV infection in observance of National HIV Testing Day, set this year on Sunday, June 27.

To schedule an appointment for confidential and anonymous HIV testing, call (800) 432-4121 during regular business hours. Appointments are available in Emmet and Otsego counties.

Obtaining a sample for testing is quick and painless.

"We don't use needles any more to obtain a testing sample - just a mouth swab," said Bert Notestine, who coordinates the HIV Testing and Counseling Program a the health department. Notestine said it is important for everyone to know their HIV status, especially people who have engaged in risky behaviors like unprotected sex or sharing needles.

In the 20 years since the epidemic began, the medical community has made a lot of progress in diagnosing and treating HIV disease. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimate that between 850,000 and 900,000 Americans are infected with HIV.

An estimated quarter of a million people do not know they are infected, and may continue to engage in behavior that could jeopardize their health, and the health of others.

For additional information about National HIV Testing Day or the HIV Testing and Counseling Program, contact Notestine at (231) 347-5022.

Tax cuts can have a downside to area

EDITORIAL

Last week the Charlevoix Public School's Board of Education had to make a tough motion — to lay-off eight teacher's aides and the school nurse because of budget cuts.

These cuts come because there simply is not enough funding coming into the schools from the state. Charlevoix is not the only school facing this problem. Almost every school around us in northern Michigan is facing difficulty.

To make matters worse, the future does not look promising and we may have to make more cuts next year. So, while it is tough enough to lose some very valuable teacher's aides, we could be facing the prospect of cuts to the teaching staff next year, the athletic programs, the music programs, busing or any number of other departments.

So, what is the cause of this problem? Well, it all starts back in the 1990s with the passage of proposal A. Proposal A was a fantastic idea that allowed for the funding of schools in the state of Michigan, without the schools having to rely on raising property tax millages to do so. But, part of the funding for proposal A came from other state taxes, such as the gas tax, that state politicians did not like too much.

So, because the economy was so good, these politicians — who have never seen a tax they really like — started cutting away at the little taxes and not really caring or realizing that they could affect the school funding.

Then the economy went south and with it the funding for the schools. Those little meaningless tax cuts started to hurt.

While cutting taxes is always great and popular, the problem is many politicians do not realize the impact of those cuts. They do not realize that sometimes we need some taxes in order to fulfill our responsibilities to the people of Michigan — one of them being good schools.

And they still don't get it. Recently the state house passed a tax exemption for home developers because they felt this industry needed some help — which it doesn't. However, this cut will take $90 million out of the school funding budget. This tax cut does nothing to help out the people of this state, other than developers.

We need our politicians to think before they make mindless tax cuts. Yes, tax cuts are great, but can we afford it and do we have funding resources available to replace them?

Now is the time to make the right choices for school funding on the state level. Reject this lame tax exemption for developers, make other intelligent tax decisions and give our students a good education.

Keep an eye open for the destructive ash borer beetle

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

As a group, beetles are almost surely the most common sorts of creatures on land.

According to biological legend, Thomas Huxley, a diligent defender of Charles Darwin, was once asked by a clergyman what his long study of biology had taught him about the nature of God. Huxley is supposed to have replied that God must have an inordinate fondness for beetles, since he had made so many of them.

A book listing and describing only the common insects of North America has more than 600 kinds of beetles in it. If we counted the rare ones as well, around us here in America, we might find ten times that number. Worldwide the number of kinds of beetles is well up in the hundreds of thousands.

With that many possibilities, the chances are pretty good that at least a few of them cause harm to plants or animals we care about. And with all the movement of people and their products around the world, the chances of a half-inch long beetle stowing away and traveling between continents are very good indeed. Humans collectively have aided the transport of hundreds of kinds of beetles and other insects for all the centuries we have been traveling and transporting our goods and belongings.

All this is preparatory to announcing the arrival in at least one place in northern Michigan of a new and potentially destructive beetle from Asia. A creature called the Emerald Ash Borer has been in southeast Michigan for as many as 10 years. And it was found in northeast Michigan within the last year.

To put it simply, the activities of the worm-like, pre-adult ash borers can kill ash trees. They have killed thousands of ash trees in southeast Michigan and have the potential to do the same anywhere ash trees grow in the state.

The adults are pretty easy to recognize. They are a half-inch long, slender and are a brilliant emerald green. They would be out crawling and flying around near Ash trees at this time of year, especially on sunny days. You won't see the tree-boring young worms, since they are chewing away at the vital, food-transporting wood layers just under the bark. But if your ash tree is infected, you will see falling leaves and dead branches early in the summer. If there are a large number of borers, they can kill a healthy, large ash tree in two or three years. Only ash trees are harmed by the beetles and their young ones.

It is impossible to spray for only the emerald ash borer. General spraying would kill hundreds of kinds of worthwhile insects and other animals. What can be done is to help prevent them from spreading. An adult beetle can fly only a short distance and on their own the beetles would find their way to our area only after decades. But transporting ash wood, with the bark on it can carry the dormant beetles for hundreds of miles. And if the wood comes from the infested southeast quarter of Michigan, those destructive beetles can get here in one day.

Ash makes great fireplace wood and many people seek it out for that purpose, but transporting ash firewood into our area will almost certainly speed up the arrival of troublesome pests.

Over the next hundred years emerald ash borers will live and thrive anywhere there are ash trees, and we will have added an attractive beetle to our locality. But for now, protecting your ash trees is best done by trying to ensure that we don't haul the beetles around with us. The beetles are just trying to make a living and raise a family, but we don't have to help them.

Confusing remarks

Editor:

I'm confused regarding Charlevoix city Manager Mike Wiesner's recent comments in the Charlevoix Courier regarding property tax revenues and the city budget. I challenge Mike and the City of Charlevoix to publish the amount of tax proceeds collected from non-residents of second homes (especially condominiums), boat slips and other properties that don't benefit from Proposal A or require little or no city services. In addition, Charlevoix should consider reducing its capital spending on new "Bricks and Mortar" rather then taxing non-residents to the maximum and reducing teachers and other valuable city workers and services.

School should start later

Editor:

I think Middle School students should start school one hour later. The students wouldn't be as tired. Children need about 10 hours of sleep to have a good day at school.

First of all, the students are getting up too early in the morning. A) A lot of kids don't eat a great breakfast in the morning. B) Some kids have to get up at 5:30 a.m. If we start school one hour later, the parents could take their child or children to school, so the

Gymnastics center needed

Editor:

Do you want your children to stay occupied through the whole year? I am proposing a new gymnastics and dance center in Charlevoix. The center could be located at the old Quality Farm and Fleet. My first reason, gymnasts have to go out of town because there is no place for them to go in Charlevoix. Children and parents have to go to Petoskey or Boyne City for their class. Also, they have to leave early to get there on time. Another reason is, parents hate driving out of town. It takes up a lot of gas and homework time for the kids. Besides, it takes up relaxation time after a long day at work. Parents also have to stay at the center and watch their children. It would take too much gas and time to go back out of town, and then back in.

Another important reason is that the Quality Farm and Fleet is just sitting there! We should use the building for something. There is a ton of parking space as well. The building is also huge! We could fit two of everything in there. For example, bars, beams, pits, vaults and a gigantic floor!

For my last reason, East Jordan could share the new center with us. It's only 10 to 15 minutes away. While their children are in class, parents could go and shop at Kmart. It's also way overcrowded at Boyne and Petoskey.

In conclusion, the people of Charlevoix should consider putting a gymnastics center in the Quality Farm and Fleet. I really hope you go with my idea!

The small town spirit

Editor:

What wonderful small town spirit was illustrated by all those in Charlevoix who pulled together to 1) defeat Wal-Mart and 2) support the new library millages.

Whether we agree with the outcomes, we can all be proud of the "people power" who cared so much that they were willing to "think outside the box" and dare to make their dreams come true.

As a relative newcomer to the community, I was not directly involved with either project but I certainly am in awe of the pride shown and I congratulate those who made the commitment to "go the extra mile" to retain the spirit of our special community.

Wal-Mart will be back

Editor:

Charlevoix thinks they have won a victory over Wal-Mart.

Well, think again. This is not over by far.

Wal-Mart pulled out as they did in several other places. So our so called Our Town people did not win a victory. Who knows when Wal-Mart may choose to return and if so they will win just as they would have if they had not backed out.

These people who say they belong to Our Town Charlevoix, just how many of them are true natives?

How long have they been in Charlevoix? Just where did the $5,000 come from to pay for the speech of Mr. Al Noman for two hours work. Where did it come from? Us taxpayers?

The money could have been better used, than to waste it on Norman's speech. We were handed out cards to write questions and/or comments on for Norman to read and answer. But did they get to him, did they get read or answered? No!

I know for a fact that three or four cards were handed to a lady and they never did get turned in.

Letter response

Editor:

This is my response to Alec Sheets' letter to the editor in the Charlevoix Courier June 2 edition.

It is extremely puzzling to me as to what the reasoning was that prompted Mr. Sheets to divulge how the various police department unions serving Charlevoix County voted on who they are supporting for prosecutor. Because of Mr. Sheets' earlier career as an officer of the law, perhaps he feels "As go the police unions' vote," - "So should go the vote of Charlevoix County"? Is this some form of subtle coercion? My first thought was what a "cheap shot" to even do it, and then to also make it public. My second thought was most important to me and that was when Mr. Sheets referred to the prosecutor as the "Chief Law Enforcement Official." The police union ballots revealed so many votes against our Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur. This made me think, "This lady runs a 'tight ship', 'a no nonsense type person', 'do your job and do it right'"! My guess is that this would be exactly what we taxpayers deserve from our law enforcement, since our tax dollars pay their wages. Is it possible that some of those police officers aren't performing their duties to the degree they should be? In addition I also feel the people of Charlevoix County deserve to know that Mr. John Haggard, Charlevoix County Republican Party Chairman, is the father-in-law of Mr. Alec Sheets, which makes Mr. Jarema's Campaign Manager, Barbara Sheets, Mr. Haggard's daughter. (This serves as further clarification to the editor's note of 6-02-04). Several Charlevoix residents have commented to me that as chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Party, Mr. Haggard and family shouldn't be taking sides until after the primary is over. In conclusion, to be politically correct, if the Haggard family has a personal problem with our prosecutor and wish to go public with their opinions, then Mr. Haggard should resign as chairman of the Charlevoix County Republican Party.

Jill Picha

Gilbert completes her wedding book update

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

With the finishing of the updated book, "The Complete Wedding Planner," Edith Gilbert will present a book signing at 7 p.m. on June 24 at the Bridge Street Book Shop.

Edith Gilbert

The edition of the planner, which was released in May, is the fourth since 1982.

The book covers everything from marriage preparations and ceremony traditions to announcement stationery and wedding music.

"There are a lot of little things throughout the book that are helpful," said Gilbert.

Gilbert said she included "a lot more amplification on ethnic weddings, scattered families, and proxy weddings" to account for "changing lifestyles."

For example, proxy wedding details range from the history of the proxy wedding to the proxy wedding laws.

A proxy wedding occurs when either the bride or groom or not able to be present for the wedding ceremony. In this case, someone stands in to say, "I do," for the absent person.

Also, the book has information on religious faith wedding traditions, such as the new Catholic wedding tradition where the bride and groom act as hosts when the guests arrive, instead of not seeing each other before the ceremony.

Interesting heritage wedding customs range from traditional wedding dress to flower superstitions and music choice.

In the Latino wedding, for example, flowers have meanings. Dahlias and chrysanthemums may be associated with death, and yellow flowers represent contempt. Roses, on the other hand, are generally a safe choice for the wedding flowers in heritage weddings.

Question and answer sections throughout the book answer many real-life questions about the wedding as well. Inquiries such as "My fiancé would like to be married in a church, but I've always dreamed of a home wedding. How can we reach a fair decision?" and "We have chosen a beautiful wedding cake…can we freeze the top to be enjoyed on our first anniversary?" are answered in depth in the book.

You can, by the way, freeze the top of the cake if it is a commercial cake or made from fruitcake. Otherwise, homemade cakes only last about three months.

Overall, the book has undergone minor changes in all areas, with more major changes in some.

"Every chapter has amplification," Gilbert added.

Other Gilbert books that will be available for signing are "Easy Entertaining" and "Summer Resort Life: Tango Teas and All." Gilbert said she is "still very proud of 'Easy Entertaining.'"

She added that the popularity of "Summer Resort Life" has recently taken on "a second life."

Gilbert is a writer for the United Features Syndicate, the New York Times, Chicago Tribune, and a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. She has written several other books on entertaining, and is a long-time Charlevoix resident.

Kur harassment case back in the court room

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

A case pitting two former employees of the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office against Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur and the county may be headed back to court.

"It is absolutely necessary for the citizens of Charlevoix County to know of the misconduct in Kur's office and the county's liability for allowing violations of the law simply because Kur is an elected official," said one of the former employees, Sandra Ward, in a written statement.

Earlier this spring a lawsuit brought by former employees Ward, the victim assistance coordinator, and Jacqueline Rozema, an office manager for Kur, against Kur and the county for violating the Whistleblowers Act and subjected them to retaliation and a hostile work environment after giving depositions in another Whistleblowers lawsuit filed last year by former Chief Assistant Prosecutor John Jarema.

However it was dismissed by Thirteenth Circuit Court Judge Thomas Power in April because neither Rozema nor Ward were fired or forced to quit their jobs.

But, Ward and Rozema's case has new life because Ward has resigned from her position and Rozema has retired. Therefore, Powers recently granted a motion to amend the case he dismissed due to this new information.

Kur's attorney, Dennis Taylor, said, "The judge thought they had the right under court rules to amend. I thought it was rather off to amend a case that has already been dismissed."

Taylor added, "They are on the canvas. Both those lawsuits (Ward and Rozema) had already been dismissed."

Taylor also represents the county in this matter.

Parsons said, basically the judget dismissed the case because the two women had resigned. So, now that they have resigned he was willing to allow it to come back.

He added this new information comes with the additional fact that Ward had tried to get a new job in the county — he claims there were 11 openings — and she had been turned down for all of them.

Therefore, the women have added a new claim to their lawsuits — that they were discriminated against because of a disability. The disability was severe stress, which was caused by Kur, they claim.

"Rozema said working there was like working in a concentration camp," Parsons said.

The two women had taken medical leave 14 months earlier, but had remained county employees using accrued sick leave. Once the sick leave was up, wages, medical benefits and retirement contributions for the women was discontinued.

Parsons is quick to point out this lawsuit is not just because the women had a stressful work environment and their boss was mean to them. What makes this different, he said, is the stress was caused by hostile treatment based on the women's testimony in the Jarema case.

In 2002 a lawsuit was filed by former chief assistant prosecutor John Jarema claiming a violation of the Whistleblower's Act. At the county insurance provider's insistence, Jarema's lawsuit was settled in late March with a $50,000 award in his favor. Jarema is currently running against Kur for the county prosecutor's position.

In the past, Kur has denied she treated Ward and Rozema any differently due to their testimony in the case. Plus, the county commissioners on the Charlevoix County Commission's Personnel Committee found that the conditions in the prosecutor's office were bad, but ruled the women were not being harassed because they were not being discriminated against.

And because Kur is an elected official, the committee said legally they have no say in what happens in her office.

In the first lawsuit, both women wanted a judgment in their favor and "compensatory economic and noneconomic damages in an amount that is fair and just exceeding $25,000, in addition to costs, attorney fees and any other relief..."

Fire destroys abandoned building

A small fire broke out last Friday due to child's play.

The fire occurred at 3446 Marion Center Road on the property of Arthur Kuhafelhuhn in an abandoned building.

According to Fire Commander Joe Schwartzfisher, firefighters arrived on the scene at 3:52 p.m. and had the fire under control by 4:05 p.m.

"It was a misuse of ignition by a minor child," Schwartzfisher said. "It was a total accident."

No one was injured and the only damage occurred to an old abandoned building located on the property that the child was playing near.

Schwartzfisher said the abandoned building was destroyed, but will not be a monetary loss.

"The building was not worth anything," he said.

The rules of summer in Charlevoix in effect

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Sometimes the little things are forgotten when summertime rolls around and the town's population swells.

In order to keep things simple, Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson has compiled a list of eight common issues facing the city.

Halverson said the issues are not in a particular order. They are:

1) All of the city parks and beaches close at midnight.

2) No alcohol is allowed at any of the beaches after 9:30 p.m.

3) No alcohol is allowed in city parks that are within 100 feet of US-31 such as East and Hoffman parks.

4) While walking a dog the owner must possess a waste bag and be able to produce one on demand.

5) No dogs are allowed on any of the sand beaches.

6) Rollerblades, bicycles and skateboards are prohibited on sidewalks in the downtown area. Rollerblades and skateboards are also not allowed to be used on the highway.

7) No diving and/or jumping off the bridge into the canal.

8) Pay special attention to posted parking regulations such as yellow curbs and specific prohibitions at the airport, launch ramps and certain parking lots in the downtown facilities.

Halverson said all of these issues are civil and subject to ticketing at the officer's discretion. The fines for violating these issues range in cost.

Halverson said there is a $2 fine for violating meter parking and a $50 fine on the first offense for walking a dog without a waste bag and for rollerblading or skateboarding where prohibited.

But, the police department is not setting out to ticket people.

"We would rather have complaints as opposed to ticketing," Halverson said.

Along with its 6th Annual Garden Walk, "A Basketful of Gardens," the Charlevoix Area Garden Club will host a Standard Flower Show, "A Tisket, A Tasket — A Room Full of Baskets" on Wednesday, July 14.

The gardening public is invited to enter the Division II - Design Class, which entries must be preregistered by July 7. You are also encouraged to submit horticultural specimens, which may be annuals, perennials, bulbs, corms, rhizomes, tubers, hosta, hydrangea or herbs.

The Flower Show will be at the Historic Depot on Lake Charlevoix at the foot of Chicago Avenue. Both Design and Horticulture entries are to be submitted between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. (latest) on Tuesday, July 13, the day before the Garden Walk and Flower Show.

Judging will begin at 4 p.m. No entries will be accepted after 3 p.m.

Area men open floating restaurant on Round Lake

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix residents Christopher Ames and Bill Schulman are giving boaters another option for food in Charlevoix, however their restaurant is right out in the harbor with those very boaters.

Using an idea they got from the Florida Keys, Ames and Schulman have created a floating restaurant in Round Lake. Boaters can pull up to their ship, the Orca, and order some breakfast or lunch. They can also call the Orca on the telephone or CB to have some food delivered to them.

"To my knowledge this has never been tried before. I do remember someone sold stuff from the docks, but not out in the water like this," Ames said.

The Orca is open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday, starting this week. It

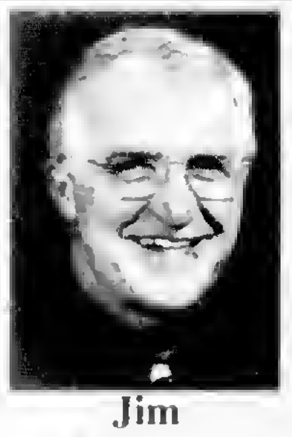
Democratic candidates for 105th seat discuss economy

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Candidates for the 105th District Democratic candidacy have some ideas of what to do about the state's economy, but unlike republicans — whose focus was solely on tax cuts — they see investment and preferences as the key.

Candidate Jim McKimmy said he has five points he believes will help the current economic environment in Michigan and the 105th District and one point that could help the future picture.



Jim McKimmy

First, McKimmy said he would support net tax incentives against the single business tax for employers whose have a net increase in "well paying" jobs. Well paying jobs, according to him, are those that pay $8 to $10 an hour, plus benefits.

Second, McKimmy said he would like to see contractor preferences in the state of Michigan for those companies that can provide goods of services to the state that are made in America.

Third, he said we would like to see the state use its investment funds — such as retirement — with the priority being on companies that can provide goods or services that are made in America. Basically, he is saying if a company can provide American made goods or supply American jobs, they will be the first choice to get funding from the state.

Fourth, McKimmy would support a plan that would give "preferred status" for contractors who bid on state work that show they have an increase in jobs at their companies.

Lastly, for short term solutions, McKimmy said when a company announced that they will be leaving the state of Michigan, he would like a rule that states they must give a 90 day notice and contribute to a retraining fund for the employees that company is leaving behind.

In the long term, McKimmy said he things the state needs to deal with heath care costs.

"This could be a significant incentive for people to come to Michigan," he said.

Currently the high cost of health care is having a negative impact on the state's economy. For example, McKimmy said GM is having trouble being competitive with other car makers due to health care costs.

McKimmy said he understands the republican candidate's desire to cut taxes, but he said the state needs to realize that we have to have money to fund our commitments — such as schools and road improvements.

"We simply cannot afford to continue to give away our tax resources without funding our commitments," he said.

For example, McKimmy pointed to a recent bill passed in the state house that would give developers tax exemptions on homes they are building for three years. While lawmakers claimed it would help revitalize the home building industry, McKimmy said what they don't realize is that this move will create a $90 million short fall in the school aid budget — which is already under financial pressures.

"It (the tax cut) exacerbates the problem," he said.

As for further promotion of the state to prospective companies — which is being pushed by several republican candidates — McKimmy pointed out that the state already has an organization called the Michigan Economic Develop-opened for business on Memorial Weekend and has been open every weekend since.

Ames said business has been good, but it is still the slow season in Charlevoix.

"It won't pick up for another week or so. But the weekends have been a nice steady flow (of customers)," he said. "Probably after another week it is going to start getting a little crazy in town."

The Orca features fresh Dunkin' Donuts daily, fresh pressed coffee and fresh bagels and muffins for breakfast each day. For lunch, it has burgers, Chicago-style hot dogs, whitefish fillets and various wraps. You can even order an appetizer of Cross Fisheries' whitefish paté and crackers or chips and gourmet salsa, as well as a host of beverages.

The Orca was originally a Department of Natural Resources research vessel that was constructed in 1946. After a lifetime on the Great Lakes, it was bought by Ames and Schulman, who outfitted it as a floating restaurant, complete with grills and coolers.

Ames said, besides the usual restaurant requirements, the Orca also has permission from the United States Coast Guard and the Charlevoix Harbor Master.

He said the rules are the Orca cannot block the shipping channel and customers cannot be on the vessel — otherwise they would have to have a ferry license.

Both Ames and Schulman are normally teachers when they are not operating their floating restaurant. Ames is a government teacher in Boyne City and Schulman is retired from a private school in southern Michigan.

Ames has a wife, Robyn, and a 7-year-old son, Brady. Schulman also has a wife, Lori, and two children, Blake, 10 and Kelsey, 12.

The Orca can be contacted by calling (231) 631-8987 or hailing it on VHF channel 9. It will have extended hours for festival weekends, including the Venetian Festival and the Charlevoix Art Fair.

McKimmy, Dean: Single business tax needed

ELECTION

ment Council whose job is to do just that.

"How much more to they (republicans) think we need to spend?" McKimmy said. "Our mission is to make sure it (the development council) is adequately funded."

Candidate Greg Dean said the key to the economy is to create an environment "that is going to make business prosper here in Michigan."

He has four ways he believes this can be done.

First, Dean said we need a properly trained workforce.

Second, he advocates the construction and maintenance of state infrastructures, such as roads. Without good roads, he said, companies can not ship their goods.

Third, he is a supporter of tax credits and abatements for new businesses — not just those who show net increases in jobs or have only American products.

Fourth, Dean said it is very important that we craft an environment that "allows the flexibility businesses need to compete on a global scale." This can be done through more smart zones and Renaissance zones that support businesses.

The point here, he said, are many of these items are already in place to help businesses. They just need to be used effectively.

As for giving state contracts only to Michigan companies, Dean said he is hesitant on supporting that. He said the state needs to get the best price for its work, plus this type of rule does not foster the spirit of competition.

And he disagrees with the republicans on ending the single business tax.

Dean said every state has some sort of corporate tax such as this and ending it is "not fiscally responsible.....unless we have something to make up for it."

Dean said the single business tax makes up about 10 percent of state funding.

"We can't just eliminate that. Ultimately we will pay for it," he said.

Mackinac Bridge climb part of annual pool auction

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

A donation from the Mackinac Bridge Authority will add a view of the Straits to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool's annual auction.

The auction will be at 6:30 p.m. on Aug. 1 at the Charlevoix Country Club.

For the past three years, the auction revenue has brought in around $70,000 and is important to the yearly pool budget.

Al Gooch, director of the pool said, "The auction is critical to the budget. It accounts for 22 to 24 percent of the budget in one night."

The pool received the Mackinac Bridge tour through a lottery program run by the Mackinac Bridge Authority. The drawing, which takes place only once a year, is restricted to charitable organizations. Twenty-five are chosen in the lottery.

The organizations that receive the tour will send two people up to the top of the Mackinaw Bridge. Only 50 people a year are able to see the site.

"There's no selling (the tours). You just can't do it all the time," said Bill Gnodtke, chairman of the Mackinac Bridge Authority. "The weather has to be right and you have to shut down one lane of the bridge to operate the elevator."

After taking an elevator to the second tier and a rung ladder to the third tier, visitors will be over 550 feet above the water. When the visibility is good, you can see over 30 miles.

"It's an awesome sight. Not many people can do it," Gnodtke added.

Among other items donated to the pool for the auction are: a cruise on the Ramsey boat, a garden party, an evening patrol with the city police, a bed and breakfast stay during the color season in Vermont, a bed and breakfast stay at the Bridge Street Inn, tennis and golf lessons, H&D road construction vehicle rides, a pool birthday party including the new pool inflatable, and a city fire truck ride, and a stay in John Haggard's Beaver Island home. To donate an item to the pool auction, contact Sue Herzog, auction coordinator, at 547-4077, call the pool at 547-0982 or pick up a form at the pool.

Sheriff warns about teenage alcohol use in county

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater reports that deputies of his office arrested 16 minors last weekend for a variety of alcohol related offenses.

All arrests took place in Hayes Township in two separate incidents.

The first arrests took place around 1 p.m on Friday, June 11 on US-31 in Hayes Township, when two Harbor Springs teens (both girls) were stopped and arrested for drunk driving, being minors in possession of alcohol, having open intoxicants in a motor vehicle and illegal use of a chemical substance. The girls both had a blood alcohol content of .22 percent.

An investigation revealed that they had purchased 16 aerosol cans of whipping cream within the last hour to inhale the nitrous oxide propellant. The investigation further showed that they had a false ID in possession and had just purchased additional beer at a Charlevoix store minutes prior to being stopped.

The second incident resulted in the arrest of 14 area teens early Sunday morning on June 13 at a residence.

Seven boys and seven girls were arrested for being minors in possession of alcohol when deputies responded to a party at a residence in the Susan Shores area. The majority of the teens at this location were almost twice the legal limit of an adult BAC of .08 percent, some being as high as .18 percent.

Lasater said he has continued concerns about teens abusing alcohol especially since he had just investigated a case of a youth being treated for alcohol poisoning at a local hospital.

Parents are asked to monitor their teens more closely and to be aware of the increasing abuse of inhalants, which can prove fatal to even a first time user. Inhalant use interrupts the flow of oxygen to the vital organs and brain and the results are usually irreversible.

Charlevoix Yacht Club weekly racing results

There were 22 boats out for the fourth scored Charlevoix Yacht Club Spring Series Race.

June 23 will be the last race of this series. The June 16 race was unique in that it was started with moderate winds which lightened and then came back.

However, the race was called after just three legs-one weather leg and two downwind legs. The new breeze filled in from the windward mark which proved to be quite advantageous to the smaller boats behind the larger, faster ones.

The June 16 race results are:

- J-22: 1) Paleface Lite (Grove) 2) Swine Flew (Strawbridge) 3) Superfluous (Jensen) 4) Fourth Rock Steady (Burley) 5) What's Her Name (Robinson) 6) Fifth-Hog Tide (Clagett)
- Jib and Main: 1) Our Thyme II (Herald) 2) Apothecary (Ochs) 3) Booma (Tyra/Gosling) 4) Flash (Gordon) 5) Flasher 5
- P-26: 1) Lost Vermonter (Tinney) 2) Artemis (Bowerman) 3) Cygnus (Stewart)

City moving quickly with wastewater plant changes

Truax said the most significant problem at the plant is the Inadequate Quality Assurance/Quality Control program. He said operators have made some improvements to this area, but more needs to be done.

This is vital to the city, Truax said, because it is the key to restoring trust with the MDEQ.

Truax suggested the city adopt a "sound and aggressive" Quality Assurance/Quality Control program "that demonstrates the ability of the laboratory to produce reliable and legally defensible analytical results."

He also said the city should put in place a comprehensive maintenance program that protects the ratepayers' investment in the plant.

And Truax said the city must "develop an overall strategy for managing solids" at the plant, as well as strength and extend the existing safety program for workers.

Of the equipment and safety issues Truax found, some examples were: a failed water circulation pump, a 6-year-old grit slurry pump, a missing rotating assembly in the RAS pump, potential ground water pollution sources from metal barrels stored on the site, abandoned equipment near drying beds, leaking ferrous chloride from a containment structure, an unsealed digester cover that creates a source of odor at the plant and unsafe concrete on a digester cover and on some stairs.

According to the city's action plan, it has been working to solve each of these issues. For example, a new water pump has been ordered, the grit slurry pump is going to be cleaned and painted, the barrels have been removed, the leak in the containment structure has been repaired for the short term until new containment structures are built and the stairs are being removed.

Weisner said next month the city also plans to bring in John Adams, an engineer from Ann Arbor.

The possible fines are related to an investigation the MDEQ started in January at the plant after receiving information from city staff that things over there just weren't adding up.

According to a letter written by Dustin Ordway, a city attorney, to Barry Selden, chief of the MDEQ's Cadillac enforcement unit, this winter city staff discovered what appeared to be violations reaching back over a three year period due to employee problems.

After getting the word from the city, the MDEQ brought in its investigative team, including Vince Woods, a detective with the MDEQ's office of criminal investigation.

The department's findings were recorded in a March report given to city manager Mike Weisner. The report included 31 chlorine limit exceedences and false reports for 15 phosphorus results and 32 fecal coliform results. The report also noted there were 27 days when monitoring did not take place and other instances when proper protocol wasn't followed.

He said one problem at the plant was that unnamed staff members were overfeeding chlorine into the treatment process. In the contact tank the water needs to mix with chlorine for 30 minutes to kill the bacteria. Shoemaker said that instead of giving the water the time it needed, an unnamed person was just adding more chlorine.

"There was too much chlorine going out," he said.

He said the high concentration of chlorine that was discharged to Lake Michigan probably killed some zebra mussels around the discharge line, but wouldn't have killed any fish.

He said aside from over-treating with chlorine, the plant also had pump problems.

According to a letter from Selden to Weisner written April 9, the city may be subject to a maximum penalty of $25,000 per violation per day and there are over 80 violations.

In a response letter from city counsel Ordway he requests that the MDEQ give the city more time to investigate and correct the problems.

"This will not only allow the city to demonstrate further its good intentions and ability to manage the WWTP (wastewater treatment plant) in a professional and compliant manner, but also will encourage all other entities to self-report and correct violations rather than attempt to hide or ignore them to avoid enforcement penalties," he wrote.

The MDEQ has not responded as to whether it will give the city more time.

Future plans for the plant as things stand right now are for a $1.5 million expansion in 2006 that will give the city 200,000 gallons a day of greater capacity. Funding for the expansion will come from $3,000 tap in fees paid by customers outside the city.

The acting supervisor there is now Jim Caldwell.

Coast Guard to have boat safety program in East Park

Coast Guard Station Charlevoix will host a series of family-oriented events from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., June 25 in recognition of National Safe Boating Week.

The event is open to the public and will be at East Park in downtown Charlevoix. It will feature activities for children and boating safety demonstrations.

The demonstrations will include how to use fire extinguishers and flares, cold water and drown-proofing demonstrations, damage control (how to stop a sinking boat) and knot tying.

"Coastie," a radio-controlled talking boat will be at the park to educate children on boating safety. There will also be a children's boating safety obstacle course where children race to rescue "Oscar" and become an honorary boat crewmember of the Coast Guard.

The final demonstration of the day will be a Coast Guard rescue vessel and helicopter performing a simulated rescue mission of a sinking boat and person in the water.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary will also be conducting free vessel safety examinations at the Charlevoix City Marina. Representatives from the Coast Guard Auxiliary and the Charlevoix Fire Department will also be providing safety information.

School budget already looking grim for next year and draw a line now," Sturock said.

BUDGET

Sturock said to meet the school board's policy for a fund balance, the school had to make the cuts of $800,000 going into the 2004-2005 school year.

The school board approved $796,078 in budget cuts; $384,733 through attrition — two teachers and three support staff members retired, the positions will not be filled, $298,305 through the layoffs of eight teaching aides, a part-time teacher and the school nurse; $8,000 to eliminate the subsidy of the driver education program, $40,000 to reduce teaching supplies.

If the school made no cuts, Sturock said he anticipates that the fiscal year would end with less than $100,000 in the fund balance.

The school board policy requires a minimum fund balance of 8 percent of the previous year's expenditures, which would cover operational costs for two months.

Sturock said the decision, which was difficult, was unavoidable. The board's first priority was to maintain its academic programs and class size, despite stagnant state funding.

Across the state, stagnant state funding, rising costs of health care and retirement are forcing schools to not replace retiring teachers, lay off teachers and increase class sizes.

"We could be sitting here next spring looking at another round of cuts," Sturock said. "I hate to paint a picture of dark and gloom, but unfortunately that is the picture for state funds.

"We're not out of the woods yet, the cuts could be deeper next year."

Sturock said the only way to help schools is through the legislature. He said, past legislature cuts to taxes which were used to help school funding have contributed to this problem.

"During the 1990s we had a general surplus of money. So our legislature and governor (John Engler) decided to reduce other taxes schools get money from (gas, lotto and others). There have been 20 to 30 different initiatives that have been passed through those years that have taken away from the school fund. Now we are losing $500 million a year."

He added, "We are bleeding slowly until some of those things happen (increases in state funding to the schools). I don't think legislators have an understanding of what is going on at the local school level. Parents need to write them and tell them."

Elementary school principal Dick Swenor said the schools were fortunate to not have to lay off any teachers. Swenor said the district's objective was to affect programming as little as possible.

Amid all the cuts, the Charlevoix school board did not cut athletic staff positions this year. The school board plans to generate approximately $65,000 by raising ticket prices, passes and implementing reserved seating.

"We did look at trying to maintain the athletic program, it's not that we didn't touch it, we looked at an alternative way to fund athletics by the outside to continue to offer the program," Sturock said. "If we didn't do that we would have had to make cuts to the athletics."

However, the athletic budget was cut, along with others, last year.

Last year, the school cut more than $800,000. The district reduced the staff by three full-time and three part time teachers and two support staff. The athletics department was reduced by nine assistant coaches and the middle school athletic director position.

The school reduced teaching supplies, textbooks, office supplies and library supplies by 70 percent, travel and fees were reduced by 20 percent.

The school district hopes to maintain its programs with less support staff.

Some support staffers who were not laid off were put in different jobs. Kanine spoke on behalf of Coreen Henry and Judy Russell, library staff members at the Charlevoix Elementary School and Middle School media center for more than 25 years, whose positions were eliminated.

Kanine asked the board to consider keeping their positions.

"Your disregard for Henry and Russell and their commitment to their jobs is very difficult for me to understand," Kanine said. "You have made these two individuals and what they do for Charlevoix Public Schools expendable."

The school board did not comment on their positions.

Sturock said he appreciates the position of the letter Kanine gave to the board, but the positions are determined by the building principals. Sturock said unfortunately these decisions have to be made, "Can we afford someone in the library when we need someone in the classroom or in a different capability?"

Henry, the 2004 OPIE winner, who has played an instrumental role in the library for 26 years, loves the interaction with kids and teachers. Henry said she's been lost since the news.

"I'm dazed," Henry said. "I would like to finish 30 years in the school. I'm single, I have to rely solely on my income; I would like to have a retirement I can survive on," she said.

Henry said she realizes what's happened to her is part of a domino effect from the state and federal funding, and is more concerned for her friends who were laid off.

"My heart goes out to the assistants laid off; they come in contact with the children and the children will all suffer from it," she said.

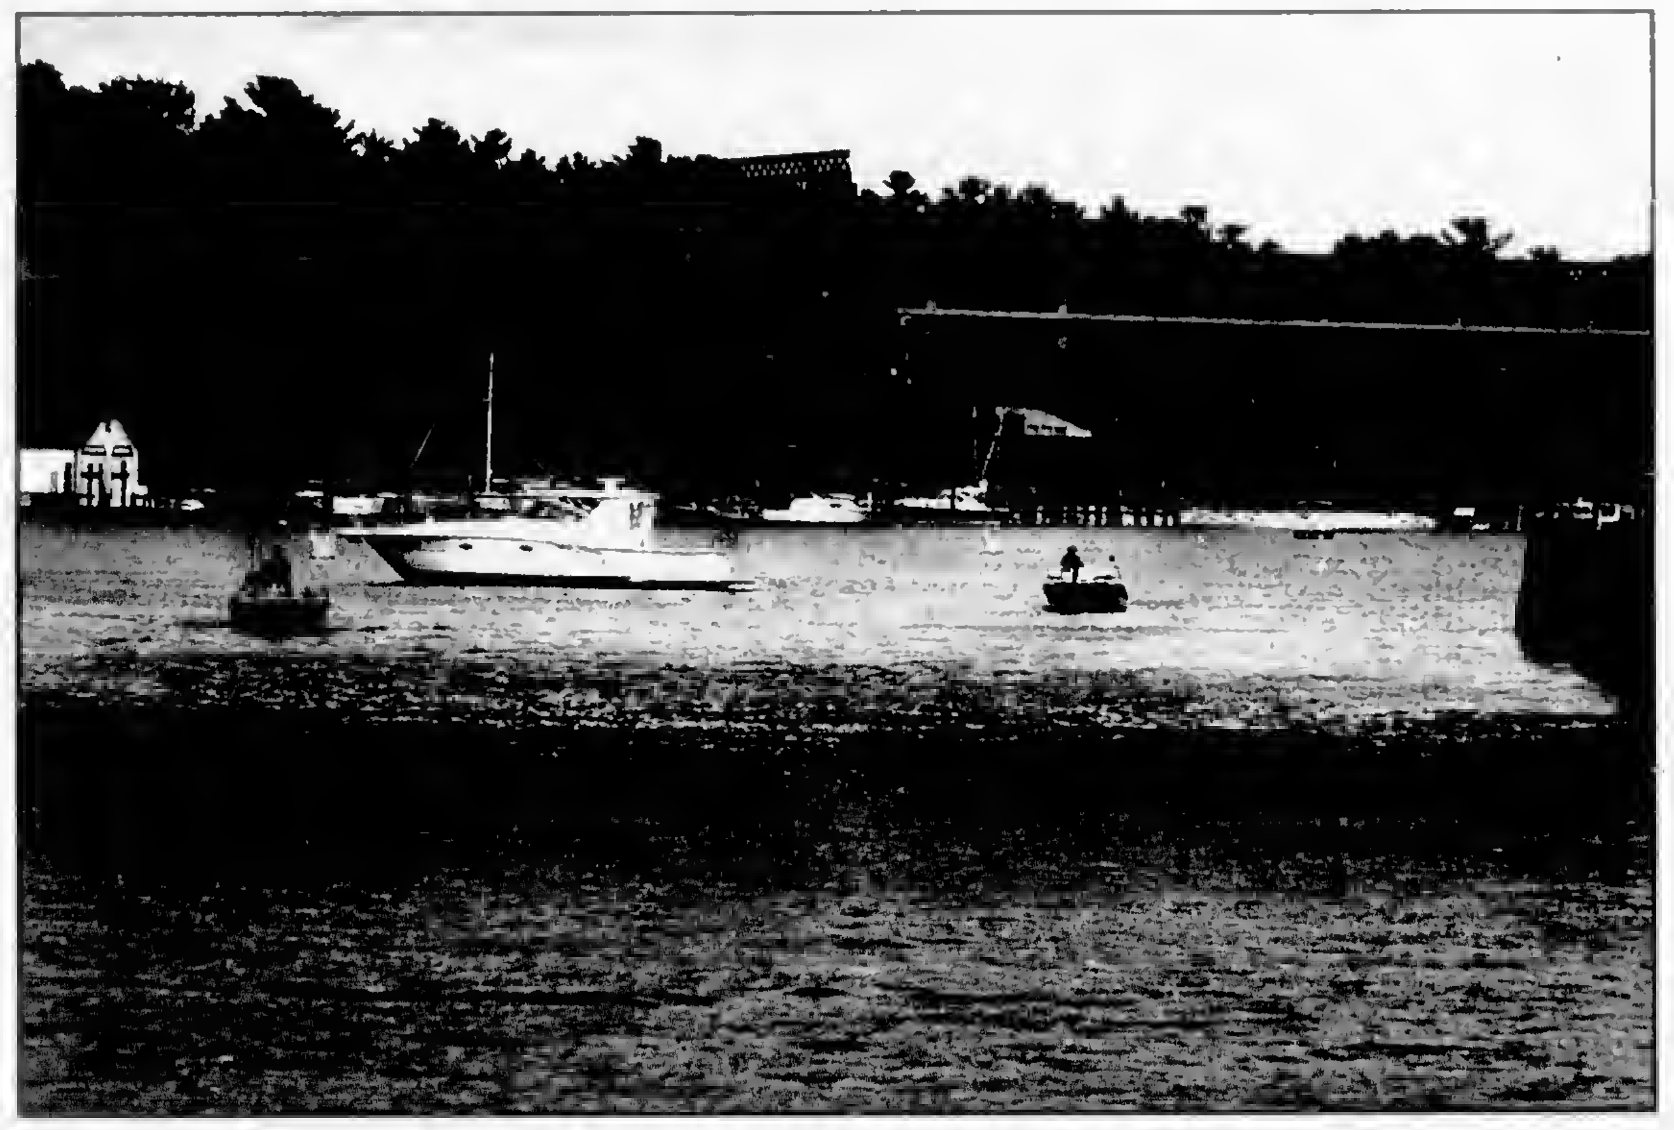
Bridge gets stuck

Local traffic rerouted around lake

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer



Photos by Courtney E. Pace

(Above) The downtown Charlevoix bridge was stuck open at 5 to 6 feet for about two hours. Traffic on the roads and waterways backed up. (Below) The Emerald Isle had to back in and dock at the South Pier until around midnight because the bridge couldn't open. People and luggage were taken off the boat, but the vehicles remained.

On Sunday night many visitors and residents of Charlevoix had to change their evening plans when the Charlevoix bridge refused to go down.

During the 5:30 p.m. opening of the bridge in downtown Charlevoix everything was running smoothly until the bridge would not close, leaving a 5 to 6 foot gap. The interruption in traffic kept both sides of the bridge isolated.

"It's just one of those things that happens," said Tom Irvin, North Region Maintenance Superintendent for Michigan Department of Transportation.

Irvin, who has been in bridge maintenance for 35 years — with 10 years in this area — has never seen anything like it before.

He said the bridge stopped functioning due to a limiter switch that functions similar to a sensory switch in a car that prohibits the engine from starting if the car is not in park.

"It was sending a false signal that the brakes were on, but they weren't, so it wouldn't allow power to the bridge," Irvin said.

The bridge was open for about two hours until workers managed to close it, allowing traffic through.

Irvin said electricians from the Department of Transportation who are familiar with the bridge drove up from Lansing in order to diagnose the problem. Once the problem was identified a replacement part was put in, which cost $50.

Irvin said the bridge became fully functional at about 2 a.m. Monday morning.

The bridge caused not only traffic to back up, but boater traffic as well. The Emerald Isle was coming into port from Beaver Island while the bridge was still not fully functional.

The boat docked at the South Pier and stayed there for several hours. Emergency personnel helped passengers off the boat and helped to unload luggage. Everything was taken off the boat except vehicles.

The Emerald Isle stayed docked in Pine River Channel until about midnight when the bridge was able to be opened.

Beaver Island Boat Co. General Manager Margo Marks said there were four cars and one semi-truck aboard when the boat docked in its usual spot in Round Lake.

"Most people were cooperative," Marks said. "There was one couple where the woman had to have a kidney dialysis (the next day)."

Marks said there was an incident with the bridge last year, but the boat was not affected because of the timing.

City Manager Michael Weisner said police, fire and emergency medical service (EMS) personnel

Horton Bay parade featuring 'parties'

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Since 1976, the annual Horton Bay parade has been going strong, and this year the tradition will continue.

The Horton Bay parade isn't like other parades. Commercial entries are not allowed.

In response to commercial parades, John Rohe, the parade's coordinator, said, "That's not entirely what our forbearers had in mind."

Rohe added, "This parade is different. People don't come here with an economic motive."

Each year there is an extravagant theme for the parade, for which all the entries are based on. This year the theme of the parade is "Election Year Politics," and will focus on the different "parties" of the area.

Themes of past years range from last year's "The Cradle of Civilization" to "The Horton Triangle" and "Columbus's 500th Anniversary."

The parade, Rohe said, is a "resourceful and ingenious commentary."

Each year, an award is given to one outstanding citizen involved with the Horton Bay parade. Last year, it was awarded to Sheriff George T. Lasater. This year the award will go to Betty Kelts, who was born and raised in the Horton Bay area.

Despite losing both her legs to diabetes, Kelts has been faithfully participating in the parade since 1976. Inspired by John Hartwell, who participated in the parade yearly until his death, Kelts said, "I don't give up anything if I can help it."

When asked about her proudest moment in the parade, Kelts said, "I'm proud of it every time I'm in it."

This year Kelts will serve as Grand Marshall to the Horton Bay parade.

The parade will be at 1 p.m. on July 4 on Boyne City road in Horton Bay. The event will take place rain or shine. It is suggested that you come early for the event to find a place to park and somewhere to sit.

If you would like to participate in the Horton Bay parade, you can pick up an entry form at the Horton Bay General Store or call John Rohe at 347-7327.

Registration must take place on or before July 1.

Charlevoix veterans to host July Fourth parade

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

On July Fourth, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1153 will be sponsoring a parade of patriotic proportions.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1153 Commander Charlie Butcher said the parade will start at 10 a.m. at the American Legion Post in Charlevoix on East Garfield. The parade will progress down Bridge Street, culminating with brief ceremonies in East Park.

Guests featured in the parade will include the American Legion Post 226, the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliaries and the Marine Corps League Northern Detachment. However, Butcher said the parade is not limited to those involved with any organization.

"All veterans are invited to march," he said.

Veterans will be accompanied by the Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts and Brownies. Children who want to decorate their bicycles are welcome to ride in the parade.

According to Butcher, all the candidates running for public office are invited to join in the march.

As every parade needs something that will enable it to stand apart from the rest, Butcher said onlookers will be able to watch as two historic vehicles roll past them.

A World War II 1941 General Motors Corp. 2.5 ton 6-by-6 from European Theater of Operations, owned by Butcher himself, will feature a replica of a .50-caliber Browning M2 machine gun, he said. The other vehicle is a Vietnam War Mighty Mite Jeep owned by Graham Barton.

Butcher said the marchers will be accompanied by Gary Stutzman and the Charlevoix City Band.

Summer events are already successful

EDITORIAL

This summer is already proving to be a great one in Charlevoix.

Already we have seen two new events taking place in Charlevoix's East Park — both of which were fantastic ideas.

First was the Taste of Charlevoix hosted by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. The chamber has been on a roll lately creating new and fun activities for Charlevoix residents and visitors, first with the Charlevoix St. Patrick's Day Pub Crawl — which was slightly marred by someone who attempted to dye the Pine River Channel — and now with this Taste of Charlevoix event.

With this new event, restaurants from throughout Charlevoix gave visitors to East Park a taste of what they have to offer. East Park was packed with people munching on meat, soups and wonderful desserts made by local chefs. And they washed it down with their choice of delicious beverage — be it wine, beer or something non-alcoholic.

This was a great idea formulated by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. It not only brought people to the downtown area, but it also gave area merchants and restaurants a chance to show off what they have. Keep up the good work chamber.

The next great event was the Boating Safety Day sponsored by the United States Coast Guard, Charlevoix unit, in East Park. This event brought kids and adults to East Park to learn more about how to be safe while on the water and what the Coast Guard does.

This was done through a series of fun games for kids and adults — such as trying to walk with goggles that represent different levels of intoxication and learning water safety from a talking robotic boat.

Plus, this event was hosted at the perfect time for residents and visitors. With summer soon to get underway in full force, the lakes will be packed with boaters. Now, hopefully, those boaters know what to do in an emergency.

Kur is a great prosecutor

Editor:

Charlevoix the Beautiful! — A town we always loved to visit, a town that we thought was safe and protected from crimes found in large cities. Never in our wildest dreams did we think our son would be in any danger. The most horrific act of violence was committed in your county, an act of violence that forever changed our lives. Scott was murdered by a stranger, someone who made the choice to take a life.

It became a nightmare for us. We were thrown into a world that we knew little about: lawyers, judges, juries, police policies and our justice system. We met at the office of the Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County. We were scared to death, we had no idea what to expect or what kind of questions to ask. We are originally from the Detroit area and we were afraid we would just be a number, one more case on the docket. When we entered Mary Beth Kur's office, she showed compassion and kindness. She explained the process to us in terms we could understand and she showed us her determination that justice would be served.

We feel that we were very fortunate to have Mary Beth Kur on our side. Her knowledge and her experience in the courtroom proved to us that she would represent our son in a professional manner and that her skills would put our son's murderer behind bars.

During the trial, Mary Beth was there for all of Scott's relatives and friends that attended. If any of them had any questions or concerns, she always made herself available to answer them. It has been two years since the trial and in that time, Mary Beth Kur has kept us informed of any events that have taken place. Her character and her knowledge as a prosecuting attorney proved to be to our benefit. We cannot thank her enough. We have developed a friendship that is deep with respect and we are sure it will continue to grow.

We have heard from some friends in Charlevoix about the rumors that are being said about Mary Beth Kur. We all know that politics can be unfair and cruel, mudslinging is so unnecessary. Please remember when you, the Charlevoix County voter, go to the polls, please vote on the candidate's abilities, skills and experience. Vote on the facts, not the rumors. We would not have gotten through this heartbreaking ordeal without the skills and compassion of Mary Beth Kur.

Bush should respect the law

Editor:

Great! We finally bave a president who is above the law.

The Geneva convention (includes rules governing the treatment of prisoners) is now null and void according to Mr. Ashcroft, our Attorney General, and Mr. Bush. This sbould make our own troops really happy if they ever are captured.

It's no secret that our president prefers to be the "Lone Ranger" and be above the law-whether it's about the Geneva Conventions, abandoning the ABM Treaty with Russia, the Kyoto Protocol on global warming, the treaty to rid the world of land mines or gutting the Clean Air Act. It's not just about us — "it's tbe world, stupid!"

You can't just set aside treaties that will protect our own troops, if captured, using the excuse that the Taliban or al Qaida do not represent a country and therefore are not subject to the Geneva Conventions on prisoners. We must remain a nation of laws and do the right thing.

Office not as described

Editor:

In a June 23, 2004 article in the Charlevoix Courier, Jacqueline Rozema was quoted as saying "working there [in the Prosecutor's Office] was like working in a concentration camp."

We have all worked in the Prosecutor's Office with Sandra Ward and Mrs. Rozema, and their statements of harassment are completely false.

The casual use of the term "concentration camp" to describe the conditions of working in the Prosecutor's Office is not only inaccurate but is an insult to the victims who suffered in such camps and diminishes the actual meaning of their horrific experiences. We are proud of our collective service to the citizens of Charlevoix County and look forward to continuing to serve.

Letter response on Norwood

Editor:

I am responding to a letter written to the editor, published Wednesday, June 16, 2004, under the title of "Road Follow Up" by Marion Shea-Light.

In her letter about the township supervisor, (Mr. Wayne Boss), Ms. Light says and I quote, "After seven months of asking for a road report, I still don't have it and Mr. Boss said at the last township board meeting that he doesn't plan to do one." In our board minutes from the last meeting May 18, 2004 which are now recorded for public knowledge, Mr. Boss's response was, I quote, "The road priority plan will be prepared so the board can look at it in June." It was on the agenda for the June 21, 2004 meeting and Mr. Boss delivered it and it is now recorded in tbe minutes of that meeting for public knowledge.

I have attended all seven meetings that Ms. Light has referred to in her letter, and I heard Mr. Boss respond, when asked about the delivery of the report, by saying he would try to have it at the next meeting. Only at the May 16, 2004 meeting did Mr. Boss say that he would have it at the June meeting, and he did. I would like to inform the public that Ms. Light's statement was a half truth and in my opinion I believe this was done to mislead the public as to the intent of our township supervisor.

Frankly I am ashamed of one of our planning commission members for making a half-truth statement like this about our supervisor. Mr. Boss has tried to keep peace in this troubled community for a while now and I believe it is because of the elections coming up in August that some people are trying to make him out to be a person of poor character. Shame on all of you people who try to resolve issues by attacking and trying to belittle someone just because you don't get what you ask for. This is not in the best interest of our township, nor is it a form of conduct to be used hy a person in a leadership position.

People of Norwood, please come and attend the meetings and see just what is going on here.

Unite for the sake of a better and safe township, one that is friendly and warm.

Thank you

Editor:

I just wanted to take this opportunity to thank everyone who was involved in making our first "Taste of Charlevoix" event a big success! There was a large turnout, the weather was fantastic and we were selling tickets nonstop from 11 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. Several vendors sold out of food early or had to re-stock during the day.

We even had people come after 4 p.m. wanting to know if there was any food left!

I had nothing but positive feedback from all of those who joined in on the festivities. I would like to thank all of our participating vendors, the chamber member businesses who donated their time or materials to the Taste event, the Taste of Charlevoix Committee members, the City of Charlevoix and its staff, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and its staff, and all of the volunteers who helped that day. Without all of you, this would not have been such a success!

We look forward to next year's event and making it even more successful and enjoyable for our community.

Foundation's youth committee gives out grants

When the Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee surveyed their peers last year, they found their highest concerns included alcohol and substance abuse, and lack of recreational facilities.

This spring with these issues in mind, the Youth Advisory Committee recommended awards totaling nearly $30,000 to republish a book to help counsel teens with substance abuse problems, as well as funding assistance for a variety of sports facilities from a skate park to a non-motorized trail.

There were 13 non-profit organizations receiving Youth Advisory Committee money for 14 programs within this funding cycle. The organizations, the successful projects and amount of the grant awards are as follows:

- Bay Area Substance Education Services (BASES) — $3,000 to support the reprint and update of the publication "Young People in Recovery."
- Camp Daggett — $2,600 to replace a variety of recreational equipment needed to expand programs, add variety and increase safety for the summer camping program.
- Challenge Mountain — $2,000 to add environmental education activities in a new program pairing seniors witb at-risk youth called "Bridging Bridges in the Volunteer Gap."
- Charlevoix Area Skate Park — $7,000 towards the construction of a skate park facility in Charlevoix to insure a safe place for skateboarders and in-line skaters.
- Child and Family Services — $1,350 to provide materials and instruction for foster parents to prepare a scrapbook style record of the life of the child in their care.
- East Jordan Public Schools — $228 to provide lunch for the East Jordan honors students during the third annual spring cleanup of the Jordan River.
- MSU Extension, Charlevoix County — $1,500 to provide stipends for low-income, high-risk youth to participate in 4-H programs.
- MSU Extension, Charlevoix County — $500 towards the "Take a Day On" program to promote leadership training and volunteerism among youth in Boyne Falls Public Schools.
- Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency — $425 to provide local match support for the Head Start "Reading is Fundamental" program.
- Raven Hill Discovery Center — $4,220 toward the "Backyard Environmental Education" BEE project that focuses on improving teacher and student science processing skills of observing and measuring.
- Top of Michigan Trails Council — $3,000 to provide engineering costs for the proposed Charlevoix to Boyne City non-motorized trail link.
- Crooked Tree Arts Council for VSA Arts of Michigan — $2,500 to support a barrier-free arts festival for special needs students.
- Planned Parenthood of Northern Michigan — $487 to support the continuation of the "Out of the Locker Room" program for teenage boys.

Garden club announces poster contest winners at tea

Each May it may not be the goal of the Youth Education Committee Poster Contest Tea to enjoy the smiling or sometimes earnest faces of the Kindergarten-Sixth Grade children who are poster contest winners, but that is the outcome.

The tea is actually conducted to celebrate the accomplishments of children who create winning posters. The contest is offered by National Garden Clubs, Inc.

In the Fall of 2003 two art teachers — Lori Bolt and Mary Beth McGraw — assisted the elementary students in creating posters around two themes: the classic poster "Smokey the Bear/Woodsy the Owl," and the 2003 theme "Plant a Garden for the Future." The posters were then judged at four levels: Locally-by Charlevoix Area Garden Club Youth Education Committee; statewide-by Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan; regionally-by Central Region of NGC; and nationally-by National Garden Clubs.

At the May tea the committee announced to a gathering of parents, teachers and students the local awards of their second and first place by grade and the Grand Prize winners in both thematic categories.

The Grand Prizes of a Blue Ribbon, a U.S. Savings Bond, and framed certificate were awarded to: Sammy Hovie, first grader from Charlevoix's Elementary School for "Smokey the Bear/Woodsy the Owl" and Megan Zawisza, sixth grader from St. Mary's Elementary School for "Plant a Garden for the Future."

The committee also said Sammy Hovie, David Kirk, Erin Stebe, Josh Hogan, Trenton Bradley, and Krista Pischner received awards from the FGCM Committee. Later the committee learned that Sammy Hovie was awarded first place for first grade and Krista Pischner of St. Mary's was awarded first place for sixth grade for "Plant a Garden for the Future" by FGCM. Hovie also received an award of distinction and Krista Pischner placed First in her category at the Central Region level. Pischner then went on to receive a Third place award nationally.

Children's House presents new web site

Charlevoix Children's House has just finished a very successful year and is reaching forward to the next with enthusiasm.

In its quest to stay current with the demands of modern technology, the Montessori school has launched a new web site, charlevoixchildrenshouse.org.

Barbara Godwin-Chulick, directress of the school, hopes the site will promote the Montessori community.

"The heart of a Montessori School is the community of its families and supporters. The heart of a community is communication. We hope to use the site to communicate not only with our families, but with the broader population and other Montessori communities," she said.

The site includes contact information and details of the Children's House philosophy. It also includes an extensive explanation of the Montessori Method and links to seek additional information through e-mail or other web sites.

Portions of the site that are soon to be added, include teacher's resource links to enhance the classroom activities and a funding page to address the growing financial hurdles quality education faces in today's economy.

Annette Nesburg, board president, is hoping the site will assist in the crucial area of fund-raising for the non-profit school.

"As funding becomes increasingly difficult, we need to be very efficient and creative in enhancing the program for our families. We strive to provide excellence in education, and a supportive community for our teachers and families. We hope the website will prove to be a creative and inexpensive resource to enhance our children's experience," she said.

The site will be updated routinely and is hosted free of charge by PSD Solutions of Charlevoix. For additional information on Montessori education and the Charlevoix Children's House, please refer to charlevoixchildrenshouse.org or call the Charlevoix Children's House at 547-5599.

Charlevoix family takes part in 100 mile run

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Three Charlevoix residents and family members gave their time and energy to raise money to help save lives.

Tennille Dhaseleer, Josh Dhaseleer and Abraham Dhaseleer recently got back from Grand Rapids where they participated in the 26th Annual 100-Mile Run Against Cancer (American Cancer Society Run-Stride for Life). The race is given each year in Grand Rapids during the third week of June.

The race is organized by Strides for Life, but Tennille Dhaseleer said over 95 percent of the proceeds is given directly to the American Cancer Society, which is then given back to the county where each participant raised money.

Suzanne Kozloski, a committee member of Strides for Life, said the group raised about $25,000 to $30,000 this year. She said the total is not completely ready yet since some donations are still coming in.

Next year's goal is $50,000.

Dhaseleer said each participant is required to raise $125 a day, which over the four day period totals a minimum of $500 per entrant. Dhaseleer said she and her husband, Josh, raised more than the minimum each.

"Josh and I probably raised about $1200," she said.

Dhaseleer said the money she, Josh and her brother-in-law, Abraham, raised will come back to Charlevoix County to be used for several things such as research, county programs and educational programs put on through the American Cancer Society.

This year was Dhaseleer's fourth time to run the race, but the first time to do so while 15 weeks pregnant. Those close to her have joked about her baby being the youngest person ever to run 100 miles.

"I took everything easy," she said. "I felt great."

Dhaseleer became interested in Strides for Life through her father, Steve Tchozeski, who has run the race for 13 years. Dhaseleer said her father probably found out about the race through fellow runners or a flyer, but it was the cause that kept him coming back along with his love for running.

"He ran in high school and college and continued to run," she said. "He also coached high school cross country."

Dhaseleer said this was her husband's second year to run it.

"In December 2001, Josh and I got married and I brought him along," she said. "Then he roped his brother in."

Dhaseleer said the combination of running and fighting cancer is what keeps her coming back.

"It's gratifying to run that much and to raise money for a non-profit organization," she said.

The 100 miles is run in 25 mile increments spread out over four days. Food, water and medical aid are provided for the runners along the way by volunteers with Strides for Life.

"It's run by a committee comprised of both runners and staff volunteers, not American Cancer Society officials," she said.

The event is not run as a race, Dhaseleer said, but rather as a group effort.

"The goal is just to finish," she said. "When we approach the finish we all meet and then run in together."

Dhaseleer said the group starts out together, but each individual runs the first 5 miles according to their personal pace. Then all the runners congregate for a break and start out together again for the next 5 miles.

"You really feel like a community at the end," she said.

Suzanne Kozloski, a committee member of Strides for Life, said there is a time limit of completing five miles in an hour due to the groups' small size and the amount of distance the race covers each day.

"In order to make things happen on time and give people who donate meals a designated arrival time, we have the runners group every five miles," she said.

According to Dhaseleer, the race began when two or three men wanted to raise money for the American Cancer Society so they decided to host a run. The original distance was from Grand Rapids up to the Mackinaw Island Bridge, which Kozloski said proved too much for most people.

"Not everyone wants to run that far, but it was very successful," she said.

The race was then modified to 200 miles over an eight day period and ran from Detroit to Grand Rapids. Kozloski said it stayed at 200 miles for awhile until it was changed once more to the current 100 miles in a four day period.

Ages of participants range from about 17 to people in their 60s, but Kozloski said some children have run along side their parents for at least 5 miles.

The reasons people run vary, Dhaseleer said, but most know someone or were affected by cancer themselves or just want to help fight the disease.

"It seems like it's (cancer) so prevalent that we're all touched by the disease," she said.

The cost to register is $20, which Dhaseleer said is used to hold one's spot. Other than that Dhaseleer said there is not much expense because food and lodging is included.

Band boosters weeding petunias for new uniforms

Charlevoix Band Boosters weeding the beds.

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

The Charlevoix Band Boosters organization has committed to a summer of weeding the Charlevoix petunia beds to raise money for new marching band uniforms.

The organization is employed by the city and at $20 an hour per person they have raised about $3,000 in two days of weeding.

"We hope to raise between $10,000 and $12,000 doing the weeding," said Sue Barta, a band parent and an active participant with the band boosters.

The band boosters organization was granted the petunia weeding project as a result of a bid submitted to the city.

"That's what I wanted. We're paying for service, but it's going to the kids," said Gabe Campbell, mayor.

The city has put the cap on the amount at $14,000. The total cost of the uniforms is $35,000 and will be paid off over the next couple years.

The money that is collected will go to replace the over 20-year-old uniforms with new pants, tops and raincoats. The hats that the school has now are still relatively new and will not be replaced at this time.

With the uniform order placed already, Barta said that they will "hopefully be in for fall marching season."

"I just want new uniforms while I'm still drum major," said Jonathon Merrill, who will be a senior at Charlevoix High School in the fall.

Members of the band boosters are not the only participants in this fund-raiser.

"So far we've had between 15 and 20 people working on the weeding. We're looking for as many as we can get," Barta said.

If you would like to help out with the weeding fund-raiser or if you would like to make a donation to Charlevoix Band Boosters, please call Jamie Thomas at 582-0035 or Sue Barta at 547-4988.

Another fund-raiser for the uniforms is a raffle for a DVD player that members of the band won during their trip to the Great Wolf Lodge. Susie Wine is the winner of this raffle.

The spaghetti dinner event each February, put on by the band booster organization, also raises around $3,000.

Charlevoix High School building new fitness center

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

With the addition of a new fitness center to Charlevoix High School, students will have access to workout equipment such as free-weights, machines and elliptical trainers without losing valuable practice space.

Charlevoix High School principal Gary Grundman said the center will be used in conjunction with the already existing sports deck, which is an open space where different sports teams can practice.

"We will now have a first class fitness center for students and auxiliary fitness area," Grundman said.

Construction of the new center was necessary, Grundman said, in order to keep the sports deck open for its intended use.

"All of the equipment would fit in the sports deck, but you could not do much else than use the track," Grundman said.

The new fitness center is located off the main gymnasium on the southeast corner of the school.

The facility will provide a workout area for weight-training while leaving the multi-purpose Sports Deck open for a wide variety of athletic use such as cheerleading, baseball and volleyball practice.

According to Grundman, the new center will be available during the school day for all athletes, physical education students and coaches.

Fitness for Life, Body Kinetics and Lifetime Sports are three classes that will be utilizing what the new fitness center has to offer.

Construction on the center began on May 3 and is scheduled to be complete by Aug. 15. Grundman said, a large number of Charlevoix High School students are involved in athletics and physical education, but the number of students will not be a problem due to the center's size.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent John Sturock said the fitness center is 3,200 square feet, which is quite larger than the original size of 2,900 square feet. The center is under contract for $494,000, but the size increased due to construction costs.

The funding for this project is coming from the district's sinking fund.

"When the bids came in they came in very favorably so we decided to add more square footage," Sturock said.

With its current size, Grundman said the facility will be able to hold a class of about 30 to 36 students.

"With three students per station we figure we can get a whole class in there," Grundman said.

Local Coast Guard units give boating safety lessons

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

United States Coast Guard and Auxiliaries had the first Boater Safety Day in East Park from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Friday.

There were several stations set up where patrons could learn tips that will help enable them to become well-informed boaters.

Executive Petty Officer Nicholas A. Gould said the idea behind the Boater Safety Day is to educate people in order to prevent future problems.

Activities available during the Boater Safety Day included an area where adults and kids could try to walk in a straight line while wearing Fatal Vision goggles that represent different levels of intoxication.

Gould said the Fatal Vision goggles were donated by the Michigan State Police.

Gould said the objective was to enable people to realize that if they can't walk straight due to a pair of goggles, then they aren't functioning normally when under the influence.

The different levels of intoxication ranged from .06 to .20 with day and night versions available.

Both adults and children learned how to tie a proper knot and how to use a carbon dioxide fire extinguisher in case of emergency.

One station that captured the attention of wide-eyed children was Coastie.

This station featured a robot boat named Coastie that told children about boating safety through interaction.

The boat blinks, lights up and even features a siren and bell.

"We use them for teaching boater safety to the kids," said Gene Plite, Auxiliary Coastie Operator.

Plite asked Coastie questions, while Auxiliary Coastie Operator Preston Long answered using a remote-controlled radio system. Long kept himself hidden from the mystified eyes of the children.

Petty Officer Eric Koch and Auxiliary Kaylee Kughman ran the Kids Boater Safety Obstacle Course, which was a timed competition.

Children suited up in helmets and life jackets and ran as fast as they could to a life preserver. From here they threw the preserver to a dummy lying next to a boat, representing an overboard situation.

The children then placed the dummy in the boat and pulled the boat across a finish line.

"They received certificates naming them honorary boat crew members of the Coast Guard," Koch said.

Koch later gave information to the crowd during the Life Float Demonstration while Seaman Edward Schwager treaded water in order to act out what Koch said.

Koch told the crowd that they could turn a pair of pants into a life preserver should they be in the water without one.

Skatepark slowly becoming reality

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Charlevoix Community Skatepark is coming closer to finally opening its ramps and spines to those brave enough to try them.

At last Monday's City Council meeting, several members of the Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. met to share with the council what they need in order to open.

One of the issues concerned liability and insurance of the skatepark should an accident occur.

City Manager Mike Weisner said an endeavor like the skatepark is covered by governmental immunity if it is owned by a city. However, that immunity is lost when the park is privately owned.

Weisner and members of Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. met with City Attorney Jim Young to discuss possible avenues to take in order to ensure liability does not remain an issue.

"It appears this thing is heading toward city ownership for liability purposes," Weisner said.

Vickie Daman, president of Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc., said if the city should decide to take ownership of the park, skatepark members will work on a volunteer basis.

Vicki Hankins, secretary of Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc., said if everything works out as planned, the city would assume ownership and operate it in a legal way, leaving the kids and those involved with the skatepark to run it.

The volunteers would help to maintain and manage the park, Hankins said, but would also raise money, which can in turn be designated for use with the park.

Daman said this money will help lessen the financial burden a park like this places on a city.

"It will be a park that can pay for itself," she said. "It's a self-sustaining venture."

Discussion is pending concerning a skateboard vendor coming to Charlevoix.

Hankins said Ted Maluchnik, who owns Street Level Skateboard Shop in Traverse City, is considering bringing his wares to Charlevoix.

"We're hoping he'll put a shop in the retail unit of Charlevoix," she said.

Maluchnik said he has been looking at some available spaces in Charlevoix, but hasn't found the right one yet.

"If I can find a place, I'm interested in coming here," he said.

Maluchnik said he looked in Oleson's Plaza where NPI Wireless used to be located. According to Maluchnik, the store is not in a state where a vendor can instantly move in.

"I want to find a place to just move into and not have to clean up," he said.

Maluchnik has been in the business for 10 years in Traverse City and he decided it is the right time to possibly open a store in Charlevoix.

There is also talk that if Maluchnik opens a shop in Charlevoix he would also possibly lease a space at the skatepark in which he could provide repairs for those participating in a session.

Weisner said the idea of having a repair shop at the skatepark is a way to provide a needed service at a public facility.

"It's a bit irregular, but it's kind of providing a service," he said. "We do that at beaches and ballparks with concession stands."

Maluchnik said it's late in the season to open a store, but the idea of leasing an area of the skatepark is a great way to test the waters for a full store.

"The money I'd be paying to lease the space can go to the park versus paying a lease downtown," he said.

If all construction goes as planned, Daman said the skatepark should be ready to open its doors to the public within the next few weeks.

Children, adults learn how to be safe on the water

Gould said Schwager stayed warm due to his dry suit. The dry suit functions differently than a wet suit, which Gould said uses water heated up by the body. The dry suit doesn't involve water and is used if the water is under 50 degrees.

Other clothing worn during rescue operations were available for the public to see including Anti-Exposure Coveralls, which Gould said feature their own flotation devices. These can keep the body warm in water between 50 and 60 degrees.

"It's basically a snowsuit that floats," Gould said.

Gould said the float coat and life jacket combination are used by the Coast Guard if the water is over 60 degrees.

When an emergency is called during the winter, Gould said the Coast Guard wears the Ice Commander Suit. This suit is designed to keep a person warm while out in the icy waters.

"I've actually been in the water for six hours after we chopped the ice," Gould said. He added that a person sweats while in the suit despite the temperature outside.

Those who attended the Boater Safety Day could see three boats used in water rescues. One was a 41-foot UTB (utility boat), a 21-foot RHI (Rigid Hole Inflatable) and a 14-foot Ice Skiff.

Ice situations are very dangerous due to their nature and Gould said the Coast Guard helps to train local fire departments.

"There is a lot of inter-agency training for ice rescue," Gould said.

To sum up what each station at the Boater Safety Day was teaching, the Coast Guard performed a rescue demonstration, which involved the helicopter from the Coast Guard Air Station in Traverse City.

The demonstration involved a rescue swimmer loading a person into a basket and hoisting them up into the helicopter, which flew to the airport. Gould said during a real emergency the person would then be taken to the nearest hospital.

Charlevoix school report card grades improve

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Both Charlevoix Elementary and Charlevoix Middle schools received a higher grade on their state report card than they did the previous year.

Charlevoix Elementary received the grade of a B and Charlevoix Middle School received an A.

"It's all how hard the staff has worked," Charlevoix Elementary School Principal Richard Swenor said. "Whenever we get assessment results we analyze them and break them down."

Swenor and Charlevoix Middle School Principal Keith Haske are both proud of their staff and their hard-working students who made the improvement possible.

Haske is proud of his students and staff for the A their hard work received.

"We are one of the few schools in the area to get an A," he said. "In our school district we're the first one to get an A so far."

The grade a school receives depends on three areas: Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) scores, MEAP score improvement and academic indicators of teaching quality and opportunities for student growth in place at individual schools.

The Michigan Department of Education issues these yearly report cards as part of their program Education Yes and federal legislation No Child Left Behind and its Adequate Yearly Progress evaluation.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent John Sturock said the improvement in grades is an indication of the districts' efforts.

"Obviously there were just a few things we had to make improvements on from last year to this year," Sturock said. "We're moving in the right direction."

Both schools focused on three key areas: Reading comprehension, writing and mathematics.

Charlevoix Middle School received a high rating in reading, which Haske said is due in large part to the staff initiating research based strategies into the curriculum. One strategy is called Making Connections in which the teachers help students make connections between what they read and themselves or other texts.

A second strategy involved visualizing what one is reading, which Haske said helped the students connect with what they read.

"Sometimes when you read you don't pay attention and have to reread a paragraph," Haske said. "Well, research has shown that visualizing what they're reading helps kids to comprehend it more."

Swenor said the elementary school received a 92 percent for their reading score, but are initiating a three year plan to help mathematics and writing increase as well.

"We're happy to increase from a C to a B, but we still want to improve," Swenor said.

In order to improve, Swenor and his staff are planning on initiating a new mathematics program for the next school year. The program is published by Scott Forsman and Swenor said the two areas of focus are traditional math and investigative math.

According to Swenor, the investigative portion focuses on critical thinking skills, which will help the students improve their problem solving ability.

"With the MEAP none of it is just computation," he said. "It also has some reading and problem solving."

In order to improve student's math skills, Haske said the middle school staff came up with a program called Enrichment Academy that lasted for six weeks.

Once a week during their seminar class, students would work on their computation skills according to their skill level. Haske said the students who needed more concentration were grouped together while students with more advanced math skills worked on different problems. Haske said the idea was to work at the students' individual levels.

"We tried to meet the needs of the kids," he said.

Both Charlevoix Elementary and Charlevoix Middle schools plan on improving the quality of their students' writing.

Swenor said K-12 have been trained in the John Collins method of writing, which involves five steps including: Prewriting and putting ideas down on paper, taking ideas and forming them into a complete draft, revising one's own work focusing on certain areas, having a peer revise the work and completing a publishable piece.

Swenor said the school's strategy is to implement the five types of writing by focusing on certain areas.

"It came out in the test that what we didn't do enough of was details and examples to enrich the content of the pieces," Swenor said.

Both Swenor and Haske are going to use what the Collins' method calls Focus Correction Areas or FCA's.

Basically, the teacher will pick a topic such as capitalization, which will be the primary focus for the student's writing that day.

Haske said this is an improvement over the old way, which involved teachers correcting everything that was wrong with a student's paper.

"This new method helps the teacher and helps put an emphasis on certain things," Haske said.

Swenor said he is excited about the idea of using FCA's to enrich the student's writing.

"I think we'll see some great improvements," he said.

Area basketball highlighted at this year's Venetian celebration

Due to the overwhelming scope and time required to identify and review the legions of exemplary Charlevoix athletes, the Venetian Sports Committee adopted a policy of reviewing only one or two sports each year.

"By focusing on a sport or two each year, the committee's effort to research and identify "Charlevoix Sports Legends" will become a series and tradition of future Venetian Festivals," indicated Venetian President, Dan Barron.

Venetian Sports Committee Chairman Dean Davenport said the committee determined that basketball will be the first sport to receive "sport legends" attention.

The criteria for legendary basketball team status was also apparent. There have been seven Charlevoix High School teams which have advanced through the rigors of district, regional and quarterfinal competition to reach the prestigious "Final Four" of the state tournament. The players from these Charlevoix High School Final Four Teams of 2004, 2001, 1999, 1952, 1948, 1938 and 1931 are asked to return for Venetian week so that they may be recognized.

These players are asked to contact Venetian headquarters (547-3872) to register for the festivities and to receive instructions.

Three Charlevoix High School coaches of highest esteem, Ray Kipke, Del Terrill and Don Carey, forged illustrious credentials on the Rayder basketball court as well as on the football field. These three coaches will thus also be considered for legendary status honors in 2004, along with current coach Keith Haske — who is in the midst of forging a legacy in his own time.

The committee will proceed to complete its 2004 mission by next announcing the names of outstanding Charlevoix hoopsters under consideration for legendary status, prior to its final review and determination of those individual players who will round out the 2004 "Charlevoix Sports Legends" exhibit.

Council appoints new planning commissioner

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell appointed local resident Diana Gully to the planning commission recently to replace Patricia Sitzema, who resigned due to family obligations.

At the June 21 city council meeting the commissioners unanimously voted Gully in.

Gully was currently serving on the Board of Review, which meets for three days in March to help Charlevoix residents with any property tax issues they may have. Gully. however, said she wanted to focus more on the city.

"I want to start getting back to the city and this is a good opportunity for me to do this," she said.

Campbell said he met Gully a few years ago and she showed an interest in city involvement. Gully was placed on the Board of Review and Campbell said those she worked with complimented her.

According to Campbell, Gully will bring another viewpoint to the commission.

"I think everybody that comes in brings a different light," Campbell said.

Gully's location in the city will enable the commission to become more balanced, Campbell said concerning the number of commissioners in each ward.

"There should be a minimum of two in each ward," Campbell said.

Gully who is originally from Oakland County in Detroit has been coming to Charlevoix for 21 years and has been a permanent resident for the last five years.

"I know a lot about Charlevoix history and politics that took place," she said.

City planning is an area Gully said she is ready to get involved in because of the amount of time she has spent in Charlevoix.

Campbell said as far as he knows, Gully is not involved with any organization that is politically one-sided, which may enable her to have a more balanced view on issues.

"I think that it will work out real well," he said.

Islanders working to get voters registered

The Beaver Island non-partisan group IdeA will be sponsoring a registration drive July 4 at the site of the future home of Beaver Island's Community Center. Volunteers will be there from 12 to 5 p.m. to explain requirements for registering to vote, to hand out registration forms and to discuss some of the important issues that are at stake in the upcoming election. The group hopes to demonstrate, through their own registration effort, that a few individuals can make a difference.

Garden Club to host flower show

Along with its Sixth Annual Garden Walk, "A Basketful of Gardens," the Charlevoix Area Garden Club will host a Standard Flower Show, "A Tisket, A Tasket — A Room Full of Baskets" on Wednesday, July 14.

The gardening public is invited to enter the Division II - Design Class in which entries must be pre-registered by July 7. You are also encouraged to submit horticultural specimens, which may be annuals, perennials, bulbs, corms, rhizomes, tubers, hosta, hydrangea or herbs.

The Flower Show will be at the Historic Depot on Lake Charlevoix at the foot of Chicago Avenue. Both Design and Horticulture entries are to be submitted between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. (latest) on Tuesday, July 13, the day before the Garden Walk and Flower Show.

Judging will begin at 4 p.m. No entries will be accepted after 3 p.m.

On Monday, July 19, 2004, Charlevoix High School basketball players will clash in a showdown pitting the 2001 state finals basketball team against the 2004 state finals basketball team.

The basketball match-up, which is being presented by the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, is the featured festival event on Venetian Monday and will include pre-game and halftime concert performances by Charlevoix's own Mojo & The Boogieman.

Venetian Festival President, Dan Barron, said, "The game is a beautiful combination of two favorite Charlevoix pastimes, the festivity of Venetian and the passion of Rayder basketball. It's a perfect opportunity for the community to relive recent basketball triumphs and to acknowledge the outstanding academic and athletic accomplishments of these two groups of outstanding kids."

Both squads distinguished themselves through excellent sportsmanship and unselfish team play, as well as their own court success. Star players also emerged, such as Scott Parrish and Jim Shepherd from the 2001 team, who have gone onto college basketball careers at Lake Superior State University and Wesleyan (Connecticut) University, as well as Rob Boss from the 2001 team who is now a football player at Northern Michigan University.

Parrish earned first team all State honors in 2002, as did Scott Friske from the 2004 team. Friske will be honing his basketball skills this coming year at Worcester Academy in Massachusetts, in further preparation for his collegiate career. Bryce Daly and Jared Hunt, from the 2004 Rayder squad, likewise garnered statewide recognition in post-season polls.

Dean Davenport, commissioner of the Venetian Games, said, "The Rayder Rumble is a perfect fit with the 2004 'Charlevoix Sports Legend' theme, which will focus on basketball in its initial year. This classic match-up promises to go down in the annals of Charlevoix sports history."

The game will include lighthearted hype with plenty of Venetian bells and whistles.

Joe Vogelheim, the Venetian Event Manager of the Rayder Rumble, believes the festive atmosphere will blend nicely with the competitive drive of the two championship teams.

"This contest is all about fun and love of the game. Certified referees, experienced game officials and coaches Haske and Erskine will all participate to provide the players and the Rayder Nation faithful a true basketball experience," he said.

Doors will open at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium at 7 p.m. on game night, Monday, July 19. Tip-off is scheduled for approximately 8 p.m.

Ticket prices are $5 for general admission and $25 for the center court section. Advance ticket sales will start on Wednesday, July 7 at the Bridge Street Book Shop. Tickets may also be purchased at the door, if available.

Island Medical Center celebrates grand opening

By KRISTINA HUGHES
Petoskey News-Review Staff Writer

BEAVER ISLAND — A picture of Feodor Protar fittingly hangs in the reception room of the Beaver Island Rural Medical Center.

Protar, who lived on the island until his death in 1925, had no medical training but he often found remedies or traveled to take care of the sick.

A century later, Protar's kindness for the families of Beaver Island was remembered at the Beaver Island Rural Health Center's dedication ceremony Friday.

"Beaver Island has a long rich tradition of helping each other. When a need rises family and friends come to the rescue without a lot of fanfare," said Anne Glendon, a consultant with the task force set up to consider a medical center.

Close to 100 people — island natives to area political representatives — gathered for the ceremony, toured the facility and enjoyed lunch.

The $1.3 million, 8,000-square-foot center brings medical practices on the island into the twenty-first century, by providing more space for emergency medical services, an examining room, four patient rooms, a dental wing and space for visiting optometrist and specialists. The center features a pediatric room, an X-ray area, a pharmacy and a health education center, utilizing a telemedicine capability.

The telemedicine provides specialized medical treatment directly to the patient without leaving the island.

Connie Wojan, medical center president, said the main advantage to the new facility is the room, providing more privacy for patients and physical space to practice.

"We now have the capability to see more than one patient," Wojan said.

The center provides care to an isolated population away from the mainland, and will meet an increased demand for services, reducing the need for people to seek health care on the mainland via boat or plane.

"It's modern health care in a rural setting," Holly Nielson, a relief nurse practitioner, said. "Some people feel more comfortable to receive health care in their community. They don't want to leave the island to see a doctor or have an eye exam."

The first island center was a two-room facility. In 1953, a community drive began to build a health center.

Glendon said the board voted in 1999 to set a task force to develop a plan for a new medical center.

B.J. Wyckoff, chairman of the task force, said the area is growing as a retirement destination, and the population includes seniors who need more services. Wyckoff said there is a need for 24/7 care coverage. Before, on call care was provided and a nurse practitioner was on duty. Visiting physicians came depending on weather.

In the past decade, the population of Beaver Island has increased nearly 40 percent and the patients served by the health center increased from less than 600 in 1990 to more than 2,600 visits in 2002, Wyckoff said.

Island leaders invited state representatives and Jim Haveman, the director of Michigan Community Health under Gov. Engler's administration, to the island to tour the facility. A bill was developed to appropriate funds for services on Beaver Island and Mackinaw Island, which made it through the Legislature, but Engler vetoed it. Haveman lobbied for the island, which did receive the $1.5 million dollar grant in 2002.

Former state Sen. Joel Gougeon, R-Bay City, was the chair of the subcommittee for appropriations for community health care, and collaborated with representative Mickey Mortimer, R-Horton, to appropriate funds for the project

"It couldn't be done today with today's financial constraints," Gougeon said.

Mortimer said when people talk about underserved areas they consider urban areas, but he said isolated rural areas need comparable services, too.

"People have a right to quality health care" Haveman added.

Bill McDonough, a sixth-generation island resident, remembers hearing about Protar as a kid, and seeking care from visiting physicians. Decades later he was instrumental in forging a path for the new medical center, one he said his family will use.

"Beaver Island is a good place to live, to raise a family," McDonough said. "We need adequate services for our families"

Don Spencer, a board member and project manager, helped oversee the project. Spencer hired Practice Management, of St. Clair Shores, to work to define the services of the building and functions of the rooms. Hobbs & Black Architects of Ann Arbor was hired to design the floor plan. Spencer said 90 percent of the plan was based on the staff's suggestions.

Beaver Gems construction company was hired to construct the center.

Land for the project was donated by Jeff and Nancy All, Lizzie and Molly Traudt and Harry and Josephine Gill. The five acres will be used for the center and a proposed senior housing complex.

The project began in May of 2003 and was finished in February.

Now that the center is built, the community is responsible to help cover its operational costs. The operational budget is about $450,000 a year, community center board member Joe Reed said. A 2 mill levy covers about 30 percent of the operational costs, while patient revenues cover about 45 percent of the budget.

The board set up an endowment fund to help raise the additional 25 percent.

The community launched a capital campaign and hopes to raise $300,000 by 2005. The board established a Legacy Tree Society in the patient visiting area.

For more information about services and the endowment fund, call (231) 448-2275.

Woman injured in crash

An 18-year-old East Jordan woman was injured in a one vehicle accident around 5:30 p.m., June 19 on M-66 Highway near Ferry Road in Eveline Township.

A 1993 Chevrolet Lumina being driven by Stephanie Stelk, 18, of East Jordan drove off the road and struck a tree head-on. Stelk was transported by the Charlevoix Ambulance service to the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The Sheriff's office was assisted at the scene by East Jordan Ambulance, Charlevoix Ambulance and four citizens who passed by and assisted Stelk prior to their arrival at the scene.

Sheriff's Office telephones will be down for an hour Thursday

Sheriff George T. Lasater would like to forewarn citizens, businesses and area law enforcement offices that the Charlevoix County Sheiff's entire telephone system will be down for scheduled maintenance from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Thursday, July 1.

He said he regrets the inconvenience this outage may cause and would like to remind citizens, if you have an emergency or a complaint/incident to report you should dial 9-1-1.

Automotive legends to brighten streets

Chrome and vibrant, colorful paint jobs will be all the rage in Charlevoix in early July when the coolest cars in the region pull into town for the Twelfth Annual Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club's show.

"We're every excited. It's like our first show because of all the changes we've made," Street Legends Club president Les Lugibihl said.

The weekend festivities kick off with the traditional cruise featuring jaw dropping specialty cars. But the cruise itself won't be using its traditional home, East Park, as its hub.

This year, the group will leave at 4:30 p.m., July 10, from Ferry Beach in Charlevoix to strut their stuff for gawkers who will watch as they cruise around Lake Michigan. After the drive they'll head back to the beach for a bash.

Lugibihl anticipates the cruise group finishing up the drive at around 6:30 p.m. After that a beach tailgate cookout equipped with fun games, prizes and the local blues band Mojo and the Boogieman will shift the show into fifth gear. The cookout ends at 10 p.m.

But serious car lovers will be in bed early to make sure they're sharp for the July 11 show. Lugibihl said this year's show promises the same caliber of high quality automobiles for. But it has moved from its former stomping grounds, Shanahan Field, to the Castle Farms off M-66.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. Sunday, July 11 at the Castle and will wrap up at noon. The show itself will run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

At the event refreshments will be available and car owners and attendees will have the chance to participate in games and raffles to win cash and prizes. The afternoon will also include a live auction and live music from Mojo.

With all of this activity on the docket Lugibihl is expecting about 200 cars to turn out. He said moving the date from its usual August showing, the same weekend Detroit celebrates its big Woodward Cruise, will likely attract a crowd of car enthusiasts the Street Legends group used to miss.

And more people means more money for the club, which is all given back to the community. Proceeds from the event will benefit Camp Quality, an organization for terminally ill children, and other area non-profit organizations.

Officials excited about airport improvements

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The City of Charlevoix Municipal Airport has undergone some changes last year that has improved their visual appeal and function for those waiting to take off to their designations.

"We are a resort community and have a fine facility for resort and local use," Airport Manager Karyn Brooks said.

The airport is finishing up its final touches of the parking lot and will begin to plant seeds that will flourish into the creative landscaping vision Brooks said City Planner Gerry Harsch has envisioned.

"Gerry Harsch has really put some creative thought into the landscaping and the patio area just outside the terminal area," Brooks said.

Brooks said this creative vision will include dyed cement that will represent areas of Charlevoix and Beaver Island along with different types of trees and grasses that will be used to designate the different sections of the parking lot.

To add to the setting, Brooks said there are plans to purchase outdoor furniture such as tables and chairs so people can sit outside in the park-like atmosphere and watch the planes come and go.

The parking lot and landscaping are ideas that carried over from last year, but Brooks said this year's project has even more in store.

Brooks said the original project cost prior to any construction bids for the 2004 federal funding year is $1,325,514.

"Since we have a limited construction season all projects are being planned in such a way to meet the construction season this year," Brooks said.

Construction of two taxiways in the Southwest area of the property is set to start on July 12. Brooks said that there will also be a first parcel hangar development by the new taxiways.

The taxiways in the Northeast hangar area, which is used primarily by local tenants, will be rehabilitated. Brooks said the Northeast hangar area will also see gravel parking, a circular paved area conducive for turning a plane around and a wash area for the planes.

Brooks said the turf taxiway access the tenants have created will now be paved. Project plans also include expanding the ramp and tie-down area. Brooks said this will allow the airport to have more space during the busy season.

"We have a growing need for a place for people to park their aircraft," she said.

Construction is set to start sometime after Labor Day.

Brooks said another project the airport will focus on is sealing any cracks in the pavement.

"It's an important maintenance item for the safety of the aircraft," she said.

A wetlands delineation project is set for this summer, which Brooks said will determine any problem areas concerning the wetlands.

An automatic weather observation system transmitter will be installed along with the other major projects.

Brooks said a snow removal equipment building is in the works and designs are being completed. Construction of the building is mandatory because Brooks said the FAA requires that all equipment purchased with federal funding be housed.

"It's to protect the longevity of the equipment and to provide a place to service it," she said. "Up to this point we have not had storage."

U.S. Coast Guard frees fish tug from shoal at Hog Island

U.S. Coast Guardsmen from both the Charlevoix and Beaver Island lifeboat stations combined their efforts Tuesday to free the 36 ft. fish tug, Gipsy, owned by Jake White Sr. from a shoal off Hog Island 10 miles north of Beaver Island.

The tug went aground in the storm that hit the area Sunday.

Aboard with Mr. White were eight Charlevoix men who had left Charlevoix at 4 a.m., Sunday to spend the day bass fishing in the Garden-Hog island area.

A boat from the Beaver Island lifeboat station and the plane from the Traverse City air station were dispatched to the area late Monday when the tug failed to return.

Earlier it was believed that the tug would remain in the area until the fog lifted, However, when they did not return late Monday the Beaver Island and Traverse City units were asked to investigate. The Beaver Island lifeboat went to the scene and found the tug aground about 100 feet from shore. The men on the tug requested provisions which were dropped on the island. The men went ashore on the small skiff to retrieve them.

Early Tuesday Beaver Island lifeboat returned to the scene with pumps in an effort to pump out the tug which had taken water when it went on the shoal. Later they requested assistance and the 40 foot patrol boat from Charlevoix was dispatched to the scene taking with it additional pumps and other equipment.

The Coast Guard floated the tug Tuesday afternoon and proceeded to tow it into port at Charlevoix. On board the boat with Mr. White were his son Mark, Leroy Plum, Clarence Goldstick, Peter Kanoff, Norman Empey, Guy Smith, Claire Martin and Robert Reed.

To dedicate historical marker Sunday

Commemorates reign of Beaver Isle 'King'

The rise and fall of "King" James Jesse Strang and his bizarre kingdom on Beaver Island more than a century ago will be brought into sharp focus Sunday when the Michigan Historical Commissions dedicates a historic site marker on Charlevoix's waterfront.

City and county officials, state legislators and representatives of the commission will be on hand at 5:30 p.m., Sunday for the dedication at the city dock looking out toward the Beaver Island kingdom of yore.

The marker will be the first site marker to be dedicated in the upper part of the lower peninsula which is in keeping with the fact that "King" Strang's newspaper, the Northern Islander, was the first daily publication in this part of the state.

The dedication ceremony will follow a tour of the historic island located in Lake Michigan 20 miles northwest of here.

Here to participate in the event will be Dr. George May, historical site specialist of the Commission who will officiate at the dedication, R. F. Hoffman of Plymouth, president of the Beaver Island Historical Society who will present a photostatic copy of a 100-year old map of Beaver Island to Chester W. Ellison, a member of the Michigan Historical Commission.

The plaque which will be placed on the bank of the Pine River between the city dock and Memorial Bridge will be inscribed as follows:

"Mormon Kingdom 20 miles northwest of heron Beaver Island. In 1847 James Strang set up a colony for his followers, dissenters from the main body of Mormons and crowned himself king in 1850.

Hatred of the sect by non-Mormons led to the Battle of Pine River in 1853 at the present-day site of Charlevoix.

On June 16, 1956, because they hated his authoritarian rule, some of Strang's subjects mortally wounded him. Later in the summer main-landers drove the Mormons from the island."

Life of first mayor highlighted at Charlevoix Historical Society

Charlevoix Historical Society is featuring an exhibit on Hon. H.L. Iddings, the first mayor of Charlevoix.

Harvey Lee Iddings was born in Oxford, Ohio, Nov. 1856, to the Rev. Joseph Talbot and Martha Ann Iddings. He received his education in the public schools and was a graduate of Albion College. He was married in Albion to Miss Nellie Gale and had three daughters, Dorothy, Constance and Horatio.

He came to Charlevoix about 1884, and entered into the hardware business with M.J. Stockman, a partnership that continued several years after which Mr. Iddings conducted the business under the name of the Charlevoix Hardware Co.

Mr. Iddings always took an active part in public affairs and while a strong Republican in politics speaking often in behalf of his party in national and state campaigns, was a believer in non-partisanship in municipal affairs and was often called upon to serve the people in an official capacity, as supervisor of the township, and a member of the village board. In June of 1905 the Michigan legislature incorporated Charlevoix as a city.

Mr. Iddings was the first mayor of the City of Charlevoix and had served several terms on the board of education of which he was president at the time of his death in 1910 at the age of 54.

He was member of the Methodist Church and of the different branches of the Masonic Order in which he took an active interest as well as the Maccabees, with whom he carried $2,000 insurance.

Town split in two for about two hours

BRIDGE

were prepared to handle any situation that should arise on either side of the bridge.

Weisner said the Charlevoix Police Department focused on all emergencies on the south side while the north side was covered by the Charlevoix County Sheriff Department and the Michigan State Police.

Fire protection on the south side of the bridge was handled by the Charlevoix City Fire Department. The Charlevoix Township Fire Department handled the north side.

Weisner said the Petoskey Allied EMS sent an ambulance to help handle medical emergencies that should arise on the north side.

While traffic was stopped, pedestrian traffic continued with the help of Donald Armbrster of Grand Rapids and his father-in-law, Dawson Way.

Way said Armbrster volunteered his pontoon boat as a way to carry people across the channel.

"We were just going for a little boat ride and we saw some friends who wanted to cross," Way said. "So we took them to the other side, then other people wanted to get across."

Way said they ferried probably 100 people along with dogs, bicycles and skateboards.

"It was just a humanitarian act," Way said.

During the time Way and Armbrster were ferrying people across, Stafford's Weathervane Restaurant gave them food.

"The Weathervane brought us four nice specials and the kids some pop and chicken," he said.

Stafford's Weathervane Floor Manager Gerda McGuire said the restaurant gave them food because they were helping people and shuttling some of the restaurant's guests across the channel.

Their business was affected by the incident.

"Oh, yeah, it killed us," McGuire said.

Several people were unable to come and a party of 23 canceled because they could not get across the bridge. McGuire said the party did reschedule for a later date.

She also lost business due to information about the bridge.

"Afterwards we lost business because on the news it said that the bridge was not operating for 24 hours," McGuire said.

Some of the business they did get that night came from people traveling from Petoskey to Traverse City. McGuire said since they couldn't cross the bridge they came in to eat.

Village Inn Pizza manager Bryan Winegar said business was affected a little.

"It would have been worse, but for whatever reason it was slower that day," he said. "We were lucky."

Winegar said the restaurant only had to turn down three or four people and there were only about three orders that were already made, but couldn't be delivered.

Despite business being slow, Village Inn Pizza became a hot spot for phone calls concerning the state of the bridge.

"Everyone in town thought we were the information center," Winegar said.

Orchestra to perform at Castle Farms July 2

On the run

Charlevoix native Brenna [illegible]

Making her point

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix resident JoAnne Bier Beemon recently attended the Green Party National Convention in Milwaukee where she ran for President of the United States.

Beemon attended the convention as the "favorite daughter" of the Michigan Green Party Delegation. During the convention, she worked hard to get her message of peace and environmental concern across to the delegates.

"The third largest party in the United States is the Green Party, so it was really an honor to run," Beemon said.

Beemon placed fourth out of six Green Party presidential candidates.

JoAnne Beemon

The Four Pillars of the Green Party-covered issues Beemon has always been passionate about: Ecological wisdom, Grass-roots democracy, social justice and non-violence/peace.

Beemon's platform consisted of issues important to her, which included the availability of clean water for both people and the environment.

"The quality of our lives is rooted in the quality of our water," she said.

As the Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner, Beemon has fought to ensure the quality of local water.

"Water is life," she said. "It's more valuable than oil."

An important supplier of 20 percent of the world's freshwater and 85 percent of freshwater used in the United States is the Great Lakes Basin, which Beemon said is in jeopardy due to corporations wanting to pump the water to the West

Good work, sheriff

Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater (rear) has in custody two of the most wanted men in the world, Osama bin Laden (left) and Saddam Hussein — or at least a pair of good imposters — Sunday during the annual 4th of July parade in Horton Bay. Despite the cool temperatures and rain, a good crowd turned out as always for the annual event, where virtually nothing is out of bounds when it comes to the tongue-in-cheek approach of parade marchers. See pages 30, 31 for more coverage.

Four part-timers to join police

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

The city of Charlevoix Police Department has hired four part-time employees, two of whom will work permanently, two of whom will work for the summer.

The growing number of summer visitors to the Charlevoix area has increased the demand for police department help, Chief Dennis Halverson said.

"Especially this time of year, extra help is needed," he said.

John Goble and Jack Messer have been hired as fully certified police officers. Together they will fill a budgeted part-time position.

Goble, 37 and a former Grand Traverse Sheriff's Department deputy, was hired about five weeks ago. He is currently a probation officer for the Emmet County Probate Court and lives near Petoskey.

Messer, 54, was hired about two weeks ago and is the emergency services director for Charlevoix, Emmet, and Cheboygan counties. He lives near Boyne City.

Both "come with a wealth of experience," Halverson said.

The summer hires are Kreg Wager and Jessica Halverson. Both are Charlevoix natives and graduates of Charlevoix High School.

Wager, 20, will serve as the parking regulation enforcer for downtown . This will be his second summer with the police department.

"Kreg did a nice job last year," Chief Halverson said.

Wager is working on a degree in criminal justice at Grand Valley State University. During the summer, Wager resides in the Charlevoix area.

Jessica Halverson, 22; has been hired to work the Ferry launch ramp, enforce airport parking regulations, and assist with parking meter enforcement. She is the daughter of Chief Halverson and is a student at Western Michigan University.

Director of environmental health services appointed

Scott Kendzierski has been named Director of Environmental Health Services for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

Kendzierski has been serving as interim coordinator for the Environmental Health Division of the health department since the retirement of Dean Mikulski in February.

"We selected Scott from dozens of very qualified applicants, both internal and from all over the State," said Gerald Chase, Health Officer. "Jobs like this just don't often open up — we haven't hired a new Director of Environmental Health since 1966."

As Director of Environmental Health Services, Kendzierski is responsible for supervising health department programs throughout Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties dealing with food, water, shelter, air quality, and the disposal of liquid and solid hazardous waste. Many programs, such as restaurant inspections and sewage disposal and water supply permits, require enforcement of State and Federal regulations.

Kendzierski is a nationally registered sanitarian and has worked for the health department since 1999. As Special Programs Coordinator, he had district-wide responsibilities for a variety of multi-county programs including public water supply, school safety inspections and plan review, public beach monitoring, indoor air quality services radon, lead inspection and risk assessments, mercury investigations, and state licensed facility evaluations.

He has also inspected private water supplies, campgrounds, swimming pools, on-site sewage systems, and acted as the agency's Geographic Information System Coordinator. For the last three years, he has also assisted the US Fish and Wildlife Service in a lamprey monitoring project on the Jordan River and connecting tributaries.

Kendzierski, a hydrogeology specialist, has worked in health departments in mid- and southern Michigan. He is completing his master's degree in Geology at Western Michigan University.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities. For more information, contact Kendzierski at 547-7651.

OPINIONS

The First Amendment

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Let's hear it for the resourceful high school band!

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix is a very giving community.

We give to blood drives, pop can drives, clothing drives and many, many fund-raising drives. There is no shortage of ways for Charlevoix residents to show their generosity.

But sometimes the residents get tired of always just giving. Sometimes they can't afford to give. And sometimes they are just asked hy too many organizations to give — especially during times of economic uncertainty like now.

This means those non-profit organizations in need of funding have to rally their troops to form various events or sales. But, even then, there are only so many bake sales and golf tournaments that a person can attend, so some organizations are still left out in the cold.

It is time for organizations to get creative. And one organization that all non-profits can learn from is the Charlevoix Community School's Band Boosters.

The Charlevoix band boosters were in need of money for new band uniforms recently. They knew the usual fund-raising techniques would not be enough for this drive, so they got creative.

In their searching for ways to make money, they hit upon a neat idea: making a bid to weed the petunia beds along US-31. This way they would be helping keep Charlevoix beautiful and making money for the new uniforms.

Council seemed to agree and awarded the band boosters the contract. Now we have an organization that is raising money for a good cause, weeding the flower beds and being paid for it with taxpayer dollars that came from Charlevoix residents. Now, this is a prime example of keeping it in the community.

Great job band boosters in coming up with a unique way of raising money for your organization. Perhaps other organizations can learn from your example.

Now the band boosters need to keep up their good work on the flower beds. To do that, they are going to need the help of all their members and the members of the school band who are going to benefit from the new uniforms.

We hope to see you all out there working and can't wait to see your new uniforms next year.

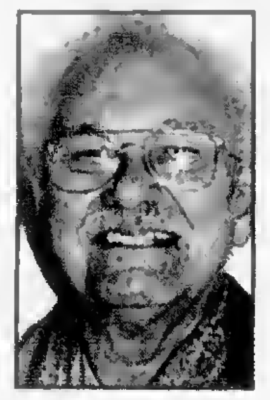
Invader comes up through the cracks



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

To many people cracks in the sidewalk are things you try not to step on to save your mother's back. Or they might be places you spray with Roundup to clear them of the blemishes of growing things. To this botanist, the sidewalk cracks are one of the more fascinating small environments. They are the places where you find plants that often cannot or do not grow anywhere else.

Sometimes the sidewalk plants provide us with evidence for the toughness and tenacity of life, and sometimes they show us where invasions begin. We are commonly provided with examples of less than desirable invaders; things like garlic mustard, purple loosestrife, zebra mussels or round gobys come to mind. Desirability is often in the mind of the beholder, however. We are mostly surrounded by plants and animals that were once invaders which have become residents over time, just as all of us immigrant people have.

We have a new invader in Charlevoix. It has barely established a foothold and could be easily eliminated by accident or by design. This invader is not likely to arouse any ire on the part the most ardent defender of native plants. It is unlikely to crowd out anything else we might prefer. And it lives in the cracks of sidewalks. Up to now I have found it in no other place.

Our new plant resident is commonly called Johnny-jump-up, prohably in honor of the way it seems to appear out of nowhere and show itself as an easily recognized flower. Its formal name is Viola tricolor, and it has invaded us from Europe. Ed Voss in his Michigan Flora shows it to have heen collected in only 14 of Michigan's 83 counties and in only four places in the northwest Lower Peninsula. It is not previously known from Charlevoix County. Mr. Voss describes it as looking like a miniature pansy, and says that it is one of the wild parental relatives of our common garden pansy. The plants are just a few inches tall with deep green leaves of several shapes, and flowers with purple top petals and yellow bottom petals. Voss says it is found in roadsides, fields, dumps, gravel pits and waste ground. In England, it is found in cornfields, which makes it seem like a weed. In Charlevoix it has jumped up in sidewalk cracks.

So far as I have been able to determine there are fewer than a dozen Johnny-jump-up plants growing wild in Charlevoix, all within a half block of one another. Since the plants are annuals and must come back from seed each year, the plants that are here now are most probably the offspring of a single plant a year or so back. Where did that first seed come from? It is difficult to be certain, but since all the plants here now are near the harbor, it is a good bet that it arrived on the boat shoes of a visitor. Less romantically, it may have escaped from someone's windowbox.

Plants do get around, mostly with human help. And not every new arrival is to he feared or shunned. Johnny-jump-ups should be a welcome addition to the flora of our sidewalk cracks, showing us both the tenacity of life and one way to begin a quiet invasion.

Roger Knutson is a Charlevoix resident and columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. His columns are published bi-weekly. He can be reached by calling the Courier, 547-6558, or by writing 408 Burns St., Charlevoix, MI, 49702.

Think very carefully about your desire for a Wal-Mart

Editor:

Wal-Mart, having been bade in no uncertain terms not to locate in Charlevoix, now has been invited and encouraged to build a supermart in East Jordan by some misguided townspeople who obviously have not done their homework on the modus operandi of Wal-Mart. When Wal-Mart comes to town, by its own admission, it's out to crush all local retailers-groceries, clothiers, hardware stores etc., who cannot begin to compete with the volume buying and "always low prices."

Wal-Mart can maintain its always low prices because it buys the largest percent of its products from sweat shops overseas. Workers toil for long hours in unbelievably deplorable conditions for pennies a day — hence Wal-Mart makes a profit on even the smallest items in its stores. Its volume buying is so huge that no small store can possibly compete with it.

Part of the charm of a small town is the relationship and bonding of its townspeople and local merchants. They work together to create a pleasant and attractive environment for themselves and their families. East Jordan has worked very hard to beautify its downtown area with trees and flowers, inviting shops, and eating places, and has recently renovated a two-story 19th century building. There are business ventures on the second floor and a bank, and three ideally located rental spaces on the first floor. A prospective renter searching for an ideal spot for a new venture might be attracted, but the prospect of a Wal-Mart store in the vicinity would turn one away.

As for the plus of Wal-Mart creating jobs, the turnover of employees in its stores is above 50 percent a year. And as for desirable working conditions — if you read the papers — a sex discrimination lawsuit was filed three years ago and has been expanded and certified as a class action that could include up up to 1.6 million current and former female employees. The suit alleges that Wal-Mart set up a system that, all too often, pays its female workers less than male workers for comparable jobs and bypasses them for key promotions.

(Not much of an enticement for a girl or woman seeking employment.)

At least 164 towns and cities in America (Charlevoix makes 165) have said a resounding "no" to Wal-Mart because they treasure their small independent businesses.

Wal-Mart is a monster predator. Its presence in any city or small town spells doom for local merchants and small enterprises. One hopes those gung-ho for a Wal-Mart in this area will re-examine their motives and decide that Wal-Mart is not a necessary evil. Think about it!

Move start of the school day back

Editor:

Are you concerned about your child's sleep? Students at Charlevoix Middle School have to be in school by 7:41 a.m.! My opinion is that Charlevoix Middle School should start at least one hour later.

First of all, more and more kids are falling asleep in school. A reason for this is that children are getting up too early to catch the bus. Also, some children are getting up at 5 a.m. to catch the bus!

Lastly, students are unable to remember areas, such as math classes, that they had gone over in the morning. If students had forgotten about breakfast in the morning, they will be distracted by hunger throughout the day. It's also scientifically proven that students don't remember what they've learned in very early morning classes.

In conclusion, I would like the school board to change the time of Charlevoix Middle School at least one hour later. Thank you for your time.

Fuel to the political fire

Editor:

Now that the political signs are out you can see who is being endorsed for state representative by the price-gouging gas stations. I hope the people of northern Michigan realize that if they vote for Craig Ryan than they are voting for high gas prices.

The gas cartel has donated money and sign locations to our last Representative and now they are donating to Craig Ryan. Do you think that we will ever get a fair investigation when the people whom we elect get funding from the gougers?

It also might be worth noting that the only job that Craig Ryan has ever held in life was pumping gas and propane for a local gas family. Does he really have our best interests in mind or is he looking for a job?

High gas prices, Craig Ryan. High gas prices, Craig Ryan. I think we all better open our eyes.

Letter mystifies

Responding to the letter last week berating Marion Shea-Light's addressing the lack of road report information from the township supervisor, Wayne Boss, it is somewhat mystifying that someone who not long ago was threatening a lawsuit against the township and its officers is now praising their actions.

A prime example of the validity of what can be expected of one of the promises we have been given is the one for the sign for our township park defining regulations for park use

We have been promised this sign for our township park defining regulations for park use. We have been promised this sign for the past three years by supervisor Boss and it still hasn't materialized.

So is it any wonder that a promise given repeatedly for the past seven months for a township road work forecast would be provided to the requester?

Shame should go to those who criticize or deny anyone's right to free speech regardless of their position in the community. After all, aren't many of our friends and relatives now fighting and dying in a foreign land just to protect these very precious rights which we enjoy?

Social Security benefits to illegals

Editor:

How much of your own Social Security benefits are you willing to give to an illegal alien from Mexico?

Right now, the social Security Administration is holding high-level talks with Mexican government officials. They plan to pay Social Security benefits to illegal aliens from Mexico directly from your Social Security Trust Fund. The Washington Post was first to reveal this scandal and the story gets worse as more details emerge.

High-level U.S. and Mexican officials have already had several meetings since November 2001 and they insist these meetings are "informal" and "preliminary." But an internal Social Security Administration memo obtained by The Washington Post says the agreement "is expected to move forward at an accelerated pace," with the support of both governments, and could be in force any day now. This clearly shows work is further along than either government is willing to admit and the clock is ticking on your Social Security and on mine.

As reported by The Washington Post, there's no doubt this plan will "put tens of thousands of Mexicans on to the Social Security roster and send hundreds of millions of dollars in benefits south of the border." An independent research group goes further, to warn that the government's figures "seriously underestimate the number of Mexicans who would seek Social Security benefits." It's unbelievable that our government would hand out Social Security benefits to illegal aliens, but that's exactly what our government plans to do and we're not talking about American citizens who came here legally from Mexico, or who are descended from Mexican immigrants, and who paid into Social Security during their working lives. Instead, this plan will give Social Security benefits to Mexican citizens, including illegal aliens! Did the bureaucrats forget that senior citizens pay taxes, too and that senior citizens also vote? And now they tell us — with a straight face — that they want to take a hillion dollars from Social Security and pay it to non-U.S. citizens? You and I must remind the politicians we elected to represent us in Washington, D.C., that senior citizens will not let them get away with this vote-buying scheme because you and I both know the politicians are doing this to attract the "Hispanic Vote" with our Social Security money that was paid for with our tax dollars over a lifetime of hard work! There is only one way to deal with a politician who has his hand in the cookie jar. Expose him, and shame him into doing the right thing. To block this major threat to your Social Security, Congressman Dana Rohrabacher has introduced a bill called H.R. 1631, "The No Social Security for Illegal Immigrants Act of 2003" and this hill will stop what Congressman Rohrabacher declared is "the greatest threat Social Security has ever faced." Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. We need to know what's going on in our communities. State and Nation and be ready to take an active part in preserving our freedoms and liberty. If you agree with what I have written, then tell Congress now! At the Capital call Representative Stupak at 202-224-4822, Senator Levin at 202-224-6221 And Senator Stabenow at 202-224-4822.

This is your chance to have your views heard and your voice could be the one to make the difference

Painting, sports highlight 'house' exhibits

By B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

The mayor drops dead in a local grocery store, the high school football team plays all season without an opposing touchdown and a hobo artist carves his way into history.

There are just some of the new exhibits at the Chalevoix Historical Society's Harsha House this summer.

Among Charlevoix historical society's five new exhibits are some paintings by Lyle Miles, uncle of curator Dave Miles.

"He liked to paint local scenes. Everything from Cross fisheries to the train station at Depot beach," he said.

Born in 1915, it wasn't until 1983 when Lyle Miles' wife passed away that he began painting the local scenery.

"He was amazing," Miles said. "He knew what somebody's interests were and he'd do a water color and give it to them."

According to Miles, a piece called "Charlevoix at night" is on loan from his personal collection.

"I 'oohed and ahhed' over it so much when I visited him that he finally got sick of me and gave it to me," he said.

Lyle Miles painted hundreds of different scenes in his 14 years as a self-taught artist, but Charlevoix was his favorite subject.

"He used to say, 'There's no place on Earth like it,'" Miles added.

If woodwork is of interest to you then the new hobo art exhibit is just what you are looking for. Born in 1883, Frank Rice spent much of his life creating hobo art. According to Miles, hobo art is so named because hobos used to sit around their fires and soup pots with nothing to do but whittle.

While Rice accomplished much in his life, he did find time between being the admirals bandmaster on a Navy ship, a violinist, a pianist and a lumberjack, to create some of the most curious carvings imaginable.

"From a single block of wood he carved a cage within a cage with wooden balls in the center," Miles said. "If he came across an old table leg he would save it — anything with potential."

Rice also used a foot powered wood cutting device called a Treadle pedal saw to create picture frames, two of which are on display. One frame holds a note written by Rice in the early 1900s which says, "Each article in this display was whittled from a solid piece of wood with an ordinary penknife. Frank C. Rice"

Those interested in the history of Charlevoix might like to know Charlevoix was officially incorporated by the state of Michigan in 1905 and the first mayor, Harvey Lee Iddings was elected.

Amidst the exhibit is the front page of the Charlevoix Sentinel from 1910 which reads, "Suddenly called from Earth Hon. H. L. Iddings dropped dead Tuesday."

Iddings' telescope, which, according to Miles, was used to watch ships approach the Pine River channel, is also on display.

Beaver Island's Museum Week kicks off Monday

Who: Museum Week
When: July 12-17
Where: Beaver Island
Events: Several which educate museum-goers and celebrates island history.

For the 24th consecutive year, the Beaver Island Historical Society will hold its annual Museum Week from July 12-17. The event is comprised of talks, hikes, lectures, art and music.

At 9 a.m. on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, the staff of the Central Michigan University Biological Station will lead three three-hour nature walks, the first for Adults ($10) and the next two for kids ($5). The walks cover everything from the dunes to the bogs, and each is limited to 25 walkers. Sign-up is at the Print Shop Museum.

Archaeologist Jay Peck will present "Prehistory of the American Southwest" at 2 p.m. on Monday, and at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, he will present a slide show on "Mysteries of Archaeoastronomy." The talks, and Thursday afternoon's presentation, cost $3 for adults, $1 for children. Thurday's talk, by Jim Gillingham's CMU staff on "Amazing Reptiles and Amphibians," includes live snakes and giant frogs.

Antje Price, the "Protar Lady," will open the Protar Home on Sloptown Road from 1-3 p.m. Tuesday and Saturday, and will chat about Protar's life. There is no charge, but donations are accepted, nor is there for the pet show, held on the Print Shop porch at noon Saturday. Almost all entrants come away with some kind of award (such as for the puppy with the longest ears).

The Marine Museum will celebrate its 100th anniversary from 1-5 p.m. Friday with an open house. The art show runs from noon-4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the school.

"Music on the Porch" will kick off the evening programs. On Monday night, Main Street will be closed and 200 chairs set up to listen to 12-15 performers on the museum porch. Some of the regulars have a great following, hut there are always surprises, both new people just off the boat and familiar faces who previously kept their talent under wraps. Hats are passed during intermission. In case of rain, the event moves to the Parish Hall.

At 8 p.m. Tuesday, Michele VanderVelde and MaryAnn Moore, members of the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers Association will be at the Parish Hall to celebrate the imminent restoration of the Whiskey Point Light by describing its history. The charge is $5 for adults and $3 for kids.

Robert Cole will discuss his Oral History project on Wednesday and show some of the material he recorded since his talk last summer. On Thursday, Native American speaker Joe Mitchell from the Little Traverse Bay Band will talk about various aspects of his culture.

On Friday, Ed Palmer and the Beaver Island Boys will throw an "Island dance," the way it was done for so many years. Admission to this rollicking event is $10, and there will be a cash bar. Another musical delight is on tap for Saturday evening: a reprise of April's stunning performance of "A Little Night Music," songs by Stephen Sondheim. The charge is also $10. Drinks will be available, and afterwards the cast will join the audience to toast the entire week.

Grant allows health department to monitor beaches' water quality

Northwest Michigan beaches will be tested regularly throughout the summer months for disease-carrying organisms thanks to over $20,000 in grants awarded to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. The grants, from the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the US Environmental Protection Agency, along with some local matching dollars, will provide funding to test the 40-plus beaches on Lake Michigan and inland lakes in the four-county service area of the health department. "The health department has been aggressively pursuing state and federal grants for beach monitoring over the last few years. We're committed to the protecting our waters-they are some of our most valuable resources," said Scott Kendzierski, Director of Environmental Health. "These grants have allowed our area to benefit from a considerable amount of surface water data collected in northwest Michigan."

During this year's beach season, health department staff will analyze over 1,400 sample results, monitoring water quality for problems that could result in transmission of viruses, disease, or pathogenic organisms. Beach water samples are collected on a weekly or twice-per-week basis, depending on risk and popularity of area beaches.

While conducting water-sampling visits, health department staff assesses other factors that contribute to the overall beach environment, such as sources of pollution safety equipment, drinking water supplies, sanitation, and refuse handling. "We have a very robust beach program at the health department," said Kendzierski. "We are taking a multifaceted look at our beaches to assure a safe, enjoyable, and healthy experience for all area beach goers."

All sampling activities are available at www.deq.state.mi.us/beach/public/, where the public can review local and state beach information, sampling data, and closure status.

The health department also uses Global Positioning System (GPS) to gather accurate beach locations and Geographic Information Systems (GIS) to map locations with corresponding sample data.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities. For additional information about water sampling at area beaches, contact Kendzierski directly at (231) 547-7651.

Charlevoix woman takes her message to national convention and carry it overseas to Japan, China and Africa.

Beemon said these corporations and people living around the Great Lakes Basin forget that once the water is removed from the basin it is gone forever.

"People tend to think of water resources as infinite, but they're not," she said. "They're very finite."

At the convention, Beemon made quality water an issue, especially concerning high levels of mercury found in fish from the Great Lakes.

Beemon said eagles were having a hard time raising young to adulthood because they were eating and feeding their young mercury-laden fish. Beemon said she is happy a pair of eagles that were moved inland were able to successfully raise young.

"We hope those baby eagles will live to an age so they too can raise young," she said.

Whether she is on a national or local level, Beemon cares about the water. As Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner, Beemon said she is concerned about the pollution in Round Lake due to drain run-off.

Beemon said the marina is undergoing a multi-million dollar project, but filter systems or separators for the drains, that would help eliminate some of the debris currently running into the lake, are overlooked.

"It's an example of how little value we put on our water," she said.

Beemon said the water will become more and more polluted over time until it is too late to correct the problem.

Beemon said people need to respect the environment and look beyond themselves.

"We have to value the long-term value of our environment," she said. "The long-term quality and health of our children is important and not short-term profits," she said.

Beemon plans to run again for Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner, which she said is the only official that directly stewards and is responsible for the water.

"It should be an absolute priority of every government servant to protect the natural resources of Charlevoix County from poor development," she said.

At the convention, Beemon also stressed the notion that true democracy is not limited to two parties.

"Democracy is bigger than two voices," she said. "If anyone thinks that democracy should be limited to Democrats and Republicans they don't believe in democracy."

Beemon said the biggest issue concerning democracy is that people have lost faith in their ability to self govern. When this happens and people no longer care, Beemon said their voice is replaced by that of corporations, which currently receive the same rights as a person.

"We just have to ask ourselves who controls democracy," she said. "Is democracy controlled by people or by money?"

Beemon said a corporation's charter should be revoked once they stop working for the public good.

Aside from corporations, Beemon targeted the electoral college as a part of her presidential platform. She said the electoral college is obsolete and non-democratic and should be abolished.

Beemon said the United States should use Instant run-off voting or majority wins, which entails a candidate receiving 50 percent of the votes or more in order to win. Beemon said this would help eliminate "spoiler" parties because the second choice is equally important.

Beemon's involvement in politics started in 1962 when she met Eleanor Roosevelt. Beemon said she remembers Roosevelt's passion for the United Nations, justice and peace.

"To realize a woman could do that and make a difference was really meaningful to me," she said.

In 1964 Beemon met Robert F. Kennedy along with about 10 other people when she heard him speak about changing the world.

"He told us to work hard, study and be involved," she said. "Then he shook our hands and wished us a good life."

Beemon said she has always been politically active including working against the Vietnam War. Due to this work, she was present in Washington, D.C., when Vietnam veterans threw their medals over the Vietnam Memorial Wall. The experience showed Beemon that people need to work for peace.

"I remember how haunted their eyes were," she said. "They were so devastated and traumatized by war."

Her involvement also includes working for women's and children's rights, volunteering in jails, working to protect a river in the St. Clair area, working for the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy, and writing the first grant for the first Women's Resource Center in Petoskey.

City gets the green light from MDOT

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The Michigan Department of Transportation updated the traffic light at the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets in downtown Charlevoix, which includes the ability to be remote-controlled by local police.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the remote-control feature will enable police to move traffic through downtown more easily after special events without putting an officer at risk.

"It's a safety issue for us because it will possibly eliminate needing an officer in the middle of the intersection," Halverson said "We can control the light from the sidewalk."

Dennis Halverson

With this new feature comes increased responsibility. Halverson said MDOT is very specific about when officers can override the sequencing.

"It's not for emergency use," he said.

Police have agreed with the policy MDOT has concerning when to override the sequencing.

"If we were to do that at any other time and an accident occurred, the city would have some problems," he said.

Halverson said police are only allowed to use the feature after special events such as Venetian fireworks, when a lot of traffic can back up Charlevoix's downtown area.

"We have a unique situation for events because there is one way in and one way out," Halverson said about Charlevoix's downtown roadway.

Halverson said the police have not officially used the new feature yet.

"We've practiced a little bit, but we're probably looking at that Venetian week for when we'll try it out and see what happens," he said.

This type of technology is not a foreign concept. Halverson said he has seen police in downstate departments use the remote-control feature after football games, but he hasn't seen it very often in Northern Michigan.

"I would guess there aren't many in the North with this capability because not many other places have a huge event," he said.

Three-vehicle wreck

Rescue workers work to extricate the driver of a 2001 Jeep Cherokee which was involved in a three-vehicle crash July 1 on U.S. 31 in Hayes Township. The Cherokee was stopped behind a 2000 Mercury Villager minivan which was attempting to turn left when a 2004 36-foot Winnebago motor home slammed into the rear of the Jeep, pushing the Jeep into the minivan.

Charlevoix's Bergmann still on the run — all the way to Australia

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Brenna Bergmann, a 2004 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is busy preparing for college and running with the best in Australia.

Bergmann will be going to Australia as a part of the Australian Cultural Enrichment Exchange and Track Competition.

"I can't wait," she said. "I'm excited to see what Australia is like because I've been to Europe and for the experience."

Bergmann said she has been to England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales and twice to France. While in Australia, Bergmann said she wants to add to the cultural knowledge she has already gained.

"I hope to gain more knowledge about other parts of the world and more experience in racing," she said.

Mary Plude, the Charlevoix High School girls' country coach, said Bergmann has a lot to gain from the program, which is designed to enrich athletes through experiencing another's culture.

"It will broaden her whole view of the world and college running," she said.

Plude said the program involves running and ambassadorship, since part of the trip is spending time in major cultural areas in Australia. The athletes will spend most of their time in major cities, but Plude said they will also venture out into parts of the country.

"It's like an exchange student program except they exchange athletes," Plude said.

The program lasts for two weeks and features two meets where United States teams race Australian national teams. Plude said this is good national/regional competition for Bergmann and others who are involved.

Bergmann, who plans to run at Aquinas College, will be in Australia for two weeks and will be able to demonstrate her talent for running.

"She was like my No. 2, No. 3 runner of the squad," Plude said of Bergmann's cross country ability.

Bergmann is the fifth runner coached by Plude who has taken part in the exchange program, which requires intense fund-raising to meet the $3,400 cost.

"You have to be a real go-getter and you've got to really want to go," Plude said.

Australia was an option for Bergmann last year as well, but she decided to go this year because she was graduating from high school. Her voyage to Australia has caused some of her younger cross country peers to seek the same program.

Bergmann said she hopes people will be more open to helping future runners attend the Australian exchange. The hardest part about going, Bergmann said, is that each runner has to raise the money themselves.

"The team wanted to go, but couldn't afford it and do what they wanted to do," she said.

In order to qualify for the invite-only exchange, Plude said a team has to make it to the state meet, which the entire cross country team did this year. Bergmann will be running with the Great Lakes Regional Team.

Plude coached Bergmann for three years in cross country after her husband, Ken, Charlevoix's boys' cross country coach at Charlevoix High School, noticed her running ability.

"I just saw her running in gym class and she had a natural build and stride," Ken Plude said.

Aside from her natural running ability, Bergmann's pedigree was another factor that prompted Plude to encourage her to try cross country.

"There's a long line of talent in the family," he said.

Plude said her relatives include Doug Bergmann and his brother Billy Taylor, who qualified for the Olympic Trials in track. Plude said both men received honors for their running in high school and college.

Racing is dear to her heart and Bergmann said she has three varsity letters for cross country and two for track and went to state for cross country two years in a row. She was also an all-region and All-Lake Michigan Conference honorable mention in the sport. Bergmann also received two varsity letters for skiing and was named to the academic all-state ski team twice.

Class of '84 initiates scholarship

Alyssia McDonough and Tess Hoagland, 2004 Charlevoix High School graduates, have received the inaugural education scholarship from the CHS Class of 1984. Each scholarship is worth $600.

McDonough plans to attend the University of Michigan and pursue a degree in elementary education, with a focus on speech and language special education. Hoagland plans to enroll at Grand Valley State University in the secondary education program and work toward a double major in English and psychology.

McDonough and Hoagland were awarded their scholarships at the high school during Honors Convocation.

The scholarship was set up by members of the Class of 1984 reunion committee to celebrate and honor the 20-year anniversary of their graduation.

To be eligible, students were required to graduate with at least 3.0 grade point average and intend to pursue a career in education. The goal, according to reunion committee member Mary Edger, is to recognize the importance of helping train well-qualified, motivated teachers and to honor our past teachers and reward the educators of the future.

As adults, and parents, we realize how much of an impact teachers have on our children. It takes a very special person to be a dedicated teacher who is passionate about their work, Edger added.

Students wrote brief personal statements describing why they wanted to become a teacher, and they included experiences they have had that they believe would help them be successful in their training and education career. Deb Devitt, a CHS counselor, headed the selection committee of teachers.

The 1984 reunion is scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday, July 17, at the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

Edger said her group hopes that other Charlevoix High School graduating classes will consider following suit. for more information, contact Tim Lablanc at Charlevoix State Bank.

Emerald Isle meets July 1 Coast Guard deadline

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Ports and vessels are to submit security plans to the United States Coast Guard by July 1 in order to be in compliance with national and international codes.

The Maritime Transportation Security Act and the International Ship and Port Facility Security Code require all ports and vessels to draw up security plans that will be submitted to the Coast Guard.

"Every facility and vessel operator that has been undergoing this whole process has been very easy to deal with," Lieutenant Jeff Ahlgren, Public Affairs Officer for the Marine Safety Office in Sault Ste. Marie, said.

The plans outline how the individual ports and vessels will handle a rise in security levels.

Ahlgren said the Coast Guard hired Black & Beetch, a nationwide consulting firm, to consolidate the plans they received from facilities.

"We've basically been given six months to work with local Coast Guard reviewers and Black & Beetch employees in Kansas City to fix any problems," Ahlgren said.

Once Black & Beetch approves the plans, Ahlgren said the Marine Safety Office begins to work with facilities on an individual basis in order to verify that the submitted plans will work for the facility.

"We make sure it's going to work for the physical location of the facility," Ahlgren said.

Ahlgren said vessels send their plans directly to the Marine Safety Center in Washington, D.C. From here, Ahlgren said the Marine Safety Center calls the individual Captains of the Ports and works with them directly without an outside consulting firm.

Charlevoix's own Emerald Isle is one vessel being looked at to ensure all proper security guidelines are in place.

Micheal Randall, Safety and Security Coordinator for Beaver Island Boat Co., said an infrastructure has already been in place and the submitted plan will simply provide the Coast Guard with written documentation.

"It's not going to have any adverse affect on us unless the MarSec (maritime security) Levels change," Randall said.

Randall said the Beaver Island Boat Co. has implemented its policy in accordance to guidelines set out by the Passenger Vehicle Association in order to meet security requirements set forth by the Coast Guard.

"We're trying to mitigate any vulnerabilities we have," he said.

Randall said the Beaver Island Boat Co. is trying to be proactive by having signs and cameras where people can see them.

The Beaver Island Boat Co. screens vehicles closely, which are usually dropped off 90 minutes before the boat docks in Round Lake, Randall said.

"We screen vehicles to eliminate possible hazards whether terrorist threat or not," he said.

Randall said searches will be conducted if the MarSec Level rises or an individual situation requires that kind of attention. Otherwise, Randall said the tightened security is to ensure everyone's safety.

"We're trying to keep people safe, not hassle them," he said.

Since vehicles arrive early and the transit time to the island takes about two hours, Randall said there is more time to do proper vehicle checks than other ferries that carry more vehicles.

Some ferries, like the Staten Island Ferry, no longer carry vehicles as a result of Sept. 11.

"It's changed the industry a lot," Randall said.

Aside from vehicles, Beaver Island Boat Co. employees are being educated on how to handle a rise in security.

Randall said the training level for all employees has been elevated in order to ensure everyone knows about the certain protocol and response factors used in certain situations.

"For the most part this is not going to affect the general public and overall operation," Randall said. "Most people won't be aware of changes, so it's more of an elevated awareness."

Bids for road work could be in by late summer

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The design for a new US-31/Boyne City-Charlevoix roads intersection is still being decided upon.

Charlevoix County Road Commission manager Pat Harmon said the survey work for the area around the intersection was completed early last week.

The next phase is to have the survey work analyzed with the help of Northwest Design Group in order to figure out how the engineering should be done, draw up blueprints, and compile a bid pack.

Harmon said he hopes bidding can be accomplished in late summer or early fall.

The county will use the $200,000 grant it received from the Michigan Department of Transportation to fund the project, Harmon said.

Construction of the intersection is scheduled to start in spring, 2005, and Harmon said the goal is to have construction complete the Fourth of July next year, which is to ensure traffic doesn't back up due to an increase in the summer population.

Handle foods safely to avoid potential illness

The potential for foodborne illness is present regardless of whether you are camping at home, on a picnic or eating in a restaurant, according to officials with the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties.

"Foodborne illnesses are not that uncommon, and the risks, although low, are real," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, Medical Director. "Foodborne illness can be prevented by following basic food safety measures and food handling techniques."

1. Many foods are best in their natural state, such as fruits and vegetables; others are not safe unless they have been processed. All vegetables and fruits eaten raw need thorough washing. When assembling cold salads, chill all ingredients before assembling the salad, including the dressing and canned meats.

2. Cook food thoroughly. Many raw foods, notably poultry and meats, are often contaminated with disease-causing agents. Thorough cooking will kill germs, but the temperature of all parts of most foods must reach at least 165 degrees F. Use a thermometer to make sure the food has reached the proper temperature.

3. Eat cooked foods immediately. When cooked foods cool to below 140 degrees F, germs begin to grow.

4. Store cooked foods immediately. If you must prepare foods in advance or want to keep leftovers, be sure to store them either hot (140 degrees F or above), or cold (41 degrees F or below). If hot foods are to be refrigerated, they must be rapidly cooled to 41 degrees F or less in fewer than four hours.

5. Reheat cooked foods thoroughly and quickly. All parts of the food must reach at least 165 degrees F within two hours.

6. Avoid contact between raw and cooked foods. Safely cooked food can become contaminated through even the slightest contact with raw foods. Wash and sanitize all utensils and cutting boards after they have been used for raw meats and before cutting raw vegetables and fruits.

7. Wash hands repeatedly. People should always wash their hands thoroughly before working with ready-to-eat foods and after using the bathroom, using a handkerchief, touching any soiled object or surface, handling raw food (especially poultry and meat), eating, smoking, and touching or scratching any area of the body including ears, mouth, nose or hair.

8. Maintain adequate hand washing facilities. This includes hot and cold running water, soap, paper towels.

9. Keep all kitchen surfaces clean and sanitized.

10. Protect foods from insects, rodents and other animals.

11. Use water and ice from approved sources i.e. city water supply, bottled water, bagged ice.

12. Do not thaw foods at room temperature. Frozen foods must be thawed in a refrigerator or as part of the cooking process.

13. Ask questions. Contact the health department if you have questions or concerns about food safety or food handling.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities. For more information about safely handling food to avoid illnesses, contact Penny Massey, Food Service Supervisor, at the Otsego office of the health department at (989) 732-1794.

Annual home tour features variety

The 2004 Charlevoix Home Tour is scheduled for 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday, July 17.

Five amazing homes are featured on the tour, which is hosted by the Kappa Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, including an arts & crafts style cottage in the Charlevoix Country Club, a beautiful contemporary lake home on Round Lake, a magnificent "up north" retreat and an elegant beach house on Lake Michigan, and a cozy historic log home at Pine Point.

This year is the second year the tour will take place on a Saturday. Proceeds benefit the Charlevoix Area Hospital's obstetrics and cancer departments, along with a playground equipment donation for Bright Beginnings Pre-School.

Tickets are $20 and available in Charlevoix at The Apple Tree, Shop of the Gulls and the Clothing Company; in Boyne City at Country Books; and in Petoskey at the Quiet Moose and the chamber of commerce. Tickets may also be purchased the day of the tour at any of the homes. Directions to the homes are provided in the ticket book and at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Additional information and illustrations of the homes can be found at: www.charlevoixhometour.com.

A home-by-home sketch of this year's tour:

— Carole Huebotter, 12227 N. Country Club Drive. This cottage-style home sits on a beautiful wooded setting in the Charlevoix Country Club, creating a complimentary relationship between the home and the club, resulting in a feeling of "tree-house living." Elements of the arts-and-crafts style can be found in the home's details and culminate in the Frank Lloyd Wright leaded glass window in the master bedroom. The furnishings, artifacts, art collections and books have all been selected over the owner's lifetime. Carole's personal style and fondness for European antiques and whimsy can be found in every corner of this lovely home. Architectural design, Ron Way; builder, Way Building Contractors; kitchen and bath design: Jill Keene, Preston Feather; interior design, Carole Huebotter.

— Alvin & Patsy Ranger, 08295 Eastern Ave. Built in the early 1800s, the cottage is one of the original log cabin summer dwellings in the Pine Point subdivision. It features artifacts from the sinking of the steamship Bradley off Beaver Island in the violent 1958 storm , including a broken lifeboat oar, tiller and wooden bailing scoop along with photos of the Bradley and the Edmund Fitzgerald, which were given to Mrs. Ranger's late father, Great Lakes author William Ratigan, by the owners of the respective ships. The cottage also features original copies of maps by Charlevoix artist Irene Young, wife of noted Charlevoix builder and designer, Earl A. Young. During its remodel in 1989, the original log cabin was converted into a living-dining area. Alvin Ranger designed the addition with help from his architect friend, Hans Weimer. Hans Kretschman, stonemason of East Jordan, rebuilt the stone fireplace. The original walls, writer's desk and handmade furniture all add to the unique "old log cabin" feel.

— Ron & Terry Hughes, 219 Belvedere Ave. This spectacular home is nestled into its surroundings, taking full advantage of the views of Round Lake. The strength of the architecture and the quality of its construction gives the home a feeling that is second to none. The shingle style home uses rich materials both inside and out which establish its quality. The interiors are created with a unique blend of new merged with old to create a feeling of comfortable elegance. Architects, Bob Bryck and Janet Ford; builder: Ray Wallick, Inc. Interior design, Richard Ross and Jeff King; bathrooms, closets, special flooring, Indesign.

— Andre and Lisa Radandt, 14529 Park Ave. A recently remodeled beach front home mixes a blend of antique with the Orient, cottage style with contemporary to create comfortable elegance. The many windows provide amazing views of the crashing waves on Lake Michigan. Updated kitchen, dining and sitting rooms let the homeowners entertain in style. The bedrooms evoke cozy memories of up-north getaways, and the deck overlooking the shoreline is simply breathtaking. Architect/interior design, DusnerHeighes; remodel contractor, Glenwood Custom Homes; cabinetry, Thomas DeJonge Woodworking, Inc.

— Norbert & Margaret Murray, 13109 Bay St. A charming Lake Michigan home takes full advantage of the spectacular views offered by the North Pointe shoreline. The home features a shingle-style exterior, beautiful landscaping, and a warm, inviting interior with the lush seating, soft drapery, collected casework, and beautiful artwork combine to make the home a must-see. Home Design, Jodi Alger; builder, Jeff Wilhem Builders, Inc.; interior design, Indesign.

Rich Charlevoix history on display at Harsha House

"Iddings wanted to know exactly when the stock for his hardware store was arriving," Miles added.

The first mayor of Charlevoix isn't the only first on display. The "firsts" of Charlevoix is one of the larger exhibits and includes the first settlers, Medad and Phoebe Thompson, who farmed the area now known as Ferry beach.

"A few of the Thompson's descendants still live in this area," he said.

Civil war veteran E. H. Green was editor of Charlevoix's first newspaper, the Sentinel.

"He was shot in the thigh and foot at the first battle of Bull Run," Miles said. "He lay on the battlefield for six days and six nights until he was removed."

From that point, Green walked with a limp and carried a gold tipped cane, which is also on display.

"Willard A. Smith, the first newspaper publisher in Charlevoix, took over the editorship of the Sentinel from E. H. Green in 1871," Miles said, adding that Smith published the Sentinel for nearly 50 years.

According to Miles, the first dentist in town built the space where Simple Things gift store is located. The second floor of which the first telephone switchboard was installed.

Egbert Carpenter built the first business south of Clinton Street.

According to Miles, as the area was dense forest at the time, the town thought him mad. But soon the entire south end of Charlevoix was cleared to make room for new shops.

The shiniest exhibit came about as a result of a chance finding. During the relocation of equipment from the old high school someone discovered boxes of trophies under the bleachers. Dating from 1906-59, the trophies cover Charlevoix High School sports including football, basketball and track and field.

"We had many photos in our archives which we were able to match with the trophies in the new display," Miles said.

High school sports pictures range from a young Chuck Fairbanks, who would eventually be named the NFL's coach of the year in 1976 while leading the New England Patriots, to the 1945 and 1958 Charlevoix High School football teams, both of which did not allow their respective opponents to score a point all season.

"I think a lot of people will be interested in the local basketball teams from 1910-55, track from 1947-56 and football from 1945-58," Miles said. "We also have many photographs on file for people to look at."

According to Miles a family recently visited the Harsha House from Jakobstad, Finland. It seems they traveled all the way to northern Michigan to see where their forebearers worked and lived many years ago.

Luckily for Charlevoix residents, a trip to the Harsha House museum is less of a hassle.

KEVIN A.
ELSENHEIMER
Republican for 105th House District

Who really is the strongest voice for Northern Michigan?

Only one candidate for the 105th is:

a lifelong resident of Northern Michigan, supported for endorsement by each of the four county farm bureaus in the 105th district, including Charlevoix County, endorsed by the Michigan Townships Association, Michigan Farm Bureau, and Sentator George McManus, Jr.,

a true Northern Michigan businessman who employs eight, provides health care and retirement benefits to his employees and actually pays the Single Business Tax, a former school board member and assistant prosecutor, an expert in zoning and land use.

The strongest voice for Charlevoix is Kevin Elsenheimer!

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Exhibit features town's first mayor

The Charlevoix Historical Society is featuring an Exhibit on Hon. H.L. Iddings, the first mayor of Charlevoix.

Harvey Lee Iddings was born in Oxford, Ohio, Nov. 1856, to the Rev. Joseph Talbot and Martha Ann Iddings. He received his education in the public schools and was a graduate of Albion College. He was married in Albion to Miss Nellie Gale and had three daughters, Dorothy, Constance and Horatio.

He came to Charlevoix about 1884, and entered into the hardware business with M.J. Stockman, a partnership that continued several years after which Mr. Iddings conducted the business under the name of the Charlevoix Hardware Co.

Mr. Iddings always took an active part in public affairs and while a strong Republican in politics speaking often in behalf of his party in national and state campaigns, was a believer in non-partisanship in municipal affairs and was often called upon to serve the people in an official capacity, as supervisor of the township, and a member of the village board. In June of 1905 the Michigan legislature incorporated Charlevoix as a city.

Mr. Iddings was the first mayor of the City of Charlevoix and had served several terms on the board of education of which he was president at the time of his death in 1910 at the age of 54.

He was member of the Methodist Church and of the different branches of the Masonic Order in which he took an active interest as well as the Maccabees, with whom he carried $2,000 insurance.

It's festival time

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The 74th Annual Venetian Festival has undergone some changes, including moving events out to Castle Farms and featuring a sports theme that will continue throughout the years.

Dan Barron, Board President of the Venetian Festival, said activities were moved to Castle Farms because of the location itself and downtown traffic.

"We can alleviate some of the pedestrian and vehicular congestion downtown," he said. "It helps strike a proper balance between the festival and daily activities downtown."

The Castle Farms activities are on Tuesday, July 20 and will feature several lawn games, elephant rides and various other activities.

Whether one ventures out to Castle Farms or downtown, there is a lot to see during the Venetian Festival.

Barron said Friday, July 23 is set aside as Heritage Day, which will be located in East Park. In order to stick with the sports theme, Barron said this year's heritage day exhibition is called Charlevoix Sports Legends.

The Charlevoix Historical Society is hosting the event, which will have memorabilia from past teams on display with a focus on basketball. Barron said next year's focus will be football.

The sports theme of the festival is focused on basketball and will highlight legendary teams, coaches and players.

Barron said one basketball player who went on to have a successful time is Keith Carey, a Charlevoix High School alumni. Barron said Carey played basketball for Alma College and then for the semi-professional team the Midland Dow, which was the predecessor to the Minneapolis Lakers now called the L.A. Lakers.

Change made in boat parade

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Changes are in store for the 74th Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival Boat Parade.

The parade usually started from the east side of Pine River Channel leading into Lake Charlevoix, but this year the boats are entering Round Lake from the west side of Pine River Channel connecting to Lake Michigan.

John Taylor, Boat Parade Chairman, said the idea was to ensure increased boater safety for those involved in the parade and those coming into the harbor to watch the parade.

"The channel is a more controlled water zone," he said. "When you're coming in through the Lake Charlevoix side you're at the mercy of other boaters and boat zones."

Since the channel is a no wake zone, Taylor said boaters will be able to maneuver more safely in and out and during the time they float while waiting to proceed in

Man arrested for attempted murder

A 69-year-old South Arm Township man was arrested July 2 for attempted murder after he assaulted a 47-year-old Marion Township man around 2:30 p.m., July 2 in Marion Township.

According to Sheriff George T. Lasater said Robert B. Ernst got into an argument at 1063 Marion Center Road with Aldero Alejandro Saragosa over some property. Witnesses say Ernst sprayed Saragosa with pepper spray and then struck him repeatedly in the head with an 11 inch steel bar.

Lasater said witnesses took the bar away to prevent further injury. Saragosa was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital where he was treated and released. He is still under a doctor's care.

Deputies located Ernst about two hours later at another Marion Township residence and took him into custody. A warrant for his arrest was authorized by the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office for attempted murder and use of a self defense spray on a person.

Ernst appeared in front of a Ninetieth District Court Magistrate on July 3 and bond was set at $50,000 cash or surety.

Some thoughts on parenthood and politics

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

It's summer in Charlevoix !

Yes, after what seemed like an eternity of cold rainy weather, we are blessed with the appearance of the sun and warmth.

So, here are some warm weather thoughts from your editor.

Thank you

First of all I would like to thank Petoskey News-Review editor Andy Sneddon for his help last week.

For those of you who do not know, I was out of the office last week due to the birth of my daughter, Kiera Jean McBain on July 4. Because of this, our sister paper the Petoskey News-Review sent us one of their own to design and edit last week's edition of the Courier.

I appreciate the help, Sneddon. Now it is time for me to catch up on Charlevoix happenings while I was gone.

A new parenting lesson

On the subject of children, I have learned a great deal since the birth of my daughter.

I have learned that I can clean any foul and icky looking substance off of my baby's butt in the process of changing a diaper. I have learned that babies generally like to mess their diapers soon after they have been changed into a new one and sometimes while they are being changed. I have learned that you really don't need sleep.

But, there is one other thing that I have learned, that is the Charlevoix Area Hospital is the answer for new parents.

Here is the story — my daughter was born in a large out of town hospital which shall remain nameless. This was because my wife's doctor works in this other town and does all of her births there.

I noticed just how different this hospital was than our local one when we got our baby home the first night. Here we were, my wife and I home for the first time with our brand new baby. We were very nervous to say the least. Our nerves were pulled even more when we noticed a slight amount of blood on her belly button.

According to the paperwork the hospital sent home with us, we were suppost to call the doctor if there was any bleeding. So, my wife called this other hospital's birthing department to ask if we should be worried about a little blood on Kiera's bellybutton and if we should bring her in. However, my wife was told that the birthing nurses do not answer questions anymore and they sent her call to the pediatrics department. But, the pediatrics department would not answer her question either and told her to call the "doctor on call."

However, upon calling that number, my wife discovered it was an answering machine at the doctor's office. The answering machine did give another number for my wife to call, but stated doing so would result in a $13 fee.

At this point, my wife was a little upset. So, I suggested she just call Charlevoix Area Hospital.

As soon as she called Charlevoix Area Hospital, my wife was put in contact with a nurse who told her it was OK for our baby to have a little blood on her bellybutton and not to worry. What a relief.

Her bellybutton is fine now, but in that moment I realized how lucky my wife and I were to live in a community with Charlevoix Area Hospital helping to keep my family safe and ease our worries as we raise our daughter.

Politics

Once again we are in the midst of another political season. Candidates for every office from township to president of the United States are clamoring for our support and votes. It is always fun for a newspaper to watch candidates make their cases to the public and exciting as the political process runs its course.

But, there is one group of people that sometimes make me cringe — hard-line party supporters.

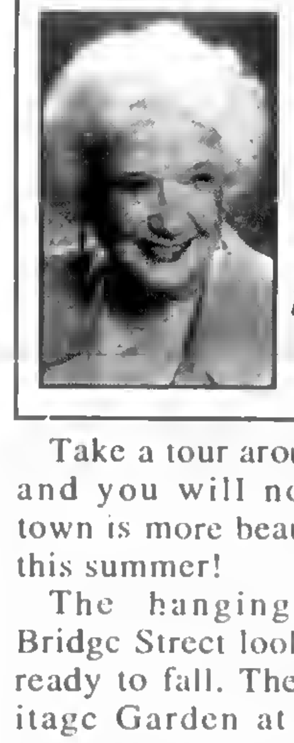
You know who they are. The people spouting off about how their political party — be it Democrat, Republican or Green — is the answer and all the others are full of baloney. Regardless of how many mistakes their candidate makes they will support them to the bitter end just because they are a member of that political party — sometimes I think these people would be against God if He was in a different political party as theirs.

Come on people. Our political system was set up to have more than one political party in power. This creates compromise which creates better laws which in turn creates a better country. Think of all the places were one party is the only one in power — Iraq, Iran, Afghanistan before we invaded — and you can clearly see more than one party in power makes a country free.

Please save your political party pandering for another editor. It really doesn't matter which party a candidate belongs too, just as long as he or she is good for this country.

Jeremy McBain is the editor of the Charlevoix Courier. He can be contacted by calling (231) 547-6558 or e-mailing news@charlevoixcourier.com.

The beautifying of our Charlevoix continues today



Edith Gilbert

'Behind the news'

Take a tour around Charlevoix and you will notice that our town is more beautiful than ever this summer!

The hanging baskets on Bridge Street look like ripe fruit ready to fall. The dazzling Heritage Garden at the Depot on Lake Charlevoix has already received a national award!

Nature has provided us with more than enough rain to help Dale Boss water the petunias with his 15,000 gallons of water from the Petunia Truck and as a result they have never been prettier. Dale told me that ,"We also didn't use any weed killer this year and that was a big plus as well."

Whoever was responsible for allocating the new seamless addition to City Hall is to be highly commended. It is such a pleasure to see how well the new building matches the old without a break between the two. The same holds true for the smooth expansion of the Episcopal Church. Its congregation is now blessed with a sorely needed fellowship hall, kitchen and additional office space.

I dropped by the new upscale coffee shop on Bridge Street called Woolly Bugger, where I had a pleasant chat with the owner. In case you wondered, he explained that Woolly Bugger is the name of a fly used for trout fishing and it's part of the décor. I urge you to try the tasty, take out basil and tomato soup they offer on Tuesdays.

Remember to take a look at the lovely tile tableau imported from Holland when you're waiting for the red light at the corner of Bridge and Clinton streets. It's above the door of North Seas Antique Shop.

People have noticed the Boss, cruising in Oyster Bay. This beautifully restored antique boat was built in 1921, and formerly captained by the late Arthur Ranger.

According to an article dated in Traverse Magazine, June 1996, the Boss has had only two owners, the Alvin Goldman's from St. Louis, who used to summer on Michigan Avenue, and the Brandt family from Grand Rapids. We're happy to report that the mahogany yacht is now back home again docked in a boathouse on Round Lake.

We all remember the brouhaha when the Earl Young building was torn down on Bridge Street, where the Apple Tree Gift Shop was located. Well, I am happy to report that the reconstruction on Auld and Petoskey is almost finished and it will look really nice.

Finally, we all know that there's something going on every minute at Castle Farms. In addition to concerts, antique shows, and hosting a family entertainment center, the staff is able to handle 3 weddings a day! Curious and amazed visitors with digital cameras, enjoy photographing the restored turrets, as well as the new fountain in the cobble-stoned courtyard.

This summer the only local crisis that I have noticed is created by the swallows nesting at the Charlevoix Area Pool! Steve Hansen has a plan to lure them away from building nests under the eaves, where their droppings create a problem by staining the sliding glass doors. I wish him luck.

Compared to what is going on in the rest of the world — that ain't much of a problem now is it?

Be responsible

Editor:

An incident occurred a few nights ago that endangered my life. A neighbor of mine chose to exercise one of his rights and privileges by firing a black powder cannon in his possession. When an individual fires a black powder cannon, a thunderous booming explosion results, much like that of an 81mm mortar. It shuttered my family's barn, and not even 600 bales of hay could dampen its resounding roar. Such an unexpected loud noise caught both my husband and me off guard as we were working our draft horses. It is a most frightening experience to be caught between two 2,000-pound draft horses when such an explosion occurs. After calming one of the horses down and starting to lead him out of the barn, another explosion occurred and luckily someone was watching over me as I once again calmed him and got him out of the barn safely. He could have easily trampled me as his natural instinct told him to run to escape the powerful and threatening sound.

People must take advantage of their rights and privileges responsibly. One often hears people say that it is their right (not privilege) to drive a car, own and fire weapons, and drink if they are of proper age and have complied with the laws pertaining to those rights. But where does responsibility come into play? Being responsible for the most part is following the lines of common sense and the expectations of society and the law. Sometimes though, the rights and privileges of one person as illustrated through his or her actions can endanger another's safety. Ensuring the safety of others while pursuing one's personal rights should be a top priority.

Individual rights must be preserved, but so must the rights of individual safety. Before someone considers firing an explosive device that causes an out of the ordinary sound or otherwise engages in an activity potentially dangerous to others, one has an obligation to consider his or her surroundings and possible repercussions or consequences of his or her actions. My family lives in the country, but neighbors, livestock and traffic are nearby to feel the effects to the actions occurring around them . Situation awareness should precede any action that could result in another's injury.

Realistic scenarios that could lead to injury include but are not limited to someone being thrown from a horse, someone being kicked or run over while hitching horses, startling beef cattle, dairy cows, or other livestock, and defense maneuvers from unsuspecting motorists reacting to the explosion causing an accident. Please think over the possibilities before you act.

Great job

Editor:

Three weeks ago, Richard and Linda Mueller opened their newly refurbished Castle Farms to the community with a day of fun activities, food, tours and hospitality. What a spectacular renovation, done after much research, care, planning and craftsmanship. A stunning example of how this property of historic interest has been restored and now open for conventions, weddings, group meetings, social events concerts, art fairs and others.

Richard and Linda researched castles in France, England and Scotland, and returned with a goal in mind, to restore Castle Farms. And they have done a masterful job, if you get the opportunity, talk to them, they are friendly, support each other, are charming and fun to be with. More importantly they are interested in Charlevoix, its history, its people, its culture. We all welcome Richard and Linda and thank them for their time, investment and feeling for our Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Moore brainwashes

Editor:

Michael Moore traveled to Europe and told everyone the American people are stupid. He allowed no exceptions for the tens of thousands of Americans who payed to be artfully brainwashed by his partisan political "crockumentary." Maybe Moore has a point.

I will grant him one thing. He is an ingeneous propagandist whose fame precedes him around the world. There is no doubt in my mind that Michael Moore ranks right up there with the late Leni Reifenstahl.

Supreme follies

Editor:

What a Court!

Talk about dodging the bullet or biting it; the Supreme Court is shooting but missing the target.

It all started when they ruled nine to zip that a civil case against the president wouldn't interfere with his job — wrong — it almost wrecked his second term in office.

Then they just ruled that HMOs cannot be sued under state law even if the patient dies because the HMO would not pay for doctor prescribed medicine or hospitalization.

And finally, to use the excuse that a parent didn't have enough custody to rule on "under God" in the pledge is ludicrous. They better step up and "take the shot" because for sure it will come up again.

Response to Hamilton letter

Editor:

I would like to add some perspective to the comments made by Barb Hamilton in her recent letter to the editor.

The Township Supervisor, Wayne Boss, has been inconsistent in his words and deeds. During the May meeting he stated that he would provide the road report and that he may never provide the report. He had been promising the report for five months and had not delivered. During the June meeting he started out with an emotional and heartfelt apology to a woman whom he had treated very poorly at the May meeting. Minutes later he was personally attacking Marion in a manner consistent with that for which he had just apologized.

There are many reasons that Norwood Township needs people like Marion to keep the elected officials accountable. Norwood Township is being investigated for possible violations of the Open Meetings act. The clerk, Doris Pearl, has admitted to violations of the Freedom of Information Act.

During the supervisor's self-appointed term as interim Zoning Administrator we have had Zoning Permits issued illegally and a lot split granted without regard for state or township law. We have Zoning Permits signed by persons not authorized to do so.

The township board has failed to fill a vacancy in the ZBA according to law. There are possible violations of state law regarding road improvements in the township. The former Zoning Administrator resigned after 13 examples of selective enforcement and favoritism were published to the Planning Commission and the Township Board.

There are many other examples that I'd be happy to share with anyone who is interested.

There are serious issues that need to be addressed in Norwood Township. The township supervisor's approach to addressing the issues is to personally attack the individuals that try to bring the issues to light. The clerk then manipulates the minutes of the meetings to disparage the individuals who speak out against the illegal deeds and the potential acts of misconduct.

With officials like this we should perhaps have law enforcement and legal counsel at every meeting.

Norwood Township needs more people like Marion Shea-Light who are willing to stand up for what is right and challenge any appearance of wrong doing or impropriety. The citizens of Norwood Township would be well served if all of the members of the township boards and commissions would take their responsibilities as seriously as Marion.

Kur a fine prosecutor

Editor:

This letter was prompted by Jeremy McBain's article, which appeared in the Courier on June 23 about Mary Beth Kur. I worked as an assistant prosecuting attorney under Mary Beth Kur from May 2001 to May 2002, when I left to pursue an attractive career opportunity. I have no stake in the outcome of the upcoming election. My sole purpose in writing this letter is to provide the voters of Charlevoix County an insider's perspective of the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's office, free from the stain of hard-ball politics and hurt feelings.

John Jarema, Jennifer Deegan and Kerry Zahner also worked as assistant prosecutors while I was there (John was fired in early 2002). Since then, Jennifer and Kerry have been unfairly dragged into this political struggle. I found them both to be very hardworking, professional and effective prosecutors. The name of the game was results, and it was not uncommon for them to sacrifice their nights and weekends to better prepare for trial. This was the example set by Mary Beth.

If I lived in Charlevoix County, I would not hesitate to vote for Mary Beth Kur. During the Shulick murder trial, Mary Beth proved that she is a tough, skilled, and determined prosecutor who is committed to justice and the safety of the people of Charlevoix County.

No number of drunk-driving trials can test a prosecutor's mettle or ability like one small-town murder trial against a high-priced, aggressive defense attorney. Mary Beth Kur does not belong to any "old-boy" network, does not pander to any special groups and does not play favorites among defense attorneys. That may not bolster her popularity, but it does make for an ethical and effective public servant.

Jarema a good pick

Editor:

I can personally attest to the litigation competency of John Jarema. My daughter and I were victims of a heinous crime, and had the good fortune of having Mr. Jarema, then an assistant prosecuting attorney, represent us.

His skillful and thorough prosecution brought about a maximum prison sentence for the offender and much relief to us. Mr. Jarema's court standards were exemplary. He was committed, ethical and compassionate. I will vote for John Jarema for prosecuting attorney in his upcoming election, and I will urge others to do so as well.

Vote Jarema

Editor:

Time for a change!

I'm writing to all of you about the upcoming election for prosecutor in Charlevoix County. I've known John Jarema for 7 years now, and he is someone we can all be proud of while representing Charlevoix County as prosecutor. If you haven't had a chance to met John, I hope that you do.

John is not only a wonderful father to his two girls and a wonderful husband to my sister, Krista; he is an honest man who has earned a tremendous amount of respect in this community. He has proven in the past that he wants what is best for Charlevoix County and stands up for what he believes.

We need a prosecutor who will fight for what is right and truly cares about the families in Charlevoix County. John is a man of integrity and has a strong, honest work ethic. It's time for a change and time to elect a prosecutor we can all be proud of. Please join me along with many other supporters on Aug. 3, in showing your support for John Jarema

Take out the porn

Editor:

On Feb. 18, 2004, the Charlevoix Ministerial Association (CMA) wrote a letter to the Family Video store of Charlevoix asking them to remove the Adult Pornographic Video Section from our local store. We received no response from this letter.

So on March 1, 2004, we resent the exact same letter addressed to the General Manager Mr. Ryan Mast, but this time we sent it Certified/Return Receipt. The letter was received by the store March 2, 2004. We asked in our second letter to receive a response by Monday, March 8, 2004.

Michael Smith, Pastor of the Ironton Congregational Church and Member of the CMA, called and spoke with Mr. Mast the following week and Mr. Mast informed him that the letter had been forwarded to the corporate headquarters.

As of this day, Tuesday, June 8, 2004, no response has been received.

As Charlevoix residents we appreciate Family Video for becoming part of our local business community and creating jobs and revenue for our area.

More importantly, we are also members of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association and are committed to serve our church members and this community on matters of morality. Given this responsibility, we strongly oppose the Adult Pornographic Video Section offered at our local Charlevoix store.

The ministerial association feels strongly, and studies show, that pornography rips away at the heart of the family. We live and work in a family-rich community that values protecting and edifying the family unit. Offering these materials denigrates that ideal.

Pastor Michael C. Smith
Ironton Congregational Church
Member, Charlevoix Ministerial Association

JIM KANARY RETIRES

Jim Kanary, president of Citizens Bank in Charlevoix retired on June 18th after 37 years of working for the same company. Jim started his career with Second National Bank of Saginaw, which was acquired by Citizens Bank in the mid 1980's. Jim will be greatly missed in his position. Jim served on the Chamber Board of Directors from 1999 - 2001. Jim served as Treasurer and was on the Chamber's executive committee, and budget committee in 2000 and 2001. Since 2000 Jim has also played an instrumental role in serving on the building committee. Jim and his wife Mary Ellen plan on remaining active and spending more time with their children and grandchildren. The Charlevoix Chamber greatly appreciates the time and service that Jim Kanary has contributed to the chamber and the community. Thanks Jim and Happy Retirement!

CYBER SHIRE OPENS IN OLESON'S SHOPPING CENTER

Cyber Shire – An Internet café without the coffee might be one way to describe this new enterprise. We offer a Local Area Network (LAN) of 14 PCs and are fully wired to meet the broadband width demands of today's high-speed Internet browsers and software applications. Computers are available by the hour with discounts offered for bulk Cyber Shire membership. Computer education of all sorts will soon be available. We are Charlevoix's only computer gaming center and we encourage LAN parties. Plans are to also offer computer repair services, virus cleanup and technical assistance. Find us at 104 Antrim Street in downtown Oleson's Plaza or call 237-1439.

CASTLE FARMS WELCOMES ALAN LOVELACE

Alan Lovelace has joined Castle Farms as full time Operations Manager. Alan moved from Starkville, Mississippi, to Charlevoix after going to graduate school at Mississippi State University. Alan will be awarded his graduate degree in December of 2004 in industrial engineering. His specialty is in Total Quality Management.

THE ALPACAS & LLAMAS ARE CUTE, BUT WHAT DO YOU DO WITH THEM?

The "Savvy Selection" at Maplewood Farm quickly answers that question posed by curious onlookers who stop by the side of the Boyne City/Charlevoix Road near Horton Bay to enjoy watching the Alpacas and Llamas grazing in the pastures. The new store is a traditional northern Michigan haven to fine, casual and outdoor clothing made from Alpaca fleece. Throw rugs, pillows and plush toy animals, all made from Alpaca, are also available. But the real jewel is the fleece itself, and the store stocks Alpaca/Llamas yarn, rovings and prime fleece for spinning, weaving and knitting. The store is owned and operated by Nel Vickers, an industry pioneer. Store hours are 10 am to 6pm on most Saturdays, by special appointment during the week. For information call 582-6740 or visit www.maplewood-farm.org.

School teaches boaters art of sailing

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

The Charlevoix Mariners in coordination with 4-H MSU Extension will begin another summer of sail school starting Monday, July 12.

Tom Orlow, sail school program director who was hired four years ago, said, "It's a phenomenal opportunity for kids and adults to learn a lifetime skill at affordable rates."

The Charlevoix Mariners started the sail school program about 20 years ago when a group of community-minded people in the area saw the need for an opportunity to learn to sail for local kids as well as summer residents. Since then, the sail school program has grown immensely.

The program has moved to north Depot Beach. In the past, it was on the south side of the beach.

After about 10 years of running the sail school program, the Charlevoix Mariners found that the sail school was too much for the five-member board to handle, so they formed an agreement with 4-H. Now, 4-H handles payroll and accounting for the sail school program. MSU Extension also provides insurance liability for sail school instructors.

Signs of growth within the sail school program are everywhere. The equipment now includes nine sailboats, five Opti sailboats, a Lightning sailboat, a J-22 sailboat, a cargo trailer, and three Whalers.

Equipment isn't the only sign of growth within the sailing school program. In the Boyne City location earlier this summer, enrollment records were broken.

This summer 150 students enrolled, compared to last year's enrollment of 120. Total enrollment last year was 450 students.

Another instructor has also been added to the program, to make five instructors. Head instructor is Trevor Davis, who teaches with instructors Laura Schira, Bridget McAvoy and Mike Kelly, as well as junior leader Lindsay Stahl.

Two new programs have also been added. The first is an adult sailing class, which is in part with Boyne City Community Education. For information on the adult sailing class call Orlow at (231) 675-5644 or (231) 537-4484.

The second program is a racing class for kids from 5– 7 p.m. on Tuesday and Friday. The class runs on a drop-in basis, and costs $15 per class.

Sail school for ages 8-19 runs two classes per day. A one-week session costs $70. Donations have made scholarships possible for Charlevoix county students and home school students to attend a one-week session for $30.

For registration, call Orlow or the MSU youth 4-H Extension Office at (231) 582-6232.

To run the programs involved the Mariners rely on donations and revenue from a boat auction. The auction will take place at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 20 at Irish on Ferry Avenue. Registration must take place from 5 -7 p.m. the day before.

"If we're going to continue to grow, we need to do well with that," said Orlow about the auction.

The Charlevoix Mariners are always looking for donations for the auction or for sail school. To make a tax-deductible donation call Jeff Glunny at (231)547-9967.

The board members are Dick Shaible (president), Keith Attee (vice president), Tom Barnes (treasurer), Steve Hufford (secretary), and Jeff Glenny (auction coordinator).

City veteran, Staley, named to commission

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Ken Staley, long-time participant in local government, is to be the newest member of the City Planning Commission.

Ken Staley

Staley is replacing Barbara Fels who resigned due to lack of time.

Mayor Gabe Campbell appointed Staley to the position and city council members unanimously approved.

"I sat on with the planners way back before the charter," Staley said. "So, I was interested in being brought up to date."

When planning for a city, Staley said one has to look 25 years down the road for one plan, five years for another and also looking to the year ahead.

Staley said Charlevoix became the first city to have zoning laws in northern Michigan in 1941. He said the system put in place was effective, but rough going.

Despite the rough beginning, Staley said the early zoning laws allowed the city to figure out where they wanted to go in regards to growth.

"When compared to other northern Michigan cities, I think we're further along in the ideal situation of growth and so forth," he said.

This growth has continued over the years and Staley said the early laws put Charlevoix ahead of its time.

"Over the years you see them (commissions) heading in the direction we were 25 years ago," Staley said.

Staley has lived in Charlevoix all his life and as a result has been involved in local politics.

His political career began around 1949 when he ran for city council. Staley said before and after that moment he willing took the reins of many unwanted jobs within the local government.

In 1969, Staley was elected for County Commissioner, which he said was called County Supervisor at the time. Staley said he was on the County Board of Commissioners (Supervisors) for eight years and also took part in various other committees, which resulted in his gaining political experience.

"I have a lot of experience in different angles (of government)," Staley said.

The planning commission position is not new to Staley, for he has been a part of three planning commissions in his lifetime.

"It's really important in the city and townships," he said. "I think if it's followed according to law, you improve projects from time to time, but ideally you get where you'd want to be."

Former clerk, Arlene Staley, named to board of review

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Arlene Staley

Arlene Staley was appointed as the newest member of the Board of Review.

Staley will be replacing Diana Gully, who is now on the Planning Commission.

"I guess the Mayor thought since I was city clerk and took minutes for the Board of Review I knew enough," she said.

Staley said she was city clerk for about seven years, but this year will be her first as a board member.

"I'm just going to go in and do what I can," she said. "I don't really have the experience or know what they need."

Campbell said Staley is prepared for the position because she won't have that much to catch up on due to her prior experience.

Staley came to Charlevoix in 1946, but has lived in Charlevoix County all her life.

Local resident sells his state-wide newspaper chain

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

One of the largest newspaper clusters in the United States has changed ownership.

The Journal Register Company is to acquire 21st Century Newspapers by mid August or early September.

Frank H. Shepherd, co-owner of 21st Century Newspapers and Charlevoix resident, said it was time to pass the torch.

"After seven years of running back and forth I needed to come home and stay home," Shepherd said.

Shepherd said he wants to spend more time with his family.

"I want to spend the rest of my life in Charlevoix," he said.

Journal Register Company worked the hardest to appeal to 21st Century Newspapers, Shepherd said.

Shepherd said Journal Register Company fell in love with Michigan and understood how 21st Century Newspapers is run.

"They thoroughly understood we grew through acquisitions," Shepherd said.

Shepherd said he is happy 21st Century Newspapers employees will now be able to own stock in the company since it will become a public company once the sale is final.

Shepherd said he hopes Journal Register Company continues in the path already taken by 21st Century Newspapers.

"I hope they continue to grow organically," he said.

Journal Register Company is primarily located on the eastern part of the United States, and Shepherd said they won't be strangers to people in Michigan for long.

"I think you'll see them launch a pretty heavy campaign in Michigan to promote readership," he said.

Jean B. Clifton, Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Journal Register Company, said the company loves the newspaper business, especially on the local scale.

"Local community journalism we really love," she said. "We think it's the best part of the newspaper business."

By purchasing 21st Century Newspapers, Clifton said Journal Register Company is able to fulfill its goal.

"It helps fulfill our mission to continue to grow the company and continue to really provide quality local news and information the community we serve," Clifton said.

Shepherd will remain on board for a few months during the transition period in order to ensure a smooth change of hands. He will then be a consultant for five years.

"It's a great company and I admire them," he said. "I think our employees are going to have a lot of fun."

21st Century Newspapers owned the company Up North Newspapers which publishes the Citizen Journal in Boyne City and the Antrim County News, among others.

Volunteers vital to Boulder Park operation

Recently the staff and residents of Boulder Park Terrace of Charlevoix provided a backyard picnic to honor volunteers for years of unselfish service.

Local businesses donated door prizes, the Boulder Park bell choir made music and Longtime volunteer Don Neidert played the piano during the luncheon. Neidert, a retired music teacher from the East Jordan area, has played piano for the residents of Boulder Park for about two years.

"I knew some people at Boulder Park and came to play for the residents," he said.

He added, "The best thing I like about volunteering is the appreciation on their faces. It's nice when they ask for a particular song and I can play it."

According to Neidert, he'll play for the residents as long as he lives in the area.

It seems over the years the volunteer program has blossomed.

Elke Maierhofer took over the activities department at Boulder Park Terrace two years ago, when there were only a few volunteers.

"All the sudden they just started coming in and the program grew," she said.

With 13 to 15 volunteers at any given time, Boulder Park residents enjoy a wide array of benefits.

"The volunteers do everything from calling bingo and praying with residents, to individual activities and carpentry projects. Our program has really grown this year," she added.

While volunteers are not a replacement for staff, Maierhofer said, they are the backbone of any good activity program.

She added, "They are an important addition to what we do."

Volunteers may not receive payment, but according to Maierhofer, the increase in quality of life and improved resident behavior is priceless.

"Volunteers give the residents a connection to the community," she said.

It seems the residents aren't the only ones who benefit from the volunteer program.

"I think it would be safe to say most of the time volunteers get much more back than they invest," Maierhofer said.

In a short speech to the guests Maierhofer said the luncheon is but a small bit of recognition for the volunteers of Boulder Park.

"There are no prizes big enough, no food fancy enough to thank you," she said.

And, according to Maierhofer, volunteering is for the young and old alike.

"Anyone who would like to volunteer can contact Boulder Park," she said. "No special skills are required to volunteer. This is an opportunity for almost anyone from ages 14 and up."

Hedges, trees an issue on Belvedere

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Some city property on Belvedere Avenue may have been used without permission from the city.

During last Monday's city council meeting, Jill Picha said John Winn planted trees on city property on Belvedere Avenue and she would like them to be removed. She said if not they will cut off her right to a 60 foot view quarter she and other residents were promised.

"Fixed income people couldn't get away with this," she said.

Picha said she and others agreed to planting one decorative tree per lot, but instead of doing so Winn planted full-grown maples.

Picha said the trees need to be removed because they were put on city property not by the city.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said Picha asked a month ago who gave the authority for the full-grown maples and he said no one did.

"No one can go onto city property, but some folks think they can," he said.

Campbell said if the city enforces an ordinance only part of the time then selective enforcement has occurred, which is against state law.

"If no one authorized the trees then they should be removed," he said.

Campbell said Cross Fisheries — located on the same street — had to move its pole building back because it infringed on city property.

Campbell said people who live along Belvedere Avenue and Hurlbut Street have a nice view of the lake, which they are taxed upon. He said many residents have already asked that their taxes be lowered if their view is shut off from development on Belvedere Avenue.

"There's no ordinance against having trees on city property," Campbell said. "But it's wrong to increase shutting a view off."

Sherman Chamberlain Jr., a city council member and co-owner of Ferguson and Chamberlain Associates Inc. said he did the original topographic survey work for the Winn's but did not survey in regard to where the trees could be planted.

"I really don't know if the trees are on or off the right-of-way," Chamberlain said.

Chamberlain said he is going to have to gather all the facts and analyze them in order to determine whether or not the trees are in fact on city property.

Survey work for Belvedere Avenue was done by R. F. Sloan, Mary Feindt and Chamberlain over the years. As a result, Chamberlain said the city right-of-way is different for each surveyor.

"Basically we'll have to determine how they fit with the different surveys," he said.

At the meeting Campbell said if the trees aren't removed then the ordinance will leave the books.

The trees aren't the only issue with Winn's property. During the City Council meeting last Monday, Picha said the hedges lining Winn's drive and that of his neighbors have grown beyond what the city ordinance allows.

Picha said there should be a three foot height limit to ensure visibility for pedestrians and drivers a like.

Picha said she saw a couple almost get hit by a car during last year's Venetian Festival.

"I don't care about the hedge otherwise until it takes away my view," she said.

Picha said every time she raises a concern about something, she is retaliated against. She said at the meeting that she was threatened with Pandora's Box and she thinks the maples must be it.

Hedges outside of John Winn's home along Belvedere Avenue are much taller than the four foot city ordinance. Some are concerned that visibility is limited for pedestrians and vehicles due to the overgrown hedges.

Campbell said the hedges bother him because the hedges by Pizza Hut grew too tall and were cut down to the proper height by the city. Winn's bushes, according to Campbell can't be over 4 feet because it's written in the city ordinance.

City Manager Michael Weisner said the hedges are in the site plan so they can be there, but they're too tall.

Winn did not return telephone calls seeking comment.

City wants man to take out lawn sprinklers

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The boulder in Richard Georgie's yard marks park of Michigan Beach Park that runs next to his property and is owned by the city. The city tore up a flower garden Georgie had planted and placed a boulder with a plaque in its place.

Another city property argument is undergoing concerning Michigan Beach Park.

Charlevoix resident Richard Georgie said the city wants to force him to pull up his sprinkler system because it was installed on city property and waters city grass.

"Since I'm paying for the water and it just beautifies the town, I don't know why anyone would mind," Georgie said.

Georgie's driveway extends onto city property, which became an issue when pavement was being put in. Georgie said the driveway has been there for more than 50 years and could be his property due to adverse possession.

That is not the case, however, because the laws changed and Georgie found it easier to sign an agreement waiving his right to claim the small part of Michigan Beach Park as his in order to keep the driveway where it is.

"I didn't want to move the road because of the landscaping," he said.

Georgie said he has lived in his home for 32 years and has been watering the city property for 20 years. The sprinkler system is relatively new, but since he signed an estopple agreement waiving his right to ownership, Georgie said he doesn't see the harm in watering the land.

"I already waived any ownership rights," he said. "I have selfish motives because it's next to my house."

Georgie said he waters the grass because if he didn't the city wouldn't and then the grass would turn brown.

Georgie's house is one of several to be featured by the Garden Club.

"The garden people wouldn't be so interested if there was an ugly brown patch of grass," he said.

Charlevoix Mayor Gabe Campbell said the problem is that Georgie has been using that property as though it's his own.

"You don't go on to your neighbors property," he said.

Campbell said he doesn't disagree that the property should be taken care of but that it should be the city doing so.

Georgie said he was forced to remove a flower garden he planted on the same city property he is watering. He said the city came and removed the garden and put up a boulder that has a plaque on it.

City Manager Michael Weisner said the situation of doing something on city park property differs with that of city right-of-ways.

Weisner said the agreement between Georgie and the city will have to be looked into.

Accident on Lake Charlevoix

An Ann Arbor man was injured in a tubing accident in Lake Charlevoix, approximately one-fourth of a mile offshore near the Harborage Marina in Boyne City on July 3.

He was treated and released at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. The accident remains under investigation by the Charlevoix county Sheriff's Department.

High hopes for end to our weather woes

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Low temperatures and high amounts of rain this summer have left Charlevoix residents and visitors wondering if there is any hope left for a real summer.

Only three days in June were in the 80s, and 10 days in the 70s. The rest of the days have been in the 60s and below. With normal June temperatures ranging from 74 – 79 degrees as a daily high, these temperatures have been disappointing.

The main reason for the colder weather is that the jet stream that usually retreats to Canada is still sticking around. There is still hope that the weather will improve in Charlevoix.

"We still have a lot of summer left," said Keith Berger, forecaster with the National Weather Service.

Charlevoix has also had a great deal of rain lately. With 4.95 inches in May and 3 inches in June, the average amount of rain greatly surpasses the amount of rain last year at 3.37 inches in May and 1.88 inches in June.

It was this rainy weather on July 4 that canceled Charlevoix's Independence Day parade for the first time in 12 years. The weather also delayed many July 4 fireworks by one day.

"I was really sorry that we had to call it off," said Charlie Butcher, Veterans of Foreign Wars commander, who called off the parade on that rainy Sunday morning.

Due to the limited state permit for highway US-31, the parade cannot be rescheduled.

"We look forward to next year," Butcher added. "Let's hope the weather holds for Venetian."

Dan Barron, Venetian Board president, hopes for blue skies and 80-degree temperatures for Venetian week.

"We've got our cold and wet weather out of the way," Barron said. "We always keep our fingers crossed with one eye to the sky."

The weather has had positive affects on marina business so far this summer. During the colder weather, many boats stacked up, with nobody venturing out of the harbor.

Harbor Master Hal Evans said the weather "affected personality but not the number of boats in the harbor."

Boyne City teenager hurt in accident July 6

A Boyne City teenager was injured in a one-vehicle wreck July 6 on an access road to Young State Park near Boyne City.

Ashley Marie Gibbs, 16, was injured when she lost control of her Eagle Talon on wet pavement at approximately 4:15 p.m. and slammed into a tree, damaging the driver's side door. Gibbs was driving at excessive speed, according to a press release from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

The Boyne City Fire Department freed Gibbs from the vehicle with extraction equipment.

Charlevoix Home Tour to be this weekend

The 2004 Charlevoix Home Tour is scheduled for 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Saturday, July 17.

Five amazing homes are featured on the tour, which is hosted by the Kappa Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, including an arts and crafts style cottage in the Charlevoix Country Club, a beautiful contemporary lake home on Round Lake, a magnificent "up north" retreat and an elegant beach house on Lake Michigan, and a cozy historic log home at Pine Point.

This year is the second year the tour will take place on a Saturday. Proceeds benefit the Charlevoix Area Hospital's obstetrics and cancer departments, along with a playground equipment donation for Bright Beginnings Pre-School.

Tickets are $20 and available in Charlevoix at The Apple Tree, Shop of the Gulls and the Clothing Company; in Boyne City at Country Books; and in Petoskey at the Quiet Moose and the chamber of commerce. Tickets may also be purchased the day of the tour at any of the homes. Directions to the homes are provided in the ticket book and at the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. Additional information and illustrations of the homes can be found at: www.charlevoixhometour.com.

A home-by-home sketch of this year's tour:

- Carole Huebotter, 12227 North Country Club Drive. This cottage-style home sits on a wooded setting in the Charlevoix Country Club, creating a complimentary relationship between the home and the club, resulting in a feeling of "tree-house living." Elements of the arts-and-crafts style can be found in the home's details and culminate in the Frank Lloyd Wright leaded glass window in the master bedroom.
- Alvin and Patsy Ranger, 08295 Eastern Avenue. Built in the early 1800s, the cottage is one of the original log cabin summer dwellings in the Pine Point subdivision. It features artifacts from the sinking of the steamship Bradley off Beaver Island in the violent 1958 storm, including a broken lifeboat oar, tiller and wooden bailing scoop along with photos of the Bradley and the Edmund Fitzgerald, which were given to Mrs. Ranger's late father, Great Lakes author William Ratigan, by the owners of the respective ships. The cottage also features original copies of maps by Charlevoix artist Irene Young, wife of noted Charlevoix builder and designer, Earl A. Young. During its remodel in 1989, the original log cabin was converted into a living-dining area. Alvin Ranger designed the addition with help from his architect friend, Hans Weimer. Hans Kretschman, stonemason of East Jordan, rebuilt the stone fireplace. The original walls, writer's desk and handmade furniture all add to the unique "old log cabin" feel.
- Ron and Terry Hughes, 219 Belvedere Avenue. This home is nestled into its surroundings, taking full advantage of the views of Round Lake. The strength of the architecture and the quality of its construction gives the home a feeling that is second to none. The shingle style home uses rich materials both inside and out which establish its quality. The interiors are created with a unique blend of new merged with old to create a feeling of comfortable elegance.
- Andre and Lisa Radandt, 14529 Park Avenue. A recently remodeled beach front home mixes a blend of antique with the Orient, cottage style with contemporary to create comfortable elegance. The many windows provide amazing views of the crashing waves on Lake Michigan. Updated kitchen, dining and sitting rooms let the homeowners entertain in style. The bedrooms evoke cozy memories of up-north getaways, and the deck overlooking the shoreline is simply breathtaking.
- Norbert and Margaret Murray, 13109 Bay Street. A charming Lake Michigan home, this takes full advantage of the views offered by the North Pointe shoreline. The home features a shingle-style exterior, beautiful landscaping, and a warm, inviting interior with the lush seating, soft drapery, collected casework, and beautiful artwork combine to make the home a must-see.

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. Revised Marina plan still in works

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The city of Charlevoix's marina renovation project is still in the works because the city has asked for an extension of 60 days in order to fulfill some changes requested by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

Brian Bury, of the Geological and Land Management Division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, said some of the elements of the marina plan needed to be changed in order to be in compliance with the law.

"We review impacts to the environment and the public trust," he said.

Bury said the changes must comply with Part 301, Inland Lakes and Streams, of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Act, 1994 PA 451 as amended, before anything more can occur.

City Manager Michael Weisner said the city is still working out the details and will schedule a meeting in the near future.

Information provided by Bury said the city of Charlevoix has a 60-day extension ending Sept. 9 of this year. The items that need adjustments are the width of the piers. The information said the main and head pier is advised to be no more than 10 feet in order to not interfere with the physical occupation of the public trust.

The information also stated that the new bulkhead should be located close to the old bulkhead. Two non-water dependent structures are advised to be eliminated including a 130 linear foot dock and a "Y" shaped platform.

Revisions are also needed in order to provide a sufficient ingress/egress on the south side of system "D", the information states.

Beaver Island's Museum Week under way

For the 24th consecutive year, the Beaver Island Historical Society is having its annual Museum Week from July 12-17. The event is comprised of talks, hikes, lectures, art and music.

At 9 a.m. on Wednesday (today), Thursday and Friday, the staff of the Central Michigan University Biological Station will lead three three-hour nature walks, the first for Adults ($10) and the next two for kids ($5). The walks cover everything from the dunes to the bogs, and each is limited to 25 walkers. Sign-up is at the Print Shop Museum.

Archaeologist Jay Peck will present a slide show on "Mysteries of Archaeoastronomy" at 2 p.m. on Wednesday.

The talks, and Thursday afternoon's presentation, cost $3 for adults, $1 for children. Thurday's talk, by Jim Gillingham's CMU staff on "Amazing Reptiles and Amphibians," includes live snakes and giant frogs.

Antje Price, the "Protar Lady," will open the Protar Home on Stoptown Road from 1-3 p.m. Saturday, and will chat about Protar's life. There is no charge, but donations are accepted, nor is there for the pet show, held on the Print Shop porch at noon Saturday. Almost all entrants come away with some kind of award (such as for the puppy with the longest ears).

The Marine Museum will celebrate its 100th anniversary from 1-5 p.m., Friday with an open house. The art show runs from noon-4 p.m., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at the school.

Robert Cole will discuss his Oral History project on Wednesday and show some of the material he recorded since his talk last summer.

On Thursday, Native American speaker Joe Mitchell from the Little Traverse Bay Band will talk about various aspects of his culture.

On Friday, Ed Palmer and the Beaver Island Boys will throw an "Island dance," the way it was done for so many years. Admission to this event is $10, and there will be a cash bar.

Another musical delight is on tap for Saturday evening: a reprise of April's performance of "A Little Night Music," songs by Stephen Sondheim. The charge is also $10. Drinks will be available, and afterwards the cast will join the audience to toast the entire week.

Mixed figures for July Fourth business

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix businesses located downtown had varying experiences over the July Fourth weekend due to the cooler weather and the holiday falling on a Sunday.

Dudley Martin, president of Stafford's Hospitality, said business for Stafford's Weathervane in Charlevoix was pretty normal.

"It's hard to compare because last year July Fourth fell on a Friday," he said.

This year Martin said Stafford's Weathervane sales were down 5 to 6 percent due to weather.

He said business was pretty normal, however, compared to years past when the Fourth of July fell on a Sunday.

Jacqueline Dipert, owner of The Clothing Company said the warm weather earlier in the week caused business to be slower, but things picked up due to the rainy weather on the Fourth of July and the day after.

"Weather always contributes to it (business)," she said. "Bad weather is always better for business."

Dipert said sales were even with those of last year.

Restaurants and retailers had a good weekend due to the rainy weather compared to hotels and non-clothing retailers.

Tom Pfeifle, general manager of Weathervane Terrace Inn and Suites said business was a little slower than last year.

"Business was all right," he said. "We've been busier in years past."

On a personal trip to the Traverse City Cherry Festival, Pfeifle said he saw a lot of hotels and motels with vacancy signs, which showed him the cooler weather was keeping people from traveling up north.

Pfeifle said Charlevoix has experienced three consecutive years of cold springs, which results in a lull before the season gets going.

"The whole season got a late start," he said.

Pfeifle said the weather can't be controlled and, whatever happens, businesses have to deal with.

"We remain positive," he said.

Barry Parker, the front desk manager for The Lodge, said business was fine.

"We did a good weekend surprisingly for the way the weather was," he said.

Parker said despite the weather, business was about the same as last year.

Three Chairs Company sales associate Adam Janiskee said the weather affected business. The store wasn't open on the Fourth of July, but Janiskee said the warm, sunny weather on July 3 caused business to be slow.

"A lot of people were probably enjoying the weather," he said.

Business was slow until after the Fourth of July when Janiskee said things picked up. Overall, business wasn't affected too much.

"I guess it would be average or below average for a summer weekend," he said.

Chamber of Commerce President Jacqueline Merta said she had not talked to every merchant, but the overall opinion of those she did revealed that the July Fourth weekend was a good one.

"People were shopping," she said. "With not going to the beach people were shopping and eating."

Merta said some businesses she talked to said for the most part they were equal to if not a little better than last year.

The level of business may be due in part to the trend Merta said she seen in people coming to Charlevoix for shorter lengths of time.

"People used to always have reservations more in advance because they were so worried about having a room," she said.

Merta said people still take two-week vacations, but many are starting to take shorter, one-week vacations in order to spread out their vacation time.

"The overall trend is to shorten up (vacations) and go more often," she said.

JUL 2004

Festival to kick off at Castle Farms

VENETIAN

the parade due to the larger area the west side of Pine River Channel offers.

Another concern which helped inspire the change in course is the shallow water leading out the east end of Pine River Channel into Lake Charlevoix.

Taylor said a lot of boats over the years have run aground while waiting to take part in the boat parade or simply trying to get into the harbor.

"We think it's better for our boat traffic to run smoothly," Taylor said.

Visibility on the east end of the channel is not the best and Taylor said many boaters become acclimated to the dimness then are struck by the lights of the city upon entering the channel, decreasing visibility.

"It's our theory that if they're under the street lights already then they'll be used to the light," Taylor said. "That way they'll kind of progress to darkness than going from darkness to light."

The new starting point may work out only if the weather cooperates. Taylor said if the weather reports received show Lake Michigan to be rough, then the standard entry from the east end of the channel is what will occur.

Some people are concerned about the boat parade interfering with traffic due to its having to cross through the bridge, but Taylor said the parade won't affect traffic that much.

Taylor said the boats are to leave Round Lake at 9:15 p.m. and pass under the bridge during the 9:30 p.m. bridge opening. Then once the boats are lined up in the channel, they won't be crossing through the bridge until the parade begins at 10 p.m., passing through the bridge during the scheduled opening.

"We work with the timing of the bridge," he said.

Taylor said the new route came from evaluating different aspects of the parade over the years and finding ways to improve.

The new route will be the standard procedure unless weather conditions force the parade to proceed as it always has.

The Michigan State University Spartan Marching Band will be in this year's Venetian Parade.

Parade to begin in Pine River Channel

Venetian will feature a parade on July 24 featuring the Michigan State University Spartan Marching Band, returning from two years ago.

There will be various musical talents for the ear to enjoy including Herman's Hermits on Wednesday, July 21 and Koko Taylor on Thursday, July 22.

Herman's Hermits hail from England and were a part of the British Invasion. Barron said the band out sold the Beatles in 1964 by selling 52 million copies of their record. Barron said Koko Taylor is a living legend.

"She is the most accomplished living female blues singer of her time," he said.

Part of Venetian's history is embedded in the crowning of the Venetian Queen, which is now called Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen. This year's Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen candidates are: Tess Hoaglund, 18, Danielle Kimble, 18, Kristina Moreno, 16, Trisha Watkins, 17, Rachel Wyniawskyj, 18, and Kellie Young, 16. The crowning of the queen will be on Friday, July 23 in East Park.

HOW TO KILL A BUSINESS...in ten easy steps

1. Don't Advertise
Just pretend everybody knows what you have to offer.
2. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself you just don't have time to spend thinking about promoting your business.
3. Don't Advertise
Just assume everybody knows what you sell.
4. Don't Advertise
Convince yourself that you've been in business so long customers will automatically come to you.
5. Don't Advertise
Forget that there are new potential customers who would do business with you if they were reminded.
6. Don't Advertise
Forget that you have competition trying to attract your customers away from you.
7. Don't Advertise
Tell yourself it costs too much to advertise and that you don't get enough out of it.

'Days gone by'

Charlevoix had so many colorful residents in days gone by. I enjoy reminiscing about them, and know from your comments, that you do, too.

In my childhood days, Charlevoix was much quieter and everyone lived at a slower pace. There were the mom and pop stores in each neighborhood, and most people traded with the one nearest them. You knew the owners personally, and they would write down your purchases, and you would pay the tab at the end of the month. People didn't go to the store and buy supplies for a week. Each time we needed something, my mother would send me down over the hill to Mr. Kibbe's store for a particular item. It was very handy, as it was only a short jaunt. Mr. Ernest Kibbe owned our neighborhood store, and he was like a grandfather to all the kids. His store was sandwiched in between the east end of the Charlevoix Hotel on Antrim Street, and the Hansen garage building on the corner in front of the garage, and end up at Kibbe's store.

Charlie Marshall, the fire chief, and his wife, Tillie, lived in the fire hall that was part of the court house. This was beside the jail where my grandpa and grandma Ikens lived when he was sheriff. Charlie was a delightful person to know, and he was like a grandpa to me. My whole world was between the 200 block of Hurlbut and Antrim streets. An alley ran between them, with our home of the hill, and Antrim Street below it across the alley. It was such a grand place to live, as there were trails all over the hill, and the area lent itself to many lively games of cowboys and indians, and cops and robbers.

In my world, I knew all the neighbors. On the south east corner of Hurlbut stood the old Martha Ayers house. Joe Guild lived there in the 1940s. He had a big potato garden in his front yard, and I remember him catching potato bugs and disposing of them in a coffee can filled with kerosene, a very friendly environmental way of doing it! At 201 Hurlbut, was the home of Sander and Vera Halverson. He was a commercial fisherman, and she was a telephone operator. One night, I was home with my 6-year-old brother. I was 12 at the time. My brother was taking a bath in the tub, when an inebriated man came in our front door. (We didn't lock the door in those days), I was terrified, and ran in the bathroom, as it had a door lock. The fellow went round and round inside the house, banging on the door and hollering. We were scared stiff. There was a small high window in the bathroom, but it would have been almost impossible to climb up and get out it.

Then, I heard Mr. Halverson come in the house and get the fellow. He had been in his house shortly before. Mr. Halverson yelled to see if anyone was at home, and of course, I was too scared to reply. He took the guy to jail, and told my grandpa the story. Grandpa then called my dad, who came home promptly. What I remember vividly, is my dad asking me why I didn't hit the guy over the head with a chair. (Sure! I didn't know the fellow was harmless!) In later years, Sander put up a building beside his house, near the street. He had a meat market there, and that was a good place to purchase fresh meats. Sander also was always telling my dad to stop me from climbing the tall maple trees lining our street. I never did, for the view up there was wonderful. You could see downtown at that time.

The next neighbors were Robert and Emma Dell. They had a daughter, Edna Mary. Sometimes their grandson, Dwight, lived with them. Next to them was a home where Helen Howe lived with her children, Donald and Richard. I went with Donald to the Baptist Church when I was 4 years old, beginning my church life at the early age. We went down over the hill together, and over one block to get there. My house was the next to theirs, at 207 W. Hurlbut. There was an apple orchard next door, with all kinds of apples on the trees. We ate yellow transparent in early summer, and had others that ripened in the fall. My Uncle Carlton, Aunt Marguerite and their girls, Donna and Judy, lived on the property behind our house. We had lots of kids to play with in our block.

At 209, the Wilbur Wells family lived. Their children were Peggy, Marilyn, Wilbur, John, Richard, Donald and Delores. We had apple fights quite often. What fun! One day, we were having one, and my mother came out and said, "You Ikens kids come home, and you Wells kids go back to your house." Little Delores was just a tiny little girl, and she stood there, with her hands on her hips and replied, "Shut up, Mrs. Ikenses."

I thought it was so funny, that I never forgot it. The next home was where Henry (Hank) Marshall lived. I recall sitting under his tree one day, and he shared a cantaloupe with me. His brothers were Charlie, the fire chief, C.Y., the sewer contractor, (they had fancy names for professions back then, too). J.C., another brother, was an operator at the sewage treatment plant.

The house located near the corner of Hurlbut and Grant, just before a vacant lot, was owned by Reuben and Bernice Pearl. Their children were Bert, Bob and Howard, Howard and I used to go in their garden and make sandwiches with tomatoes, lettuce and radishes, covered with mayonnaise. They were just delicious, and I still remember how good they tasted.

Crossing to the south corner of Hurlbut and Grant was the home of Harold (Ike) Byers and their children, Audrey and Doug. The kids used to show movies in their garage and we neighborhood kids would pay a few cents to sit and view them, which was a treat. The next home was at 212 W. Hurlbut. Frank and Laura Courier lived there. Laura was Ben Brown's daughter. Frank worked as a clerk at Brown Motors in Charlevoix. Ben also owned the Brown Motors in Petoskey.

Ralph ad Mary Bacot lived at 210. Ralph raced horses. He had a harness racing rig, and kept his horse in his garage. He had it fixed up nicely, with a screened in front. At 208, Jim and Edith Earl lived. Sometimes, their grandson, Albert Fox lived with them. Another neighborhood friend to join the many kids in the block for games. Jim had a mulberry tree beside his house. It was small, like the one we had, and we kids could all pick the berries easily from them. I loved the berries so much, that I also have one in our yard that our grandkids enjoy.

Julius and Mildred Frye lived next to them at 206. Linda was their daughter. I remember that when the house was gone, the front porch was still there, and pretty colored stones were embedded in the cement. We kids would try to pry them out. It was quite an idea at the time to have dressed up the cement like that.

The last home on the block was the parsonage of the Church of God, which was located beside the church. The Rev. Horace Pulsipher and his wife, Ann, and son Horace Jr. lived there. In later years, the Rev. William Wood and wife, and son, Rusty made their home there.

That was the extent of my immediate neighborhood. Life was fun, and you had the time for everyday friendly chats, and the chance to really know everyone around you. Great memories!

Residents see president

Charlevoix people travel to Bush visit in Marquette

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Several Charlevoix residents took a road trip July 13 to see President George W. Bush during his stop in Marquette as a part of his campaign tour.

John Haggard, chairman of the Charlevoix County Republicans and the First Congressional District for the Republican Party, said the opportunity should have been taken by everyone.

"I think it was important for all the youth possible to be up there," Haggard said. "To be that close to a sitting president or any president is a valuable experience."

Bush is the first sitting president to visit Marquette since William Howard Taft in 1911. The rally was in the Superior Dome at Northern Michigan University where the crowd swelled between 11,000 and 12,000 people, which was accompanied by hundreds of protesters as well as the people from Charlevoix and its surrounding areas.

Boy Scout Troop 11 from Charlevoix attended the rally with Assistant Scout Master Vince Currier and Assistant Scout Leader from Pack 11 Den 2 Kim Currier.

Resident wants city to quiet the noise

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Gene Beer, a Charlevoix resident, said he is concerned about the level of noise he receives from living on a corner and whether or not the noise ordinance is being enforced.

Beer said loud car stereo systems and mufflers disrupt the piece and quiet he deserves.

"I just feel if an ordinance is there then it should be enforced," Beer said.

Beer brought up the noise ordinance during the July 14 Charlevoix City Council meeting. He said the ordinance may actually be enforced, but would like some communication with the Charlevoix City Police so he can know what is going on.

The issue with noise has been going on for a year now, and Beer said he is not the only one.

"I'm not on crusade on my own," he said. "Others have not come forward."

Beer said the noise levels that disrupt him occur mainly during the evenings and all day on the weekends.

Beer said he was told by City Police Chief Dennis Halverson to supply information concerning the offenders so the police could have something to go by, yet the noise continues.

Some offenders have stopped while others are still loud, which has caused Beer to suspect selective enforcement.

"I've seen other things in town where they enforce it one way for someone versus others," he said.

Halverson said there is not necessarily a noise ordinance, for noise is mentioned in various places within the city ordinance, which talks about construction and vehicular noise.

Halverson said it's more of a subjective ordinance versus an objective one.

"There is noise produced, but we try to maintain the noise so it's not offensive to anyone," Halverson said.

Halverson said there has been a typical amount of complaints for this time of year.

Whether or not a sound is perceived as annoying depends on the particular sound, time of day and other variables.

"The very same noise at 3 p.m. doesn't sound as loud as it does at 3 a.m.," Halverson said. "There's room for discretion."

Beer said he was concerned some violators were getting off easy.

"You can warn someone forever," he said.

Beer said he wants to see things more enforced.

Halverson said license numbers are given to the police for several reasons including noise, but the police can't act on that alone.

An officer has to witness the event or a person needs to fill out a complaint form because Halverson said the police can't ticket someone when they aren't caught in the act of doing the annoying behavior.

Halverson said there are some complaints this year, but they are primarily about parties and barking dogs.

Cross at the legal spot, drive carefully

EDITORIAL

Another Venetian Festival is upon us in Charlevoix.

Throughout this week, East Park and the downtown area will be filled with people watching and listening to the musical acts, enjoying the carnival rides and taking in Charlevoix's scenery.

But, all these people converging on one location sometimes makes for some unsafe situations.

Every year the police logs are filled with tales of automobile accidents, most of them without injuries, from vehicles backing into one another in the parking lots, one vehicle smashing into the back of another because they were following too close, vehicles coming together when one driver doesn't notice a stop sign and vehicles traveling too fast to stop in time when they hit the wonderful traffic jam that is Bridge Street.

But it is not always two cars that impact. Unfortunately there are many vehicular accidents involving pedestrians or people on bicycles. And many times it is the fault of the walker or biker, because they did not pay attention to the crosswalks and decided to cross at any random spot on Bridge Street — most likely they appear in the road from between two cars.

The problem is most of these accidents can be prevented.

According to Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson, drivers and pedestrians need to be aware of their surroundings during the Venetian Festival — and pretty much any other summer day in Charlevoix — and act accordingly.

"There is a lot of distraction downtown, a lot of visitors, a lot of foot traffic," he said.

This means drivers should slow down and pay attention to where they are going.

As for pedestrians, he said they need to be aware of the cross walks and the signals. Don't cross at the cross walk when you do not have the right-of-way, for example — many people seem to not follow this one.

And crossing Bridge Street at any other place than a cross walk is frowned upon in Charlevoix.

Halverson said, "Other than at the traffic lights, don't expect traffic to yield to you."

Seeing the president was great despite political views

Courtney E. Pace

Staff writer

Little did I know upon taking this job, that I would end up covering the President of the United States.

Yes, I attended President George W. Bush's rally in Marquette last Tuesday at the Superior Dome at Northern Michigan University. I am not a fan of his, but the experience is something I'll never forget. Not often does any reporter, let alone a new one, cover something on such a national scale.

I had to send in information stating who I was and what purpose I had to be there, which sent me into a panic when I realized I only had my driver's license and not a letter of introduction to go with it.

I was so worried that once I got there I would be denied entry and my editor would be angry with me. The people I drove up with probably thought I suffered from Obsessive Compulsive Disorder, since I checked my bag so regularly to make sure I had everything I might possibly need to prove who I was.

With my papers in tow, I made my way toward the north entrance and passed protesters along the way.

It was nostalgic for me because it reminded me of college when President Bush came to visit Western Michigan University soon after he assumed the office. His visit struck a chord so deep that students argued about it the following semester.

After passing by the protesters and through a line of people waiting to enter, I found the press entrance. It wasn't what I had expected. To this day I'm not quite sure what I thought the press entrance would look like, but it definitely wasn't a brown folding table.

I was ready to pull out my papers, but the lady only asked for my name. She crossed it off a list and filled out a White House press pass with my name, affiliation and the date. It was too cool, but then she asked for my driver's license.

Some obscenities flew through my mind as I thought about the picture haunting my license. Let's just say short hair isn't my thing. I've had trouble getting into clubs and bars because my picture looks different than I do. She gave it a quick glance then handed me my pass to pin to my shirt.

It's strange to think that it is harder for me to get into a bar to have a drink than it was for me to get into a rally where the president of the United States was going to speak. I guess alcohol consumption is more of a concern than the President's safety.

After having my bags searched and passing through a metal detector, I made my way to the press pool in the middle of the stadium.

It is surreal to think that I, a reporter from a small weekly newspaper in Northern Michigan, was covering a national event involving the president.

My thoughts were interrupted by people chanting "We want Bush" while they waved their flags and pompoms. Yes, pompoms. I didn't think they held pep rallies after high school.

Scanning the crowd I spotted a few people I knew from the Charlevoix area. I started talking to one, but a television reporter assistant told me to move because I was in the shot.

The only good thing to come out of that was it put me next to a good-looking Secret Service agent.

I regained myself and listened as Steve Mariucci, president of the Detroit Lions and a native of the Upper Peninsula, introduced the president.

When President Bush walked out I got my camera ready. People behind the press area were yelling at us to get down off the steps and chairs so they could see. If only they knew what it was like to battle against several other reporters in order to get the best shot.

Somewhere between taking pictures and getting told to get off the steps leading up to the press picture platform, I realized I wasn't in Kansas anymore.

It was strange seeing people cheer so much for a person who I believe doesn't have the best track record. Another reporter and I felt as though we were the only two people not hanging on every word the president said.

Despite what I think of the president, I wouldn't pass it up should the opportunity present itself again.

I can assure everyone that whether or not you support the candidate, it's an event out of this world.

Kur "facts"

Editor:

After reading the letter recently from the assistant prosecutors I just had to respond. Let's please keep this campaign on the high road; if you like working for Mary Beth Kur then great, but don't put someone and something else down to do it.

I would like the people of Charlevoix County to look at the facts in the case not the personalities. This is about who will represent Charlevoix County best as our prosecutor.

Here are the facts. The prosecutor supplied these court numbers to seek a 6 percent pay raise.

The prosecutor supplied the numbers below to the commissioners:

- According to the numbers supplied by the prosecutor, in 2002, the prosecutor's office handled 849 district court misdemeanors. Of those 849 cases that went to trial, the prosecutor personally tried 0 misdemeanor cases.
- According to the numbers supplied by the prosecutor, in 2002, the prosecutor's office handled 300 Felony Circuit Court Cases.
- Of those 300 Circuit Court Felony cases, the current prosecutor personally tried one felony case.

A review of the court records and facts from Charlevoix County and the surrounding counties show the following:

- Since Jan. 1, 2001 until the present, Bob Engel, Emmet County Prosecutor, has personally tried 20 misdemeanor cases. (Statistics provided by the 90th District Court.)
- Since Jan. 1, 2001, the Charlevoix County Prosecutor has personally tried 0 misdemeanor cases.
- In 2001, the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office tried a total of 17 trials.
- John Jarema personally tried 10 trials with eight convictions and two hung juries.
- One assistant tried five trials with two convictions and three not guilty.
- One assistant tried one trial with one not guilty.
- An intern tried one trial with one conviction.
- The current prosecutor tried no trials.

She has been quoted to say, that she has never had a case overturned, well, it is easy to have no over turns of decisions of your cases when you haven't tried any misdemeanor cases and only two felony cases in four years. So let's stick to the facts; if you are wondering about the lawsuits against Mary Beth Kur the last couple years, go to circuit court and read the depositions; you will be amazed concerning her statements in those. Seek the facts, the truth, and elect John Jarema for prosecutor. For more facts visit www.votejarema.com.

Support Kur

Editor:

Firstly, let me make it clear that I am Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur's volunteer campaign manager. I consider it a privilege, pleasure and honor to be so.

Before accepting this position, I had known Prosecutor Kur for at least six years and had worked with her in regard to the Citizens Dispute Resolution Service board and Community Corrections Program, had observed her in court, and had temporarily worked in her office.

As campaign manager, I have had the dubious pleasure to be advised of all manner of rumor, innuendo and inaccurate reports going about town regarding this campaign. I ignore gossip, for to waste time responding to it only gives it more importance than it is due. I suggest that people start refraining from spreading stories.

The politics of personal attack involving the use of half-truth and rumor is disgusting to me. Democracy requires that voters make a well informed rational choice based on the issues.

As I see it, the issue of this election is experience and performance — period, end of sentence.

Mary Beth Kur has been the Prosecuting Attorney for Charlevoix County for the past nine years. Cases have been tried, cases have been won, criminals have gone to jail, victims assisted and unused county approved budget funds have been returned to the county. Rightfully, she is proud of her record as prosecutor and stands for reelection based on it.

Furthermore, her current staff of young dynamic professionals and several former employees support her reelection bid and proudly stand with her. Not only do I believe that Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur is the right person for the job of Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney, I am prepared to stake my personal reputation on her suitability and proudly and publicly stand with her and her staff.

Support Jarema

Editor:

I am writing in support of the candidacy of John Jarema for Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney.

I first came to know John through his work in the prosecutor's office. John came up through the ranks, beginning as an intern, moving on to assistant and eventually chief assistant prosecuting attorney.

John tried the most cases and obtained the most convictions in the prosecutor's office during his time there. Quite frankly, he was the attorney that we defense attorneys most dreaded facing in trial because he was always knowledgeable, thoroughly prepared and comfortable in the courtroom.

When John left the prosecutor's office, my firm immediately offered John a job. We were fortunate to find someone with his experience and expertise. He has done a tremendous job for us.

Although it would be very difficult to replace John, our firm's loss would be Charlevoix County's gain if he were elected prosecuting attorney. Please join with me in voting for John Jarema for Charlevoix County Prosecuting attorney in the Republican primary on Aug. 3.

Venetian needs help

Editor:

The 74th Venetian Festival is here and if you are one of the many who enjoy it, we very much need your financial support. From start to finish, Venetian is a $250,000 event. The four largest expenses are fireworks, insurance, kids' day and music, none of which have a practical way to charge admission. Through the years we have seen hundreds of people who enjoy the various activities and yet donate nothing.

Unlike Cherry Festival and others, some people may not realize the Venetian Festival is organized and managed by an all volunteer group of people. This event is not run by the chamber of commerce or the city, even though they both help us in many ways. You see large parties on Round Lake, the Belvedere Club, the Chicago Club, the C & O Club and others, and yet many of these individuals apparently think someone else should pay for their fun and entertainment.

The point is, if everyone that is able and enjoys Venetian would just donate $50 per family, we would not constantly have to beg a few individuals for even more money. In attempts to be even more self funded, we have organized three new major events: the Young Americans, the Rayder Rumble and the Kick-Off at the Castle. Individually, any one of those three events is as large as any other event in our community the entire year, thus taking even more volunteer hours.

We need your financial support very much this year. If we have a shortfall we will be forced to make significant cutbacks to the 75th Venetian Festival.

Venetian has become a homecoming for the entire community over a 74 year period and we need your support to make sure the tradition continues.

Don't like it, don't buy it

Editor:

A well-meaning member of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association wrote a heartfelt letter last week regarding his association's request that Family Video remove its "adult" section from the Charlevoix store. While I agree that having an "adult" video section in a video rental store called "Family Video" is an oxymoron, I must question Pastor Smith's logic regarding his letter to the newspaper addressing this issue.

My husband and I were in the video store probably a dozen times before we even noticed that an "adult" section existed. Now, thanks to that letter, everyone who reads the Courier's editorials knows it exists. Mr. Smith said that he and his organization's responsibility is to serve the community on matters of morality. I say, "Sir, you've opened a new can of worms."

Pornography concerns rights of expression. The "good" guys and the "bad" guys can face off on this issue forever, and it'll never be settled. All we can do as American consumers is be responsible for OURSELVES. If an issue or product seems controversial to you and you don't like it, agree with it or want it, then don't buy it, sell it, rent it, use it or do it if you find it offensive.

Respect our freedoms

Editor:

This letter is in response to the letter by Pastor Michael C. Smith of the Charlevoix Ministerial Association.

I commend your efforts to lead your congregation in the observance of moral Christian behavior by choosing not to purchase Family Video's pornographic videos. Furthermore, I empathize with your noble goal of maintaining a wholesome, family centered community here in Charlevoix.

However, the censorship of any material merely because one considers it immoral or distasteful runs contrary to the philosophical ideals that our great country was founded upon.

John Stuart Mill, popular empirical philosopher of the nineteenth century, believed that an individual should be free to do whatever he likes so long as he does not bring significant harm to others. John Locke, political philosopher upon whose ideals our constitution was founded, questioned humankind's ability to absolutely know what is or is not moral behavior, therefore we should focus our efforts on knowing true morality rather than suppressing our fellow citizens.

The availability of pornography in Charlevoix will not affect the moral decisions of its citizenry. The upbringing of our children and teachings by our parents, teachers and religious leaders will determine our moral actions. By bullying Family Video to eliminate its adult entertainment section, we will trample on the freedoms and rights we so readily boast. One cannot presume to know the moral beliefs of every member of our community.

"If all mankind minus one were of one opinion, and only one person were of the contrary opinion, mankind would be no more justified in silencing that one person, than he, if he had the power, would be justified in silencing mankind," said John Stuart Mill, on liberty.

Pornographic material is not new in Charlevoix. In this age of information, anyone with Internet availability has immediate access to any type of adult entertainment imaginable, in the comfort and privacy of their homes. Thus, Family Video's pornographic section cannot be held responsible for the viewing of pornography in Charlevoix.

By protecting the freedoms of expression, privacy, and matters of taste, we ensure the freedom to express our religion, morality and beliefs. We express our beliefs by acting upon our personal ethics.

If you feel pornography is immoral, don't buy adult videos. Teach your family to embrace your values. Teach them to choose not to engage in behaviors you deem immoral. Ensure for posterity the freedom for all to choose.

Smelly walk

Editor:

Walking along Lake Michigan is no longer an enjoyable experience. The stench from the Waste Water Plant with its near drying beds and weed choked sludge beds has filled with the aroma of dead skunks day after day, week after week, month after month. Much has been said, but nothing is being done to remedy this stinky, sludgy, skunky, odorous smell.

We need your help to restore Charlevoix the Beautiful to its former pristine beauty.

Thank you

Editor:

The 2004 Charlevoix/Emmet County Pink Ribbon Ride was on June 19, at Veteran's Park in Boyne City, raising over $16,000 and surpassing last year's total by more than $6,000. What is so important about this event is that 85 percent of the net proceeds stay in our community to provide funding for programs in breast cancer awareness, detection, education and prevention. Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation has used the funds provided from last year's ride to start the Cancer Resources Program, Circle of Strength, which will provide support, education and training for cancer patients and their support teams. Northern Michigan Hospital Foundation has combined this money with other breast cancer funds to provide educational programs and finance mammograms and diagnostic tests for women in need.

An event like this comes together only through the combined efforts of businesses and people in our communities. By donating funds, goods and services, many individuals and businesses made it possible to surpass our own expectations.

Funding for research and finding a cure is very important; however, I believe it is more important to take care of those in our own communities. I would look to some of the large industries in the area to provide support as well for this ride in the future.

I also extend a very special thank you to Kathy Johnson and Therese Green from the foundations for their invaluable advice and experience, Scott and Barb from the Boyne City Chamber of Commerce, Candy Greene, Donna Moll, Bo Mayfield and Jon Foltz for manning our SAG stop and vehicle, and most of all my Pink Ribbon Committee: Bonnie Brunett, Cheryl Hofwchber, Dean Lucier, Cathy Pumford, Terri Reynolds, Char Schuman, Kim Westrick and Helen Truchan. We would not have had the success we did without all of your help.

Please join us for next year's ride on Saturday, June 18, 2005.

Help weed

Editor:

The Charlevoix High School Band Boosters kicks off its summer fund-raiser soon by pulling weeds in the petunia beds.

We will be working at times designated by the city. Parents are donating their time to this effort, and all funds raised will be used to purchase new Marching Band uniforms. Our goal is to raise enough money to purchase these uniforms for the 2004 Marching season.

We are grateful for the generous support we have received from community members in assisting us with the project.

We are in need of further community support. If anyone is interested in donating any time to weeding with us, please contact Jamie Thomas at 582-0035. In addition, we welcome donations of water, snacks and beverages for our weeders. Finally, monetary donations to the Band Boosters are appreciated. For those interested, please send checks made payable to the Charlevoix High School Band Boosters. These can be mailed to the high school.

The children who participate in Charlevoix Bands work hard at presenting the finest musical performances throughout the year. The high school members will be attending marching band camp in late July. The community will be able to see many performances by the band throughout the summer. You will be proud to see the students represent our community in the Venetian Festival and at marching band competitions this fall.

Thank you for your continued support of Charlevoix Bands!

Editor:

Thank you to all my friends and customers.

As all of you know, for the last two years I have needed the support and help of many of you because of what I was going through in Norwood Township. Our prayers have been answered as we have finally settled out of court. It is a relief to have this behind me, but I wouldn't trade this experience for anything. To all of you good people who were praying for me, supporting me and encouraging me, I would like to say from the bottom of my heart - "God bless each and every one of you."

I don't think I could have remained functional, and been able to keep my business running if it hadn't been for all of you. The loyalty that you have displayed has shown me just what wonderful people you are. I am so proud to be in a position to serve you in the realm of caring for your special friends. I pray that I will be able to be of service to you and give you only the very best that I can give, for as long as I am able to do so. Thank you once again for being there when I needed you, and please know that I am there for you also. May the grace of God bless you with all that you need in your lives.

Get your meningitis vaccine

The health department is recommending meningitis vaccine for all college freshmen this year.

Appointments are in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. They will be offered through September so that college freshmen, particularly those who will live in dormitories, can be vaccinated before the school year begins in the fall.

"Most colleges now recommend a meningitis immunization for incoming freshmen," said Patricia Fralick, director of Family Health Services for the health department. "Freshmen live in close quarters with lots of other people so they have a higher risk for communicable diseases. Meningitis can be a deadly disease, but it is preventable with just one shot."

The cost for the vaccine is $75.

"It's an expensive vaccine," Fralick said. "We're offering it at our cost to encourage as many college freshmen as possible to protect themselves from meningitis."

Because appointments for immunization clinics fill up quickly, Fralick recommends booking an appointment soon by calling (800) 432-4121 during business hours.

Meningococcal disease is a serious illness, caused by bacteria. It is the leading cause of bacterial meningitis in children age 2 to18 in the US. Meningitis is an infection of the brain and spinal cord coverings.

Meningococcal disease vaccine can prevent two of the three important types of meningococcal disease in older children and adults. About 2,600 people get meningococcal disease each year in the US. Ten to 15 percent of these people die, in spite of treatment with antibiotics.

Of those who live, another 10 percent lose their arms or legs, become deaf, have problems with their nervous systems, become mentally impaired or suffer seizures or strokes.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

Don't let God's will be in conflict with your plans

Beacons of Blessing

By FR. JIM GUNN
Rector
Christ Church

It would be quite difficult to use the weather as a guide to decide if summer has arrived.

One day it seems like summer and the next day seems like late fall or early spring. That reminds me, did we have spring this year? I think 2004 is having a memory lapse in terms of the seasons. To use an image that is probably not recognizable to anyone under 40, the needle got stuck on winter, and then skipped wildly over spring and summer.

However, there is one reliable guide that we can use to know that summer has arrived: that is, the number of people walking the streets of Charlevoix and the number of cars on the surrounding roads. In fact, it seems to me that we are perhaps filled even fuller than usual for this point in time.

The crowded streets are what brought to my mind the subject for this article. A week or so ago I was leaving the church for home around mid-afternoon. It took me at least three full cycles of the traffic light to travel the one block between State Street and Bridge Street along Clinton Street. I did not end up getting caught by the bridge as well, although the possibility of that crossed my mind.

Fortunately, I was not on a tight schedule at that moment so I did not get frantic over the delay. Later on I was reflecting about a principle that could be drawn from that experience. The principle is that we do not always have control over the pace of our life. Sometimes it's as simple as the situation I described about being delayed in traffic. Sometimes it may be that someone else is making a decision that will affect our life, but they are taking their time doing it. Sometimes we are brought up short, so to speak, by an illness or an injury.

In late 1998 I developed a case of pneumonia that had me hospitalized for three and a half days. There wasn't a thing I could do but lay there in that bed and let people help me defeat the fever and get rehydrated. What I'm trying to say is that it is good to keep loose reins on our expectations so that we can handle schedule changes that are out of our control. We are in trouble when the accomplishment of our plans becomes more important that the recognition that we are about the business of God's will. Those who are interested might consult James 4:13-15 for some words about that.

In conclusion, I would like to share a prayer with you. It is one of my favorites from our Book of Common Prayer. It appears in the section for ministering to the sick and is listed as a prayer for use by a sick person. However, I believe that it illustrates the kind of attitude I am recommending towards life. It reads as follows:

This is another day, O Lord. I know not what it will bring forth, but make me ready, Lord, for whatever it may be. If I am to stand up, help me to stand bravely. If I am to sit still, help me to sit quietly. If I am to lie low, help me to do it patiently. And if I am to do nothing, let me do it gallantly. Make these words more than words, and give me the Spirit of Jesus. Amen.

Alcohol abuse leads to trouble during festival

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson says the best way to avoid trouble during this year's Venetian Festival is to be safe and responsible with alcohol.

"Venetian is a family event and we are part of that encouragement to see that the atmosphere continues. The abuse of alcohol is in direct conflict to that," he said.

Halverson said alcohol problems are numerous during the Venetian Festival and throughout the summer in Charlevoix.

They range from being disorderly in public, assaults and drunken driving. He said the assaults typically start in one of the local bars as a fight, which then spills out into the street.

This year there has already been at least one fight of this type reported in early July in Charlevoix. Halverson said one of the combatants in that fight did need hospital care.

He added this overindulgence of alcohol is not the fault of the Venetian Festival, but is common to all festivals in Michigan.

To combat some of this problem, Halverson said he and his officers work with area bars to keep them knowledgeable of the laws. This includes laws against selling to people who are already intoxicated.

"We are both aware of their (bar owners) responsibility, but our hope is to encourage their continued compliance," he said. "However, we have in the past cited businesses when there was a breakdown on their end."

Halverson stressed he is not suggesting people not drink alcohol in Charlevoix, but they should be responsible when they do so. He said as long as you are not driving a car, being a danger to yourself or anyone else and minding your own business, the police will probably not be concerned with you.

Along with responsible alcohol consumption, Halverson wants to remind those attending the festival that there is to be no consumption of alcohol after 9:30 p.m. at Ferry and Depot beaches. He added alcohol is not allowed in East Park, with the exception of the marina.

AAA: Move over for tow trucks on the road

Motorists who fail to exercise due caution when approaching a tow truck or a Freeway Courtesy Patrol van providing roadside assistance now face the possibility of spending 90 days in jail and being fined $500.

Public Act 19 of 2004, passed in February by the Michigan Legislature and signed in March by Gov. Jennifer Granholm, took effect June 2. It extends to tow trucks and MDOT Freeway Courtesy Patrol vans the same protection that covers police cars, fire trucks and other emergency vehicles.

The law mandates that a motorist who sees a vehicle ahead providing roadside service must move over one lane from the scene of the assistance being rendered, if possible. If moving over is not possible because of traffic in the adjoining lane, the motorist must reduce speed to a safe level given traffic and weather conditions, before passing.

On a two-lane road, the motorists must slow to a safe speed until past the service vehicle. Under the Michigan Vehicle Code, a person who does not move over or slow down when approaching and/or passing a stationary, authorized emergency vehicle is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a maximum fine of $500 and/or imprisonment for up to 90 days.

The original law, known at the "move-over law," applied to any emergency vehicle displaying flashing red lights. Since tow trucks and Freeway Courtesy Patrol vans use flashing amber lights, the original wording of the law did not cover them, so the legislature acted to correct that omission.

The penalties are more severe for any motorists whose action or inaction actually causes harm to the operator of an emergency service vehicle. If the result is injury, the motorists is guilty of a felony punishable by up to two years in prison and a fine of $1,000. If death results, the penalty is up to 15 years in prison and a fine of up to $7,500.

Charlevoix native writes account of her life

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

With the completion of her first book, "Moments in Time: A True Story," a native presents the story of her life in Charlevoix and beyond.

Mary Ann Gibbons, the author, says that the memoir is "a personal and intimate account of her life."

Gibbons never intended to show her transcripts to anyone until her brother suffered a closed head injury that left him without the memories of his childhood. She felt obliged to let her other seven brothers read the story as well and they convinced her to publish the book.

Gibbons said there was an "element of abuse" that no one ever put on paper. The book captures both the painful and happy times of her childhood.

You won't see the name Mary Ann Gibbons on the cover of the book because she writes under the pen name Zelda Fitzgibbons. The name Zelda came from her first marriage and Fitz was dropped from her family's original name.

The cover of the book also captures Gibbons' favorite memory. Her thirteenth birthday fell on the wedding of one of her brothers. After a day of no one wishing her happy birthday, Gibbons received the cake from her new sister-in-law at the wedding.

Gibbons was born and raised in Charlevoix, and will come back to Charlevoix to do two book signings.

"You always go back to your childhood," Gibbons said.

The first book signing is from 1 to 3 p.m. on July 17 at Simple Things Gift Shop.

The second is from 1 to 3 p.m. on July 21, at the garage sale of a family friend, Jim Haggard on US-31 towards Petoskey. She will have Charlevoix Courier history on display and refreshments will be served.

Gibbons attended St. Francis Xavier High School and graduated with bachelor's degrees in psychology and sociology and a master's degree in public administration from Central Michigan University.

She is currently working on "Flying With Eagles: A Prater Natural Love Story" which will be released in September and "Millennial Rain" which will be released in December.

Democratic candidates discuss school funding

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

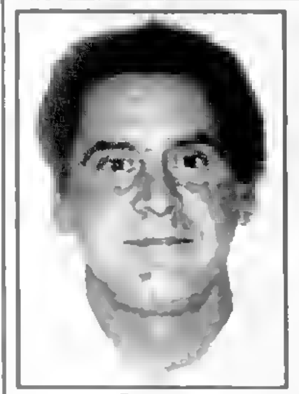
Both Democratic candidates for the 105th district seat believe that problems with Proposal A are behind our school funding woes.

Jim McKimmy

Candidate Jim McKimmy said, "Cuts have put our schools in crisis."

Candidate Greg Dean said the government "doesn't provide a sufficient revenue base."

According to McKimmy, Proposal A lowered the school income by lowering the property tax. The original plan was to keep up the funding by raising sales tax.



Greg Dean

Since then, though, there have been 24 cuts in sales tax items. Items such as vended foods and drinks, commercial advertising and airport electronics are now exempt from sales tax.

McKimmy said, "The problem is that every one of (the tax cuts) made sense to somebody."

The decreasing number of taxable items has lessened school revenue. In fact, $1.9 billion has been lost over eight years due to the tax cuts.

McKimmy said he has two ideas to fix this problem. First, he believes that people should have a right to call for an explanation on decreasing taxes so that it is better known where the money would be going.

Second, he said, "If we're going to cut the tax we better get something for it."

He believes tax exemption shouldn't be just a given thing. If a company hired more employees, for example, in exchange for exemption, the money paid to employees would eventually come back in taxes.

Dean also says that he will "take a serious look at Proposal A and see if there isn't some tweaking we can do."

He believes that part of the problem is that schools aren't looking ahead to see economic highs and lows so that they can account for them.

Dean also believes that schools were "spend-happy" in previous years, and that they weren't looking forward into their economic future.

Another problem is "misappropriation of funds," said Dean.

To account for the problem, Dean said he'd "like to see shifts from the top down."

Republicans give ideas for school funding

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Parents will soon be getting their children ready for another school year, bringing the issue of school funding to the forefront, especially in the race for the 105th District seat in the state house. In Charlevoix, the school board has already had to make cuts to the staffing at it schools and is looking at another round of cuts next summer. Republicans running for this seat have a variety of solutions to the school funding debate.

Jack Apol

Kevin Elsenheimer

Candidate Jack Apol said, "The simple answer is that the revenue flow in Lansing has been way less then we thought. Obviously the schools are going to have to do a little belt tightening."

Apol said, regardless, the state needs to realize that schools are the first place money must be spent. This means we have to have revenue for the schools or cut somewhere else in the budget.

Bonnie Nothoff

Jeff Garfield

"Citizens have to decide what are the priorities. Mine is education," he said.

Apol also said we will have to look at our entire tax structure in the state to see where the problem is. But, he stopped short of advocating new taxes. He did support taxes on purchases made over the internet and out of state purchases as revenue sources saying people should already be paying sales tax on those items.

John Ramsey

Craig Ryan

"There are lots of revenue sources we don't enforce," he said.

Candidate Kevin Elsenheimer could not be reached by telephone for an interview for this story. He did send in a written statement on his solution for school funding.

Elsenheimer wrote, "As a five year member of a school board in a district that has seen both increasing and decreasing revenues, I can tell you that it is much more pleasant to spend money than to cut budgets. However, the fact is, schools are very well funded."

Elsenheimer argues the operating revenues for schools have increased 45 percent since Proposal A and infrastructure revenue have increased over 147 percent and our teachers are among the best paid in the country.

But, he said we are near the bottom when it comes to the amount of money that is spent on the classroom.

"When cuts become necessary, it is almost always due to declining enrollment. When a school loses a child, the school also loses the state funding or foundation grant for that child. This forces the schools to compete with each other for students, but competition makes our schools better and focuses boards of education on ensuring that the school is providing what the customer — the parents — want," he wrote.

Candidate Bonnie Nothoff said, "I think the problem is how much of the money is getting to the classroom. That has to do with the management of the money."

She said she believes we need to take a look at how money is spent in our school districts, especially because the per pupil funding has increased since 1994.

"What is missing from the schools? Where are the dollars not arriving?" she said. "I don't for a minute think that our schools do not have a problem."

She added the local school districts have been doing the right thing by tightening their belts all along and saving their money for down times, which is different than the schools downstate who have been extravagant with their money.

Nothoff also said there is some legislation that needs to be looked at to bring in more money for the school districts. For example, mobile home owners have to be taxed beyond what they are taxed now — mobile home owners do not pay property tax on their mobile homes.

Candidate Jeff Garfield said Michigan has some of the highest funding for schools in the nation and some of the best paid teachers in the nation. But, he said the problem does not lay in the teacher pay, the problem is the schools in larger cities.

Garfield argues that many schools in some of the large Michigan cities, such as Detroit, have become "half-empty," so he said we need to look at consolidating those schools. This would save a lot of money in administration costs alone.

He also said we need a bigger push to get parents more active in the children's education. Garfield also advocates adding teaching morals and bible classes to the current school curriculum.

Candidate John Ramsey said, "I don't know yet what can be done until I get into the budget."

However, he said the state has no greater priority than the schools.

"I don't know yet, without really studying the budget, where the cuts could be made. Schools should be last," Ramsey said. "To say how you can fix (schools) would be irresponsible today."

He added the problem with making cuts to school funding is it is a short term fix to a long term problem.

Candidate Craig Ryan said a solution would be to go back to one year budgets and average declining enrollment over three years.

Ryan said in the past the state had this idea to go with three year budgets to allow schools the ability to plan for three years of funding. However, the bottom dropped out in the economy and the state did not have the money to do that.

Ryan said we need to go back to the one year budget.

As for declining enrollment, Ryan said we should average it out over three years instead of taking the numbers of lost students every year. For example, if a school loses one student the first year, two students the next year and one student the third year, they would only get cut for one student from their foundation grant.

Ryan also said we need to bring "equity" to the school districts per pupil spending. He said some districts get as much as $12,000, while others only get $6,000. Something must be done to make it a little more equal in order to foster fair competition.

Ryan added, as for the current school funding problem, "I think the legislature is to blame for fiscal irresponsibility. I still think we need to preserve the commitment we made to schools so we need to cut in other areas of the budget."

The primary election will be Aug. 3.

Hospice - "the angels who hold you up during the journey you make with your loved ones"

When Jim & I became "northerners" in April of 2000, so did my Mom & Dad, Betty & Bob. They had been married 58 years and it was time for us to take care of them and their lives to be easier. Mom had Alzheimer's and other health issues; Dad had a laundry list of illnesses including heart failure.

We had a wonderful first year together on the lake. Dad could fish and take Mom for rides in their golf cart. In fall of 2001, Mom began to fail & we were encouraged to call Hospice of Little Traverse Bay. They helped us care for Mom until she died on April 27, 2002.

Our journey with Hospice didn't end there. Shortly after Mom died, Dad became more ill. Hospice was with us again until he died on August 5, 2003.

The people of Hospice of Little Traverse Bay are the angels who hold you up during the journey you make with your loved ones. We were blessed to have Hospice with us for almost a year and a half. It takes truly gifted people to make the journey to death another of God's miracles. We love you, Hospice, and always will.

Peace & hugs, Kathy & Jim Weidman

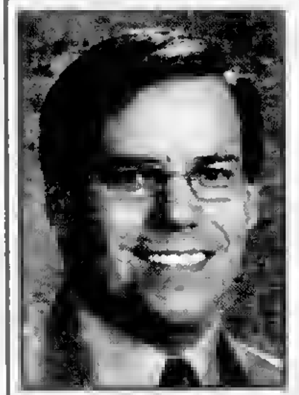
Prosecutor candidates tout court experience

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Both candidates for the Charlevoix County Prosecutor seat say they have plenty of experience in the courtroom to be a good advocate for the county's citizens.

Mary Beth Kur



John Jarema

Incumbent Mary Beth Kur said she is energetic, focused, fair and ethical in the court room and she has many years of experience in the district court trying misdemeanor cases, in the circuit court trying felony cases and in the family court trying child custody cases.

Kur is a 1990 graduate of the University of Detroit Law School. After graduation, she worked in a private practice for a year, until she started working for the Genesee County Prosecutor's Office.

With the Genesee County Prosecutor, she started out working on ordinance violations for small cities in her coverage area. Kur also did the preliminary exam case work for the prosecutor's office in homicides and other felonies in the city of Flint.

"It was very challenging work. I did everything from jay walking to first degree murder," Kur said.

She did this work for about a year before moving to northern Michigan to take a job in the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office as the Chief Assistant Prosecutor under then Prosecutor Richard May. With May, Kur was responsible for district court and circuit court cases.

She said in 1994 she tried seven district court cases and two circuit court cases. Kur added May tried one district court case and one circuit court case in that time.

Overall, Kur said she has tried over 100 cases. Of them, 20 were multiday complex circuit court felony cases and 25 were termination of parental rights trials in the family division of circuit court.

She added she has also argued before the State Appeals Court and won.

As for a win-loss record, she said, "I don't have the statistics on win or loss. I won more than I lost, but I don't know if that is a yard stick because there is a rule that a prosecutor's job is the seek justice, not convictions."

As a prosecuting attorney — a position she took over in 1995 — Kur said she does not take most of the district court cases anymore, but she does personally handle all murder cases and other large complex felony cases that go to circuit court. At the same time, she said she is the civil counsel to Charlevoix County and pointed out in other counties outside lawyers are contracted to do that work.

Kur also supervises a staff of seven, including three lawyers and one part-time lawyer who works on child support issues. She also sits on several boards such as SANE, Board of Directors of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan, the Northern Michigan Child Abuse Council and the Michigan Domestic Violence Prevention and Treatment Board.

"I am not going to apologize for not spending the bulk of my time doing misdemeanor traffic work when I have outstanding and capable assistants who can handle those as well," she said. "I am a hard worker who spends long hours working outside of the courtroom too."

ELECTION 2004

Kur's challenger, former chief assistant prosecutor John Jarema said he also have plenty of experience to be the prosecuting attorney for Charlevoix County. He said he has handled both misdemeanor district court cases, probate court cases and felony circuit court cases, such as felony drunk driving, embezzlement, rapes, builder frauds and many others.

"In seven years I did over 100 cases, which is about 15 trials a year on average," he said.

He added he is proud of every one of those cases.

"They are all important. Headlines should not dictate when a prosecutor tries a case," he said.

Jarema said he has won about 80 percent of the cases he has tried.

Jarema graduated from the Detroit College of Law in January 1995. He took the bar exam in February 1995 and began working in the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office under May that same month.

Previously, Jarema did internships in the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office in 1993 and 1994.

Under May, Jarema did district court cases and some probate court, he did not try any felony cases at that time. However, when he became the chief assistant prosecutor in 1999 under Kur, Jarema said he added felony circuit court cases to his experience.

According to Jarema, he has tried — or been co-counsel — on eight felony cases during his time with the Charlevoix prosecutor's office.

Jarema said he is very prepared in the courtroom and a zealous advocate of the law.

"I never want to come out of a case saying I should be more prepared. I am always prepared for battle," he said.

Additionally, Jarema said he is fair and can see both sides of the issue.

"So many people have come up to be and asked for a yard sign that and I have prosecuted them at one time. That is because I treated them fairly. I treated them like human beings," he said.

Charlevoix Public Library now has high speed internet

Due to the demanding use of the library's Internet access, the Charlevoix Public Library is now offering a wireless connection to their T1 line, offering high-speed Internet service in downtown Charlevoix.

The library's wireless hub is compatible with 802-11b and 802-11g protocol.

"Our patrons with wireless capability will have a place to connect without waiting in line for a computer," said Val Meyerson, library director. "The only caveat is that the wireless users agree to follow the library's Internet Use policy, the same as other computer users in our facility."

The library offers seven public access workstations loaded with office software applications. Patrons have to sign up and wait for an available computer, but the library does offer a 15-minute workstation for quick e-mail checks.

"The wireless hub is already relieving some of the computer congestion upstairs," Meyerson said.

For more information on how to get connected, contact Meyerson at the library at (231) 547-2651.

For a list of previous winners, visit www.crookedtree.org.

The process by which award recipients are nominated and selected has been carefully constructed to include nominees from all over the two-county area.

Nominees are not required to have an affiliation with any particular organization. A panel of judges representing a wide array of arts and cultural constituencies within Emmet and Charlevoix Counties will determine the award recipients.

- Benefactor Award: given to a business, foundation or organization in Charlevoix and Emmet counties that has given extraordinary support to artists or cultural organizations in the two-county region.
- Lifetime Achievement Award: given to the individual who has been prominent in the arts and culture of Charlevoix and Emmet Counties throughout his or her lifetime.

Ticket prices are $40 each for champagne, beer, wine, non-alcoholic beverages, appetizer style dinner, dessert and awards ceremony. This year a new category of ticket is availble for dessert and the awards ceremony for $10 per person.

Eight awards will be presented during a dessert program.

Nomination forms are available at the Crooked Tree Arts Center, on line www.crookedtree.org at all area Chamber of Commerce offices and area libraries. For more information or to reserve a ticket, please call the Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337.

Survey shows support for public smoking ban

According to the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency a survey shows 82 percent of registered voters support smoking ban in work sites and public places.

The American Cancer Society conducted the survey in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties. It was designed to determine northwest Michigan registered voters' attitudes about secondhand smoke in work sites and public places.

According to Gerald Chase, health officer, highlights of the survey include:

- 82 percent of registered voters surveyed agree a smoking restriction is needed so children and nonsmokers do not have to be exposed to the harmful effects of secondhand smoke.
- 87 percent of registered voters surveyed agree that indoor areas of work sites and public places should be smokefree.
- 92 percent of registered voters surveyed understand that secondhand smoke can harm people who don't smoke.

"This is great news for the members of the Tobacco Reduction Coalition," said Kenyon Stebbins, Ph.D., Chair. "We've been working toward a work site tobacco restriction in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties for nearly two years. We've thought the 'silent majority' of community was on our side. Now, we know it."

Secondhand smoke is the smoke that comes off the lit end of a cigarette. More than 50 chemicals in cigarette smoke contain cancer-causing compounds.

In addition to cancer, secondhand smoke causes heart disease and Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS). Serious impacts of secondhand smoke on children include asthma induction and exacerbation, bronchitis and pneumonia, middle ear infection, chronic respiratory symptoms and low birth weight.

Chase will present a work site tobacco restriction to the Board of Health at their July 20 meeting in Charlevoix. The restriction, which will include Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties, cannot include restaurants and bars due to a state legislative ban.

The County Board of Commissioners from Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and/or Otsego counties must also approve the restriction for it to be enacted at the county level.

Several counties in Michigan have enacted work site tobacco restrictions, including Genessee, Ingham and Kent. Seven states have enacted workplace tobacco bans.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

For additional information about secondhand smoke, the proposed restriction, or the Tobacco Reduction Coalition, telephone Molly Cotant at the health department at (231) 547-7659.

Chair-ity Auction

Hospice to have auction

Castle Farms of Charlevoix is the location and Friday, July 30 is the date for this year's Hospice of Northwest Michigan auction.

As is the case every year, a large selection of items will be on hand for both the silent and live auctions and due to limited space only a few can be mentioned here. Linda Haderer, a well-known artist of the area, has given several of her fabric angels as well as a collection of forty Beanie Babies. A few other items include: Availability of condos from various parts of the country, á hand-crafted wood table by Lee Ekstrom and a kayak from Sunburst Marine.

The evening's activities start at 5:30 p.m. with the silent auction and live auction starting later. Scott MacKenzie and Rip Hayes are the auctioneers. Margaret Thomson, a local pianist, will be providing background music.

Ticket prices will be $30, $60 and $90 per seat. All ticket prices include complementary beverages, hors d'oeuvres and the chance to win the $300 and $200 door prizes that will be drawn at intervals during the program.

Tickets are available at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan, The Clothing Company in Charlevoix, Orchards Hills LTD in Bellaire, and at the door.

The Hospice Office should be contacted regarding any questions (231) 536-2842.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan (HNM) is in partnership with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency that provides the clinical component of the program - nursing, social work, home health aides, chaplain and therapists. HNM provides the volunteer, bereavement and fund-raising component of the program. With this arrangement the best possible care is provided for those on their final journey in life.

Charlevoix pool unveils inflatable for open swim

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

A donation to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool will add a new attraction for pool visitors while honoring the work of two people involved with the pool.

Many visitors to the pool remember the inflatable dog that floated in the pool for many open swims.

"The dog was a big hit," said Al Gooch, pool director.

When the condition of the inflatable dog forced it to be retired, the need for something new was raised in the board meeting. That's when Mike and Rhea Dow stepped in to make a donation.

Their donation came in the form of a 21-foot long inflatable tugboat. It ranges from four to six feet wide, and is made by Airspace, the company that also created the inflatable dog.

Gooch said they decided to name the inflatable "The U.S.S. MacArthur" to honor Bruce and Barbara MacArthur "for all their work and dedication over the years."

The inflatable will be in the pool for open swims from 3-5 p.m. on Tuesday and 6-8 p.m. on Thursday beginning Tuesday, July 27.

"It's fun for all ages," said Gooch.

Open swims with the inflatable dog were often so busy that time had to be regulated to allow time for the older kids and the younger kids.

Because of the success with the inflatable dog, Gooch said, "Whenever the boat's in the water, we hope for increased attendance."

Fisherman's Island hosts summer activities

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Children of all ages can learn local lore and other items during the State Park Explorer Program at Fisherman's Island State Park.

There will be three programs at Fisherman's Island State Park, with other programs available at Young State Park in Boyne City.

Children can learn about the Piping Plover, Great Lakes Shipwrecks and Petoskey Stones while enjoying the outdoors.

"The is the first year the Department of Natural Resources' Outreach and Education Division has taken on a program themselves," Jean Cox, unit manager at Young State Park said.

The program grew out of the Adventure Ranger Program through the Kalamazoo Nature Center.

Local Legends around the Campfire and the Story of the Piping Plover is the first program scheduled for Fisherman's Island.

Children will be learning about who settled the Fisherman's Island and Norwood area among other things. The program starts at 8 p.m. on Friday, July 23.

The second program taking place is called Petoskey Stone Stuff. This program enables those who attend to learn about the fossil form and where good sites are in order to find them. The program starts at 2 p.m. on Tuesday, July 27.

Great Lakes Shipwreck Tales around the Campfire and the Story of the Piping Plover is scheduled for 8 p.m. on Saturday, July 31. Children can learn what was sold as liquid gold in Charlevoix and other mariner stories along with how the Piping Plover became an endangered species.

All three programs will occur at Fisherman's Island State Park, Site One. Any children under the age of 10 must be accompanied by a parent.

The programs will be taught by Park Explorer Guide Harry Wright. For more information call Wright at Young State Park at (231) 690-4140.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Carey Cup down to two finalists

The Carey Cup, a part of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival celebration, reached its finals with all flights reporting two players left recently.

The tournament is named after the late Keith Carey, popular former course manager and local star athlete.

Tournament Director Scott Blechel said that in the men's championship flight, David Shearer defeated Jeff Kirby 4-3 while Bruce Beaudoin got the best of Bud Klooster 2-1. So, Shearer and Beaudoin will meet in the finals.

In the men's first flight Chris Putman defeated Steve Fuller 2-1 and Shawn Putman bested Zack Lake 3-1 so the two Putmans will meet in the finals.

In the senior men's flight Jack Niswander beat Glen Taylor 2-1 and Bill Ward edged Don Hardy 2 up. The two winners will meet in the finals.

In the Women's' flight Katie Zbierajewski got the best of Jill Washburn 5-3 and Fran Marsehner defeated Nancy Grunch 4-3 setting up their finals.

Supporters, protesters greet president in U.P.

VISIT

"I think it was showing support to our president even if we don't agree with all his views," Scout Zack Smith, 15, said.

Those who attended the event from Boy Scout Troop 11 are Connor Currier, 9, Trevor Currier, 11, Dustin Hess, 9, Casey Riley, 11, Dan Riley, 13, Brian Shutler, 11, Rob Shutler, 16, Zack Smith, 15, Brennan Stebe, 13 and Nate Tripplehorn, 14.

The experience is one that some got to undergo up close. Three people from the Charlevoix area were close enough to the president's stand that they shook his hand when he came down into the crowd.

Frieda Lewitt, a Petoskey resident, said President Bush made direct eye contact with her as he shook her hand twice.

"He told me 'I really want to thank you for coming out to see me today,'" she said.

The experience is one that Lewitt said she will carry with her throughout life.

"It was an epic thing for me," she said. "I'll never forget him."

Lewitt's son, Daniel Lewitt, 12, didn't get to shake President Bush's hand, but still enjoyed being in such close quarters with the Commander in Chief.

"Well, it's pretty much just an honor to be in the same room as President Bush," he said.

Lewitt said despite his young age, he takes an active interest in politics and thinks more children his age should do the same.

"I just really care about the president who can run the country," he said. "I can't wait to vote."

Robert C. and Margo Johnson of Charlevoix were also able to shake the president's hand.

"It was overwhelming," Margo Johnson said. "We had only hoped to be in the building."

Margo Johnson said the experience was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

"I don't think you have to be a strong supporter to go see a sitting president," she said.

Robert C. Johnson said the president made a lot of eye contact and presented himself as a common guy.

"He's so warm, casual, just himself," Johnson said.

Margo Johnson said she received a regular handshake while her husband and the president exchanged a sort of high-five clasp.

Others may not have shaken the president's hand, but were just excited to be involved in such a national event.

Joshua Evans, 23, of East Jordan said he went because the opportunity to see a sitting president doesn't happen all that often.

"It's a great opportunity and everyone should just take it," he said.

Evans said it was a neat experience to see the president speak live instead of watching the event on television.

During the rally, President Bush said America's economy is the fastest growing of any major industrialized nations. The president also praised the military for their hard work in Iraq, but reminded those in attendance that America's greatest strength is the character of its citizens.

Throughout his speech, President Bush would discredit presidential candidate John Kerry and his running mate, John Edwards.

Even though the president got a lot of cheers from what he said and shook hands and made eye contact, not everyone was in favor of Bush's presence in Marquette.

Outside the Superior Dome, the atmosphere was not that of a pep rally. Those opposed to Bush's administration displayed their feelings in signs and T-shirts.

Moments of heated conversation may have erupted, but Jack LaSalle, chairman of the Marquette County Democratic Party, said the event ran smoothly for the most part.

"I never saw any people crossing the line," he said. "I thought we were well-treated and allowed to have a say."

LaSalle said the ability to protest so close to the Superior Dome was pleasing because protesters tend to be placed 10 to 12 blocks away.

Even though some things were running smoothly, LaSalle said 12 or 15 protesters who had waited in line to get their ticket were denied entry due to anti-Bush slogans on their clothing.

"That was the only wrinkle in the whole event that I witnessed myself," he said.

Jim Matteson, assistant treasurer of the Marquette County Democratic Party, said he has voted for both democratic and republican candidates in the past but won't be voting for Bush.

"I did not vote for him in 2000 and will not vote for him in 2004," Matteson said.

Over 320,000 jobs have been lost in Michigan during Bush's presidency, but at the rally Bush said people should be proud that over 29,600 new jobs were added since February.

Matteson said it's good there are jobs, but it's only 10 percent of what was lost.

"I don't consider that a gain in a four-year term," he said.

No matter whether one is pro-Bush or anti-Bush, Matteson said the rally did have one good quality to it.

"It increased an interest, on the part of young people and old people, in politics and in this election," he said.

Skatepark to have demonstrations this week

SKATEPARK

The Charlevoix Community Skatepark is owned and operated by the City of Charlevoix, which means all liability is covered by the city. Hankins said those who will work the park are doing so as volunteers and are not employed by the city.

Hankins said the Charlevoix Community Skatepark, Inc. exists for fund-raising purposes only, which will include things like car washes and T-shirt sales.

Hankins said that any fund-raising involving skating is a city-sponsored fund-raiser.

SK8-A-Thon II-2020 Vision: See the Park, the current city-sponsored fund-raiser, will take place from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, July 22. The talented skaters will be taking 20 pledges at $20 each, which will go toward the Skatepark Fund within the city.

The money will help with costs to operate the skatepark located next to the old middle school. This temporary location will be in operation until the end of October so those who skate can have a place to practice.

"Kids can be busy this year," she said. "We want to be able to skate while raising money for our permanent equipment."

Hankins said the fund-raiser is occuring during the 74th Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival, but is not a part of it.

Hankins said the only level of involvement is having a skating demonstration during Venetian's Kickoff at Castle Farms on Tuesday, July 20.

The permanent location has yet to be decided upon, but is intended to be an indoor, year-round facility.

The outdoor, temporary equipment available includes one SkateWave quarter pipe, a 5 foot wooden half pipe evaluate by Suburban-rails, three SunRamp ramps and one spine and a flat cement surface area for freestyle.

When people come to skate, volunteers will put a colored wristband on their wrist and write the date on it. These daily user fee passes only cost $1 and so do helmet rentals.

Vending and concession items will also be available along with repair options, according to the information supplied at the special City Council meeting.

As stated in the information supplied at the City Council meeting, clinics will be offered for those to come and learn skateboarding, inline skating and BMX bike techniques from qualified instructors.

Volunteers must fill out an application, undergo a background check, have proof of or undergo CPR and First Aid Certification, read and sign the volunteer handbook and go through an orientation.

Adult volunteers are needed and anyone interested can contact Hankins at (231) 675-0847 or online at vichankins@hotmail.com.

Venetian Parade

Colorful Event

The days when water craft provided the principal means of transportation and were the center of summer entertainment, were re-enacted here Sunday night with the staging of a Venetian boat parade on Round Lake.

A crowd estimated at 5,000 persons saw the colorful spectacle. Every vantage point on the harbor was packed and despite threatening weather, efforts of the marine committee of the Board of Commerce, assisted by Gordon Todd, activities director, were rewarded with an event acclaimed the most beautiful ever witnessed here.

While the entry fell short of original expectations, the 24 boats taking part provided a sufficient number. The boats, lighted with colored Japanese lanterns and made beautiful in the darkness by colored flares, sparklers and Roman candles, entered Round Lake harbor from Lake Charlevoix in a long line. The boats split in formation for the first circle of the lake and finally joined in a larger circle. The Marold 11, gayly lighted, carried the city band which furnished music during the parade.

Those entering boats in the parade were C.S. Webster, Ray Kipke, Dr. F.W. Young, Ivan Falconer, Henry Partridge, Bruce Withers, Harry Lesser, Milo Todd, Miller Boat Co., Ward Richardson, Charlevoix Trolling Camp, Fred Bergmann, W.H. Wallace, Sander Halverson, Charles Bellinger, Ronald Fairbanks, Vane Smith, P.D. Campbell, Bill Novak, Sam Halverson, Glenn S. See, Robert Gerrie and Wesley Gilders.

Due to storms and other adverse circumstances, only a small number of boats from Port Huron-Mackinac Island cruise were present for the event. The greater portion of the boats have returned to their home ports, while some did not even complete the cruise.

Due to the fine success of Sunday night's event and complying with the request of numerous summer residents, another Venetian parade will be staged during the season, probably the third Sunday in August.

Belvedere Club celebrates 100 years of summer

One hundred years of summer in Charlevoix the Beautiful is being celebrated at the Belvedere Club this week.

The 350 members of Charlevoix's oldest summer community are observing their centennial year Saturday with activities steeped in the tradition of the club, according to Peggy Disbrow, member of the centennial committee.

"Children are a very important part of the activities at the Belvedere and they always have been," Mrs. Disbrow explained. "So the things we will be doing Saturday are planned for them as well as the adults."

A picnic featuring games for the young and young-at-heart will be held Saturday afternoon on the upperterrace of the club where the former Belvedere Club Hotel used to stand. Prizes will be awarded and box lunches will be supplied.

Following the afternoon's activities, club members will watch the Venetian Festival Boat Parade and fireworks display to complete the day.

"We thought the Venetian Festival would be a nice finish for the day," Mrs. Disbrow explained. "People at the Belvedere have always enjoyed it, so we planned our celebration around it."

On Sunday, the club members will gather at the Belvedere Casino for a hymn sing and prayer meeting reminiscent of the hymn sings that used to be held weekly at the club.

"The Belvedere Club was a very religious organization when it was started," Mrs. Disbrow said.

The Belvedere Club got its start in 1878 when six men from Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Fort Wayne banded together to form the Charlevoix Summer Home Association.

The men purchased 25 acres of land from the City of Charlevoix for $625 and immediately constructed six cottages and a pier.

"Most of the people came here by boat or stage in those days," Mrs. Disbrow explained.

The following year a boarding house, which later became the enormous Belvedere Hotel, was built.

The six men settled in Charlevoix because of its beauty and because they were boat people like so many of the Belvedere residents are today, the centennial committee member said.

"And of course Round Lake is a great asset," she pointed out.

Gradually the club grew to the 88 cottages that it has today. The Belvedere draws its members from St. Louis, Chicago, Grosse Pointe, Memphis, Nashville, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and parts of Texas.

Only a few members are left who are still related to the original founders.

One of those families is the John Ware family from Wichita, Kan. Ware brought his wife and 4-year-old daughter, Mickey to the Belvedere for the first time this summer. Mickey is one of four children in the Ware family who represents a fifth generation in the same family at the Belvedere.

Mickey is one of three five generation family members who are still summering in the same cottage.

There are three Ware family cottages in the Belvedere Club, built by three brothers, the sons of Elisha Ware who helped found the club.

As the Belvedere grew, history was made. Statesman Adlai Stevenson, actor Bill Tallman and writer Ernest Hemingway all have roots in the club.

Other, not so well known, people created history at the club, too. Like the members of the club who sat up all night looking at the hotel as it was being constructed and decided it should be named the Belvedere, thus changing the history of the club.

Or the members who tell the stories of having to go down to the dining hall to use the only bathtubs in the club.

"You had to sign up to use the bathtubs and they charged you 25 cents," Mrs. Disbrow said recalling her history.

"They had running water more or less. It was cold or you could use heated up water from the stove."

The Only Businessman in the Race for State Representative.

Send Someone with Business Sense to Lansing.

- Started an International company in his garage.
- Created nearly 1000 jobs.
- $1.3 Billion in sales.

Ramsey Plan to Create Jobs

- Eliminate unnecessary taxes and regulations such as Single Business Tax.
- Spur private angel and venture capital to invest in Northern Michigan.
- Invest in natural resources because we have a competitive advantage.

RAMSEY PLANS:
Job Creation for Northern Michigan

1. Job Containment
The state's responsibility is to insure that it is not inhibiting the business climate for existing businesses through onerous taxes, unnecessary regulations, or bureaucratic requirements. Michigan needs to have the objective of being known as the most "business friendly" state in the union.

2. New Business Initiatives
Businesses tend to stay where they start. Through private capital and government initiatives, Northern Michigan needs to be a fertile breeding ground for new business creation. This requires the availability of significant risk capital, a network to put ideas in front of available capital, an aggressive approach by government to encourage new business, and a climate that supports new business. Business deterring taxes such at the SBT must be eliminated.

3. Recreation Industries Investment and Protection
The objective is to maximize Northern Michigan's competitive advantages in attracting consumers for the summer, fall and winter recreation industries. Investment in infrastructure, national advertising, and protection of environment and natural resources are important to the Northern Michigan economy.

Protection of Rights

1. Right to Life
There is nothing more fundamental than the Right to Life. Fight to stop partial birth abortion and reduce unwanted pregnancies through abstinence education.

2. Right to Bear Arms
The second amendment, and all constitutional rights, are sacred and should not be infringed upon.

Health Care Plan

1. Low Cost Alternative
Allow prescriptions to be purchased at the lowest cost alternative–even if that means purchasing them in Canada.

2. Cooperation Among States
Encourage more cooperation among states to purchase prescription drugs in higher quantities at lower rates.

Charlevoix lit up this past week during the 74th Annual Venetian Festival and everything went as smoothly as planned.

Venetian Board President Dan Barron said this year's Venetian Festival may have set precedent for some activities if everything can work out.

"We went the extra mile this year with staging extra events," Barron said.

The extra events included the June fund-raiser featuring the Young Americans, the Rayder Rumble and the Kick-off at the Castle.

Barron said these events were time consuming to pull together, but were worthwhile to explore the possibilities of what they could bring to the festival.

Later this week, Barron said he, festival board members, city department heads, law enforcement agencies and the United States Coast Guard will sit down and conduct post-festival critiques.

Barron said these critiques will allow them to see what worked well and what could be improved upon.

What did work was the boat parade's new route, which entails the boats coming through Pine River Channel and passing under the bridge.

"It's perhaps the best staged boat parade we've had in regards to distance between boats," Barron said.

This year, Barron said it took a little over 30 minutes for 20 boats to pass by the viewing area in East Park compared to an hour in years past.

"We create a whole new spectator viewing area along the channel," Barron said. "They're up close and personal with the lighted boats."

Barron said the Coast Guard was happy in regards to the Former Charlevoix resident dies while diving on lake

A 50-year-old Lansing woman, who was formally from Charlevoix, died around 2:30 p.m., Sunday, in Lake Charlevoix off of Depot Beach.

The woman, Bonnie Gates, was diving in the lake with some friends when she came to the surface and told one of her friends she was tired. She then lost consciousness while still in the water. The U.S. Coast Guard and Charlevoix County Sheriff's Marine Patrol responded to the scene and the woman was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital where she was pronounced dead.

A preliminary investigation indicates she may have suffered a heart attack. The incident is still under investigation.

Gates was a long-time employee of the Family Independence Agency and worked in Charlevoix County for many years before moving to Lansing for a job promotion.

Bill Denemy, director of the Charlevoix/Emmet FIA office, said Gates was, "bigger than life."

"She was exceptionally well-liked. She was admired for her knowledge, quick wit and always had a positive comment," he said.

Gates started with FIA in 1987 and left the local office for a promotion in April 2003.

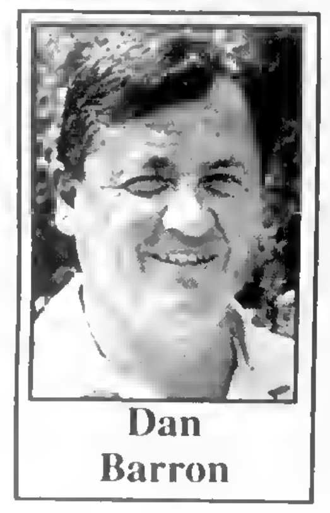
A salute to Mr. Venetian Festival

EDITORIAL

Another Venetian Festival is behind us.

Gone are the massive amounts of people, happily listening to the many bands that perform in East Park. Gone are the carnival rides that are filled with smiling children enjoying a thrill or two. Gone are the historical displays showing residents and visitors a little about our past. And finished are the two nights of fireworks that light up the skies over Lake Charlevoix and Round Lake.

Venetian Festival is a time of great joy in the city of Charlevoix. Even its critics, those who would rather see the crowds go somewhere else, spend at least a little time downtown enjoying some activity of Venetian.



Dan Barron

After many years of work this festival has become something the people and visitors to Charlevoix look forward to, year after year. It is our shining moment. Our event. Our festival.

But, what many people do not realize is that this festival would not be what it is today without the hard work of one man. This man gives a good deal of his time each year, both during the festival and throughout the rest of the year, to making sure everything is coming together for Venetian and the people will be happy.

This man is Venetian Festival President Dan Barron. Barron is Mr. Venetian for this community. He pulls strings to get us the best firework's show in the north, he writes to the contacts and convinces agents to bring their best musical talent to our Venetian stage — acts such as blues great Koko Taylor and he makes sure all the Venetian workers know what they are doing and keeps them on schedule.

Barron is an example of a truly community-minded person. Congratulations on another successful festival, Dan.

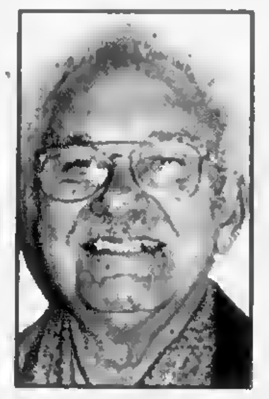
A new 'greener' way to look at burial in America



Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Until about the age of 25, most humans seem programmed to consider themselves essentially immortal, which explains an abundance of risky behavior in folks from late teens into early twenties. The immortal period lasts longer in some than in others, but eventually we all pretty much have to confront our mortality. The only question faced for certain by everyone at that point is, "Once the spirit has departed, what should be done with the remains?"

For many years my favorite response to that eventuality came from an army veteran, a member of the "Greatest Generation" who, in his last days, pronounced, "Let the g-d army take care of it." The adjective he used did not indicate anger or dissatisfaction with the military, it was just one of the many adjectives that preceded the word "army" in any conversation. I remember thinking, "Why would I trust the army to handle that sort of thing well?" But I have visited this gentleman's final resting place and it is awe-inspiring. Barancas National Cemetery in Pensacola, Fla. is hundreds of acres of neatly clipped grass surrounding tens of thousands of simple marble markers each with its own name, rank and serial number.

More than a memorial to our veterans it is also a monument to our sort of Egyptian pharaoh approach to final resting places: a place where all these people are preserved, and cared for in perpetuity. It is an approach I have come to question.

I don't think that several thousand years in the future some then-interested archeologist will have any concern for my degree of preservation or care what I ate for lunch the day before I died. If we are truly a part of the earth than maybe we should think about returning to it rather then separating ourselves from it forever.

All of this somewhat morbid thought was stimulated by an article in the most recent issue of the AARP Bulletin. It discusses what are called "Green Burials." It seems that an entrepreneurial doctor in South Carolina has begun to offer plain pine box, no embalming, simple ground level marker burials in what is a permanent forest preserve. The wood will be preserved for the known future, people can visit the place in which their loved ones have been interred, and all those loved ones will again be part of the cycle of life, participating molecularly in all the surrounding air, trees and flowers. We say "dust to dust," but in the case of green burials we really mean it. Mother Nature takes care of it, without mowers, giant monuments or the need for perpetual human care.

This seems to be an appropriately religious, conservative and less expensive approach to death and burial. It is much closer to the way things have been through most of human history than what we have more recently come to think of as "normal." And as more and more humans crowd the earth we may eventually treasure quiet woods more than carefully clipped lawns.

Our South Carolina entrepreneur is not attempting to put all the usual funeral services out of business, he simply wants to change their involvement in a few small ways.

I don't know exactly what Michigan laws are regarding burial, but I do know that laws can be changed in the face of need or public desire. To paraphrase my veteran friend's statement, maybe it is time to "Let Mother Nature take care of it." That is longer term care than even the army is ready to provide.

Support Jarema

Editor:

We have had the privilege of having John and Krista Jarema's daughters in our daycare since they were babies. During that time, we have gotten to know John on a personal level. He is a very loving and attentive father whom his daughters adore. John believes in disciplining and training his children. They have been taught honesty, morals, compassion and to show love, kindness and respect to others. From early on, they have been taught Biblical principles and not long after they were able to talk, they could recite the Lord's Prayer from memory. Their love of God is very apparent in their young lives. They are a reflection of their parents.

We cannot think of a better or more qualified candidate for Charlevoix County Prosecutor than John Jarema. He is a man of integrity. He possesses all the characteristics that he has instilled in his daughters. Yet he is very serious and diligent when it comes to prosecution. He has a heartfelt passion for prosecuting and upholding our laws. We truly believe that his experience in personally handling over 100 trials (with an 80 percent conviction rate) sets him apart. John isn't afraid to take a legitimate case to trial and has proven that by trying more cases than any other attorney while in office. Although he has prosecuted many people, several of them have come back to tell him that they appreciated the way he treated them with respect. We ourselves, have heard this first-hand.

John is both personal and professional and we count it an honor to know him and support him.

My name is Harvey Coates, formerly of Boyne City, now residing in Charlevoix for the past two years. I am involved in the community of Charlevoix by serving on the board of directors for the chamber of commerce and the convention and visitor's bureau. Throughout my short time serving the community of Charlevoix I have met some great and wonderful people, of whom Shirley Roloff is one of the greatest.

When I was diagnosed with cancer earlier this year, I didn't know who to turn to for help. Medical bills quickly began to pile up. I even stopped opening the envelopes because I didn't want to face the fact that I didn't have the money to start to pay on them. I soon fell into depression and let my sickness dishearten my optimistic personality. I blamed it on the chemo treatments.

My fiancé and sister-in-law were very understanding and helped by directing me to contact Shirley Roloff, who I found to be a very caring, giving and unselfish person. She created the Brian Roloff foundation to help aid cancer victims, in the honor of her son who lost the fight against cancer. She was able to raise enough money to support myself and two other cancer patients this year. Not only was she unselfish in giving the funds needed to pay off my medical bills, but she also gave me something else I was lacking in...hope. Shirley was able to help me gain a new perspective on life and with her words of encouragement, helped lead me out of my depression.

Shirley Roloff is a moral and just person with Christian values and a pure heart. She is a hero to me and many others, who strive to be more like her every day. She is a role model and a pillar of this community. She has given so much of herself to this community and now it is time to show our support by reelecting her as county commissioner.

I am sending this "Letter to the Editor" in support of John Jarema for County Prosecutor. I have known John and his family for several years now and find him highly qualified for this position.

John is a man of integrity, honesty, forthrightness and deserves the chance to make the office of county prosecutor as good as it can be! He has served his community well and will continue to do so.

I cannot think of a better or more qualified candidate for Charlevoix County Prosecutor. He has handled over 100 trials with an 80 percent conviction rate and I find this very commendable. He is highly respected by his peers and even those he has had to prosecute.

Support Kur

Editor:

After moving north, I briefly worked part-time as an assistant prosecutor in Charlevoix County. Although I am not one to write letters to the editor, allegations I have read about Mary Beth Kur deserve a response by someone who was in a position to observe what did and did not occur in the office, and is familiar with other prosecutors' offices.

The disparaging allegations I have read about Prosecutor Kur and her office do not describe the office in which I worked between approximately October 2002 and March 2003. I saw that both Kur and the assistant prosecutors were dedicated to their jobs and worked diligently to serve the residents of and visitors to Charlevoix County. In addition to spending hours in court and at the office during the workday, Kur and her assistants took work home to be done on their own time - in the evening hours, on their days off, and on weekends. In short, they were all busy and hardworking.

As for claims of retaliatory behavior against support staff, I did not see any such behavior by Kur or any of the attorneys, all whom I found to be kind and thoughtful. It is unfortunate that certain former employees believe they worked in such a bad place because, from my vantage point, they seemed to have an understanding boss who served the public and was compassionate to her employees' personal needs.

I have worked as an assistant prosecutor and supervisor at the Washtenaw County Prosecutor's Office in Ann Arbor and as a training attorney for the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan/Prosecuting Attorneys Coordinating Council. In the 10 years since I first met Mary Beth Kur at a National College of District Attorneys domestic violence conference, I have heard of the cases she has prosecuted and have seen her at statewide meetings. She is known to be a hard worker who is tough, but fair. In addition to my own observations, it says something positive about her reputation within the prosecutorial community that other accomplished elected prosecutors have attended her fund-raisers.

I know that being a prosecutor is difficult work. Because of the nature of the job, a prosecutor will often be the subject of criticism, but few realize the complexity of the job or know the extent of its duties. As a result, for example, someone may find fault with a prosecutor for not personally trying more misdemeanor cases without knowing enough to think about the amount of time the prosecutor spends prosecuting felony cases, reviewing warrants, serving as legal advisor to county departments, or performing countless other duties.

When I worked for Kur she had in the office a photo of a young man who was murdered sometime after the photo was taken. The photo is not in a position where everyone stopping by the office window can see it, but it is placed where the staff can see it, think of the young man, and, perhaps, be reminded of why the job is so important and meaningful, despite constant criticism by others. From my observations, Mary Beth Kur is mindful of the importance of her work and cares about trying to do what is right and responsible for Charlevoix County. Her experience and respect throughout the state are unmatched in this election.

Re-elect Kur

Editor:

I am writing this letter to show my support for Mary Beth Kur and her campaign to be re-elected as Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney. By an unfortunate oversight, my wife's and my name was omitted from the advertisement which featured the names of so many of Ms. Kur's supporters.

I left a profitable private practice of law in Macomb County in 2003 in order to work for Mary Beth Kur and relocate to this area. I was aware of the pending lawsuits, the rumors and the gossip. But when I talked to people who really knew what was going on, and when I found out for myself the truth about these things, then I knew I had made the right decisions.

I have now served as her Chief Assistant Prosecuting Attorney for the past year. In my 14 years as an attorney in Michigan, I can honestly tell the voters of Charlevoix County that I have never worked in an office where everyone gets along as well, works as hard or is as dedicated to the community we serve as the current staff of Mary Beth Kur does every day. This kind of morale doesn't happen by chance; it can only occur when the person at the top sets an example of professionalism, service, and mutual respect. For that, I am proud to be working for Mary Beth Kur and Charlevoix County.

Under her leadership, I and the other assistant prosecutors have excelled in the administration of justice. We prosecute criminals vigorously, but fairly. As of this writing, I have only lost one jury trial in over a year, while convicting nine. The system in place now works for the people of Charlevoix County. The reason it works is called Mary Beth Kur. We look forward to your support at the polls on Aug. 3.

Clean up building

Editor:

I have seen many articles about how beautiful Charlevoix is. I live south of town and I drive to town every day; its the first thing I see and the last, and is not very nice. I am not alone on this. I can't help but see that eye sore of a burnt out Wojan building. Next to the Flight Deck Bar. You can't miss it. It has been sitting like that for over two years or so.

Everyone was worried about what Wal-Mart would do to the Stover Creek. What about that old rusty metal that still stands there and whatever else is still left in that building. Who knows?

That can't be very good for the environment! Rusty rain water running down into the creek. The longer it sits the worse it will get.

There is no reason why the Wojan building is still not cleaned up. It has been there long enough. If you want to keep to the famous saying, Charlevoix, The Beautiful, and not Charlevoix, the ugly burnt out building, then I think that the eye sore should be cleaned up.

Kur the right choice

Editor:

These letters. They keep showing up in the paper about the Charlevoix County Prosecutors election.

First, Alec Sheets writes in about how downstate police unions are always endorsing elected officials, saying it's ludicrous for them not to exercise their constitutional right to free speech. That came out about the same time the newspapers were reporting the indictment of prosecuting attorney Carl Marlinga from the area Sheets moved away from to come to Charlevoix. Please don't drag north, Alec, the downstate type of politics that you apparently moved away from. What's ludicrous is having a bumper sticker on your car and having to wonder if the cop behind you is supporting the other candidate. Welcome to Charlevoix County, Mr. Sheets, but please don't come here and lecture us about how they do things where you came from. We don't need it and we don't want it!

Then comes a letter from my friend Allen Telgenhof, supporting his candidate. Allen infers his colleagues were afraid to go up against his candidate in court. I'm not so sure any elected official should have to be feared. I'd rather have one that is fair. And besides, Mr. Telgenhof was president of the Charlevoix School Board during the tenuous fight to build the new high school. After that experience, I suspect Allen fears no one.

The other tripe about how many cases are tried by whom means nothing. Mary Beth Kur is an administrator and department head in addition to being a good lawyer. The controversy in the prosecutors office and the people that caused it are gone, as they should be. Let's keep it that way. Join me in voting for Mary Beth.

Vote for Jarema

Editor:

I remember how shocked I was to hear about John Jarema losing his job from the prosecutor's office. Although I did not work directly with him, I am familiar with his work.

The words that best describe his work ethic include honesty, skillful, hard working, knowledgeable, and respectful. Not only is he respectful of his peers and the judges in whose courtroom he practices, but even of defendants he was prosecuting believing they all deserve an equal playing field regardless if they have an attorney. Never have I heard a degrading or sarcastic remark from John about anyone.

The upcoming election on Aug. 3 is very important and should be taken seriously. The citizens of Charlevoix County should be voting for the person who will best serve us in the function of the chief law enforcement officer. The one to whom officers of various agencies will be looking for leadership and who also has earned their respect.

Charlevoix County deserves a prosecutor who is available, approachable, experienced, hard working, honest and most of all respectful of everyone with whom he has contact on a daily basis. For the good of Charlevoix County, elect John Jarema for Charlevoix County Prosecutor.

Support Ramsey

Editor:

I support John Ramsey for the 105th District House of Representatives seat. I have known John for more than 40 years. We were classmates and close friends at Michigan State University. John's core values have not changed over the years. He was then, and is now, a person with high integrity, strong moral values, and a great work ethic.

John's experience as founder and president of a major software company shows that he understands what it takes to create jobs and economic growth. His promise to fight for lower taxes will create a better environment for economic growth. John also understands that a strong education system is key to economic growth and will work for educational reforms that will provide a well trained work force in Michigan. I believe his ideas for stimulating growth in Northern Michigan will help bring jobs in this area.

John Ramsey will be a strong voice for Northern Michigan in the House of Representatives. I urge you to vote for John in the Aug. 3 primary.

Jarema best choice

Editor:

My wife and I both had the opportunity of working with John Jarema and Mary Beth Kur. We have also had good friendships at one time or another with both individuals. With saying this, we can honestly say that John Jarema would make the best choice for Charlevoix County Prosecutor.

It was very disheartening to read the letters degrading John's ability to become prosecuting attorney. Both my wife and I feel that John Jarema has the determination and skills to fulfill the duties as Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County. We can honestly tell you from working with him that John is hardworking, honest and trustworthy. John has many ideas to improve the prosecuting attorney's office from better communication, improved workflow in the day-to-day functions and saving taxpayer's money. John is not a vindictive person and would not turn on a friend for having a difference of opinion.

When reading the Cooks' letter to the editor we could not help but realize that they left out that John Jarema's skills also helped them through their son's trial. They also left out Sandy Ward's countless hours on the phone explaining procedures, consoling the Cooks' family and friends, coordinating and organizing travel for the prelim and trial and preparing the proper paperwork. There were many people to thank for the success of the Cooks' trial from the police officers to the support staff who were there at the time of the trial to the prosecutors handling the case.

It is also nice to see that most of the individuals that worked with John everyday (law enforcement, clerks and attorneys) and have seen him work as the Chief Assistant Prosecuting Attorney are supporting him to be the new Charlevoix County Prosecutor. This should tell you that John has a strong work ethic and is the best choice for the chief law enforcement officer of this county.

Thank you for your time in reading this letter and please remember to vote Aug. 3 for the best choice for Charlevoix County prosecutor, John Jarema.

Editor:

This letter has been written on behalf of the following employees of the Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorneys' Office: Sheana Bur, Victim Advocate; Jennifer Deegan, assistant prosecutor; Debra Niswander, support staff; John Puzzuoli, chief assistant prosecutor; Jeremy Kehr, law clerk; Brian Seely, assistant prosecutor; Staci Seelye, support staff; and Kerry Zahner, assistant prosecutor/child support specialist. This list represents the entire office.

We wish to inform the citizens and voters of Charlevoix County that we support Prosecuting Attorney Mary Beth Kur 100 percent. We know what Mary Beth Kur stands for and believes in, because we have worked with her every day-some of us for many years. She is a firm, but compassionate person who strives to achieve justice for all. She is fair and considerate to both victims of crimes and those charged with committing them.

But make no mistake, Mary Beth Kur vigorously enforces the laws that protect all of us.

Mary Beth Kur works very hard for Charlevoix County. We have all seen her put in hours at night and on weekends when the situation requires it. Being the Prosecuting Attorney is not a 9-5 job, and is certainly not something a mere "administrator" could ever accomplish as well as she has. Every day brings new challenges, unforeseen happenings, demands upon her time and county. She has proven her effectiveness in the courtroom. We, her staff, respect and trust her completely. She inspires each of us to do our jobs better every day. In return, we are able to manage the important daily tasks of running an office, handling the District and Probate Court dockets, collecting civil child support and paternity cases and serving the citizens of the county. Under her leadership and example, we allow her to focus on the serious crimes and civil issues that Charlevoix County faces, matters that require someone with the experience and temperament that she possesses.

Facts support Kur

Editor:

The recent letter from Jan Boss implies that if a prosecuting attorney is not in misdemeanor traffic court something must be wrong. Knowing first hand that Mary Beth works long hours, including weekends, I decided to look into this a little.

Here's what I found.

Here are only a few recent cases that Mary Beth Kur has tried and won:

- Murder — A 25-year-old boater was stabbed to death at the Charlevoix Marina.
- Drug delivery — A GHB (date-rape drug) delivery and overdose.
- Safe cracking — A career criminal broke into the safes of two Charlevoix businesses and received life sentences.
- Child rape — A 4-year-old little girl was sexually assaulted by her day-care provider's husband.
- Serious assault — Sheriff Lasater had the barrel of a shotgun rammed into his mouth while serving court papers.
- Adult rape — A woman was raped in her own home by an acquaintance.
- Teen rape — Several young girls were raped by an adult male.
- More than 20 serious child neglect cases, resulting in parental rights being terminated, allowing the children to be adopted by loving parents.

The list goes on and on. Now let's compare apples-to-apples.

Jan and I agree on one thing. Court records show Jarema has spent most of his career handling less complicated simple misdemeanor cases. Anyone who has read the paper or served jury duty in the last 11 years knows that Mary Beth Kur spends a great deal of her time handling, supervising and winning the longer, more difficult and more serious cases. That is where we want her to be. Sheriff Lasater, the longest serving sheriff in Michigan, rarely, if ever, issues speeding tickets. Does that mean he's not working? Of course not!

In Charlevoix County the prosecutor also acts as the civil attorney for the county. Others prosecutors may do more traffic cases either because they do not handle the civil work for their counties or they are short staffed. Emmet County has a separate lawyer that does the civil work. Cheboygan County and Otsego County have hired outside law firms to do their civil work.

And let's not forget that for two years Mary Beth has had to assist in the defense of three frivolous and ridiculous lawsuits brought against the county by John Jarema and his friends.

I for one, know first hand about how much time and energy frivolous lawsuits, brought by money hungry attorneys take. I along with the City of Charlevoix was sued by the partners in Jarema's law firm. After a lengthy trial and much expense, we won.

I'm appalled that considering all of the above, Jarema wants to represent us as prosecutor. You should be, too.

Editor:

I am writing this letter to attempt to clear up some misconceptions and bring some things to light concerning Mr. Craig Ryan and the "interesting" letter concerning him appearing in the July 7, edition of the Courier. That letter purports to link Mr. Ryan with some sort of "gas cartel" and high gas prices. A very large portion of the price of gas is taxes and the increased cost of production caused by overbearing regulations. Mr. Ryan is on the record as being wholly against high taxes and regulations which drive the cost of all goods ever higher.

In Michigan the state gas tax is 19.875 cents per gallon. The federal gas tax of approximately the same amount is then applied. Not to miss out on a single farthing, the state sales tax is then applied on top of the aggregated sum. In effect, Michigan has the ridiculous policy of forcing its citizens to pay a tax upon tax. Imagine if the state gas tax was significantly lowered and the tax upon tax was eliminated. Gas prices would be significantly lowered; oil companies' profits could remain the same, and both the consumer

Candidates say they want to put past behind

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

ELECTION 2004

With the Aug. 3 primary election looming, both candidates for the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's race are reiterating their abilities to the voters.

Incumbent Charlevoix County Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur said, "I feel I am a tough but fair prosecutor. I am compassionate and I have a wealth of experience in the court room to offer the citizens of Charlevoix County."

Plus, she added she has an excellent staff.

Challenger, and former Charlevoix County Chief Assistant Prosecutor, John Jarema said, "I think I can bring my trial skills, my people skills and my communication skills with law enforcement and the public. I want to bring a proactive approach to the office and educate the youth and seniors."

If reelected to the position, Kur said she will continue to look for ways to incorporate technology into the office. She wants to improve communication between the prosecutor's office and the law enforcement agencies in the county with technology — such as allowing the electronic transmission of police reports and warrants — to help eliminate wasted paper.

Mary Beth Kur

She added she will also continue to seek our grant funding from state, federal and private groups to keep costs to the taxpayers down.

Jarema said, if elected, he will create educational programs for the youth of the county — such as the dangers of drugs and alcohol — and programs for senior citizens — such as how to avoid being a victim of identity theft.

Jarema added he will have a smaller staff than Kur's three attorneys and one part-time attorney.

John Jarema

"If elected I will have to review policies in place by the current prosecutor, from retail fraud to drunk driving, to see if it fits into what I think of justice. I will meet with all of the staff to see who wants to stay and who is loyal to the job. I will have to review salaries of the staff and meet with commissioners," he said.

Jarema was previously fired from Kur's office for being disloyal to her and for not getting along with members of the staff, Kur said. Jarema contends it was because he was going to report possible misuse of funds to the Charlevoix County Commissioners and sued Kur. That case was settled by the county's insurance company.

While this campaign has been very bitter at times between Kur and Jarema, both say they want to put the past behind them after the election.

"I wished him (Jarema) the best just after I fired him and I have indicated on numerous occasions that it is very important to move ahead. I would say that again. I think that it is time to move on," she said.

Jarema said, "I don't have any animosity towards her. (If elected) I am not going to go in there and clean house. I am going to put the past behind us and see if we can move forward."

Several trying for Norwood Township seats

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

It won't be an easy win for many incumbents at the August primary because several contestants are ready to step in and make a change, especially in Norwood Township.

In Norwood Township, the supervisor, clerk, treasurer and trustee positions are all up for grabs.

Wayne E. Boss will have to fight to keep his seat as supervisor against newcomer Wayne D. Wynkoop.

According to previous information, Boss, 58, has lived in the township for 28 years and has served as supervisor for the past few years.

Boss was unable to be reached for comment before press time.

Wynkoop, 46, is ready to see some changes come to Norwood Township, and is running for supervisor in order to do so.

"I'm running just to restore the respect and trust of the citizens of Norwood," he said.

Wynkoop said there have been serious issues going on for a year or two in Norwood and he'd like to see the township a good place to live once again. He said he isn't in the race for personal gain, but just wants to ensure there is someone in office who can restore Norwood back to the way it once was.

Wynkoop, owner of Wynkoop's Truck and Auto Body Repair in Charlevoix, said if there weren't problems in the township he wouldn't be running for supervisor when he has a business to run.

Wynkoop said he has a good relationship with his customers and fellow Norwood residents. He said people respect him because he is honest, straight forward and considerate of other people.

If elected as supervisor, Wynkoop said he will do what's right and fair. He also said he will hold everyone to the same standards including fellow officers.

An issue facing the township that Wynkoop holds dear is a checks and balance system for those in charge.

"Mainly, make sure someone is doing their job," he said. "People are having a free for all with no one enforcing anything."

Wynkoop has lived in Norwood Township for over 20 years and has never been involved with any political office before.

"I will take the position without any personal agenda except for holding what's right for the people," he said.

The supervisor race may be close, but so is that of clerk. Doris A. Pearl will have to work to keep her seat against newcomer Michelle D. Cyr.

Pearl, 59, has been serving Norwood Township for the past 28 years through her service as zoning administrator, planning commission member and township clerk.

"In those 28 years I have never taken an action that is self-serving for the township," she said.

One of the big issues Pearl wants to fix is the divisiveness of the township.

"The main issue is to heal the divisiveness that has been created...," she said.

Aside from healing a divided township, Pearl said she is interested in issues most affecting township residents such as roads and the continual running of the township in regard to serving the people.

"Government officials are public servants and I've always felt very strongly that is job number one," she said.

Pearl, who has lived her whole life in Norwood Township, is up against political newcomer, Cyr.

Cyr, 39, has lived her whole life in Norwood as well, but also spent five years away at college. She has never held any political office, but is running to ensure things are run fairly.

"I'm running because I want a fair and equitable government," she said. "I also want to be more involved in the decisions and how our tax money is spent."

The issues Cyr is focusing on in regard to the position of clerk are tax payers' money and fairness.

Cyr said as clerk, she wants to ensure tax money is spent fairly throughout the township with regard to roads and land issues. She also said she wants things to be run in a fair manner and according to the law.

2004

"Not for a few people's interest and agendas, but for the betterment of the whole township," she said.

Cyr said she wants there to be a broader voice serving Norwood and that everyone's needs should be addressed and not those of a certain few.

"I feel there's a huge change that needs to be made," she said. "I can't do it alone, but it's possible with the right people."

Another tight race is the one for treasurer.

Incumbent Ellen Jenson, daughter of Doris A. Pearl, is vying for the position as treasurer against Paul Grapp.

Jenson, 33, said she wants to continue on as treasurer so she can still give back to the community and gain more knowledge in the position.

Jenson said there is a learning curve that goes along with the position, and four years doesn't let someone learn it all.

She also said it would be a bad time for someone new to take the position because there is a new person in the county treasurer's office, which is the township treasurer's right hand component.

"The knowledge base is not there," she said.

Some of the issues important to Jenson are taxes and everything that goes along with them.

Plenty of choices for Norwood Township voters

She said the foremost aspect to the treasurer's job is to understand tax bills and be able to help people with issues they may have.

"My job is to help them and explain it the best I can," she said.

She also said it's important to make sure taxes are collected properly and to ensure people can get the answers they need in a timely manner.

Jenson has lived in the township her whole life except for four years during college and six years when she lived in Seattle. She said she has been back for a little over six years now.

Grapp, 43, has lived in Norwood Township for over 30 years and wants to become more involved in the community. Grapp said he is also running because he thinks the whole board needs to be replaced and many people told him to run.

"I just wish to work together with other people of the township and listen to their suggestions and have their voices heard," he said.

Grapp said people in the township should be well informed as to what's going on, which is one issue he wants to see action taken on.

"Apparently there's a small group of individuals that consider this their township and change things without anyone in the township knowing," he said.

Another issue important to Grapp concerns citizen's voices being heard. He said a majority of the people in Norwood Township are kept in the dark while a select few receive the minutes from meetings by e-mail.

The fate of farmers is also important to Grapp, who said tax increases are up more in Norwood Township than in other surrounding areas.

"It's been difficult for longtime residents," he said.

There are two trustee seats available and Frank Hamilton, Denny L. Way, Sadie A. Bartosik and Lynn Smolenyak are contesting for the positions.

Hamilton, 66, said he is running because there are two open seats and he has enough experience that qualifies him.

He has lived in Norwood Township for about 20 years and sat on the Norwood Township Board of Review for six years, was on city council and mayor pro-tem downstate for 13 years and was a city manager downstate for two years.

If elected, Hamilton said he would maintain what has already been established, but may try to get some new things passed such as a new township hall.

One issue important to Hamilton is converting the zoning jargon to something everyone can read and understand.

"The existing zoning board ordinances are extremely complicated," he said. "I have some difficulty so a novice would find it near impossible."

According to previous information, Way, 48, has lived in Norwood for five years and has no previous political experience. Way was unable to be reached for comment before press time.

Bartosik, 68, said she is running because of her concern over the treatment of residents.

"I want to be sure all the citizens of townships are treated equally and fairly in rights as residents," she said.

Bartosik said she isn't seeking change other than working for a pleasant and livable community.

Issues important to Bartosik include controlled growth of the area and use of the land.

"I just don't want to see uncontrolled changes to this very precious land of ours," she said.

Another contestant for the trustee position is Smolenyak, 48, who has lived in the area for almost 11 years and served as zoning administrator for the last three years.

Smolenyak said she is running because she thinks everyone should become involved in serving their community.

As zoning administrator Smolenyak said she was able to serve her community, but the position took up too much of her time.

"This will allow me to continue serving the community without involving so much extra time," she said.

The issue Smolenyak said she cares about is doing what needs to be done for the township.

"I hope we could be on track for better communication," she said. "Whoever serves any part of the government should be fully informed and involved."

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark — nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

BUSINESS

Charlevoix resident opens dog training facility

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Gaye Amick has always enjoyed working with dogs and now she has a business where she can turn them into well behaved members of the family.

Amick is the owner and operator of the new business Northern Sky Obedience Academy in Charlevoix and has the skills to train canines in a variety of ways, including obedience, tracking, retrieval, behavior modification, puppy protection and scent detection.

Amick said, "Many animals are put down each year because of behavior issues that often can be corrected. There is no other academy in the area except for Traverse City."

At Northern Sky, your pet will be trained by a certified trainer. Amick was a student at the Ohio National K-9 Center for two months before she received a training certificate. The training taught her knowledge of dogs, training techniques and motivational skills to use with the animals.

With the animals, Amick said she uses a balanced approach that includes praise, motivation and correction.

A basic training class will take about five days with Amick. She also can work with a client over a period of four to six weeks for one hour a week. This will result in "off the leash control" in about six weeks.

"You can go on vacation and come back to a trained dog," she said.

Amick pointed out in Michigan a dog trainer does not have to be certified, however, she still took the time to take the classes and get the certificate. In addition to her schooling, Amick is a member of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, she is the owner of the Charlevoix Subway, member of the ASPCA and Pet Trainers Association and member of the National K-9 Trainers Association.

Amick has been a Charlevoix resident for 10 years. She is married and has two sons.

Northern Sky Obedience Academy is located at 6462 Old US-31 South, next to Brumm's Art Studio. Hours are by appointment and there is a 10:30 a.m., puppy preschool on Saturdays.

Roloff to face Gillespie again for commission seat

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Longtime rivals for the Charlevoix County Commission District 6 seat, Shirley Roloff and Richard Gillespie are facing off once again.

The District 6 seat includes Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township, Marion Township, Norwood Township and Beaver Island.

Shirley Roloff

Incumbent Roloff, 67, Republican of Charlevoix, has been in the seat since 1996 when she was elected over Gillespie.

Gillespie, 49, Republican of Beaver Island, was in the seat from 1992 to 1996.

Roloff said she has many issues she would still like to get done as a county commissioner.

Richard Gillespie

First she said she believes the county should have a manager to oversee all departments and day-to-day operations. She added recycling is very important to her and she wants to expand the county recycling program to include composting and collecting office papers.

Roloff is also working on improving house numbers and streets signs for emergency crews.

As for housing, Roloff said she is looking at ways to bring more affordable housing to both Charlevoix and Beaver Island and in the past has taken groups of people in the housing industry and government to Beaver Island to look at their housing situation.

Also for Beaver Island, she said she wants to get a road grader for the island and create a new county substation out of the former Beaver Island Health Center.

Gillespie said his big issue is to provide fair and equal representations to all the residents of District 6, something he believes has been lacking in the past. Not only does this mean making sure Beaver Island has a voice in the county, but other outlying areas such as Norwood Township.

Gillespie said he would also like to bring oversight back to the county departments, he points to the issues in the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office as an example. In this issue, Prosecutor Mary Beth Kur fired her former Chief Assistant Deputy John Jarema, who then sued her. Following Jarema's suit, two other employees in Kur's office sued her and the county. Gillespie is saddened by this situation. He said when he was on the commission, he made it a habit to ask each of the county department heads how things were going in their offices. He believes just keeping tabs, such as this, could have prevented some of this.

By doing so, Gillespie said it will help eliminate unnecessary taxpayer waste in the form of lawsuits.

"This was something the commission let get out of hand," he said.

Gillespie added he wants to help the traffic situation in Charlevoix. One way to do this is to promote off-site loading of the Beaver Island Ferry — people dropping their cars off at a location outside of town and taking a bus to the ferry.

Gillespie also wants to look into the affordable housing issue in Charlevoix and Beaver Island.

"Somehow we have to work toward providing affordable housing, so the children can remain in this community," he said. "It is about representation and I feel that I am the best qualified to do the people's business."

The primary election is Aug. 3.

Sheriff department responds to boating call

Sheriff George T. Lasater reported a boating accident on Lake Michigan around 10:30 p.m. on July 23.

The U.S. Coast Guard dispatched a "vessel in distress" call, which the U.S. Coast Guard rescue vessel and their helicopter responded to. They also requested assistance from the Charlevoix County Marine units.

Around 10:53 p.m. the U.S. Coast Guard helicopter located the vessel between North Point and Big Rock Point. Around 11:06 p.m. both the U.S. Coast Guard rescue vessel and a Charlevoix County Marine unit arrived near the scene, but were unable to make contact due to rocky conditions and four-foot seas.

The vessel in distress was located in three feet of water, approximately 150 feet from the shoreline.

Charlevoix County marine Officers Sgt. David Beyer and Don Richards then made contact with the people on board from the shoreline, four adults and three children. They where were then assisted to shore.

There were no injuries reported.

Several units called out in overturned canoe rescue

The Cbarlevoix County Sheriffs Office is investigating a boating accident around 5 p.m. off Norwood Beach, July 19.

Four young teenage boys were canoeing off Norwood Beach when a wake from another boat swamped their canoe approximately three-quarters of a mile off shore.

Two of the boys were able to swim to shore while the other two stayed with the canoe. There were no life vests on board when the incident occurred.

Sheriff's Deputy obtained a canoe and took life vests out to the two still in the water and escorted them back to shore. No one was injured and the vessel was undamaged.

The Charlevoix City Fire/Dive team, Charlevoix EMS, East Jordan Dive Team and the U.S. Coast Guard helicopter out of Traverse City and rescue boat out of Charlevoix station, were also called to the scene to render assistance.

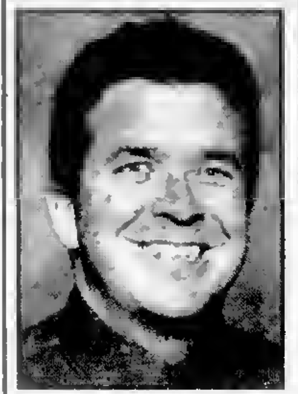
Jason to take on incumbent Brannon for clerk

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Longtime Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon has some competition this year for the republican nomination from newcomer Nate Jason.

Jane Brannon



Nate Jason

Brannon, 52, will face Jason, 34, in the Aug. 3 primary election for the republican nomination to the clerk's seat. Since there are no other contenders for the seat, this primary election will decide who will be the county's clerk.

Brannon has been the clerk of Charlevoix County since March 1980. She is a resident of Hayes Township, where sbe has lived since 1972. Before becoming the clerk, Brannon was the county's chief deputy clerk for two years.

In the time since she began her tenure as the clerk, Brannon has had many accomplishments. One of them was the computerization of the entire office and streamlining the way things are done in her office.

This is very important because the office has a wide variety of very important records for the county — everything from birth and death records to county history and finances.

"I have 125 years worth of history stored in this office," she said.

And Brannon has changes in plan for the future. She said she now has all of the vital records in the office on computer, thus making searching for those records easier for her staff.

Plus, she said around the first of the year, she will be installing public terminals in the clerk's office lobby so visitors can look up those vital records themselves.

Brannon is also working on making changes to the office's telephone system — something the public has complained about in the past. She said the new system will still be automatic, but it will be faster to connect to the person you are seeking than in the past.

As for the office's current customer skills, Brannon said everyone that comes to the clerk's office is served in a timely manner and this will continue. For example, when someone makes a request for a document through the Freedom of Information Act, Brannon said her staff responds to it as quick as possible.

However, she said sometimes searching for the document takes some time.

"What people don't understand is you can't just push a button. I believe you answer every request as timely as possible," she said.

Brannon added, "I believe you treat everyone the same and you follow the law. There are no gray areas," she said.

Brannon said the keys to being a good clerk are knowledge and experience.

ELECTION 2004

Jason is a resident of Eveline Township. He is currently in food sales with U.S. Food Services as a territory sales manager.

Jason said while he has no previous clerk's experience, he feels his experience keeping records and being a businessman are in his favor.

"My job is very detail oriented now," be said.

Jason said he is running for the clerk's position because he thinks he can serve the public, improve communication in the clerk's office and bring a "customer focus" to the clerk's office.

One way of serving the public and improving communications in the clerk's office, Jason said, is to get rid of the automated answering service for the telephones.

"I think telephones should be answered by human beings, not computers," he said.

He added he believes people coming to the clerk's office need to be served promptly.

"It's all about service," he said. "I think there is room for improvement."

Jason said he has visited the clerk's office in the past as a customer and was not happy with the service he was provided with.

"I think voters should vote for me because I can bring a friendly, energetic and responsible focus and I am open to new ideas," Jason said.

Sewer line hookup OK

Set to open July 30, AmericInn Motel and Suites will be connecting to Charlevoix's sewer main until a gravity line can be constructed. Mayor Gabe Campbell said the council voted unanimously to approve the hookup, which will not cost the city anything. Campbell said the council made sure the connection fell under the new sewer agreement and that everything would run well and not affect local residents. Currently, only part of the gravity sewer line is installed. AmericInn Motel and Suites is located on US-31 near Bethany Lutheran Church and across from the Charlevoix Country Club.

E-mail scam found in area

Sheriff George Thomas Lasater said there is a new scam circulating in Charlevoix County.

Two citizens have advised the sheriff's office that they have received an e-mail from an attorney in Africa or representative that due to a death of a relative they have inherited several million dollars. The scam is so sophisticated that they receive copies of a death certificate and multiple official looking documents. The sheriff's office has contacted the FBI and at their request they are forwarding all documents to this agency. If residents receive this type of e-mail, please contact your local or state police agency or contact Sheriff George Thomas Lasater at 547-4461.

Eveline Township voters to pick supervisor

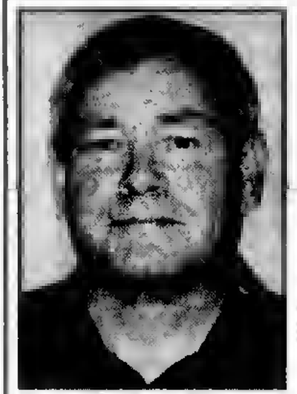
By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

ELECTION 2004

The supervisor of Eveline Township is one seat up for grabs at the August primary.

Eveline Township Supervisor Dan Skrzeczkoski of Charlevoix will fight to keep his seat against John E. Vrondran of Boyne City.

Don Skrzeczkoski



John E. Vrondran

Skrzeczkoski, 51, has been the supervisor for the past four years and has been on the board for 16 years. Before becoming supervisor, Skrzeczkoski said he was a trustee for about 12 years.

He moved to Charlevoix in 1975 and has lived in Eveline Township for between 20 and 22 years.

His involvement during this time includes the Zoning Board of Appeals for approximately 14 years and acting as the chair of the Charlevoix Chapter of the Michigan Township Association for about four or five years.

Skrzeczkoski said he is running because he wants to help the people in Eveline Township by servicing the public.

His platform includes some issues he ran on four years ago, with the number one issue being roads. Skrzeczkoski said since roads are important to any township, it's vital to keep up the Active Road Improvement Plan already in place.

"One high priority if I'm re-elected is to keep that activity going," he said.

Skrzeczkoski said during his term as supervisor, approximately 10 miles of roads were resurfaced and another several miles were seal coated and graveled.

Aside from improving the roads, Skrzeczkoski said he wants to increase the communication between officials and Eveline residents.

Skrzeczkoski said during his four years as supervisor he increased the amount of newsletters mailed to residents and helped develop a web site for the township. He said he also worked with newspapers, primarily the Charlevoix Courier and the Petoskey News-Review to help Eveline Township get better coverage. He said he wants to keep these going if re-elected.

When he can, Skrzeczkoski said he likes to talk to local residents and to the different associations in the area.

"Whenever I have time or I see someone I stop by," he said.

Skrzeczkoski said he also initiated a major rewrite of the Master Plan and Zoning Ordinance for the township. He said the planning commission is completing the rewrite with the help of a professional planner, which is scheduled to be completed within a year.

Skrzeczkoski said those issues are still important to him, but so are a few new ideas he has in mind. If he is re-elected, Skrzeczkoski said he wants to look into developing two substations for the fire department and more recreational areas for Eveline Township.

Skrzeczkoski said he wants to try and raise the funds for these two developments without increasing the property tax of local residents.

"Residents pay enough property tax, they don't need to pay more," he said.

Skrzeczkoski's campaign may have to be convincing because Vrondran wants a chance at the seat.

Vrondran, 57, has lived in Charlevoix County all his life and Eveline Township for about 31 years. He doesn't have political experience, but assisted his father, who was a supervisor for many years in Wilson Township during the 1960s and 1970s.

Vrondran said he used to work and travel with his father, which gave him some insight into the responsibilities of a supervisor.

"It kind of gave me the initiative to run," he said.

Vrondran said he always wanted a political job and now that he is retiring he'll have more time to do so.

"I'm going to be for all the people," Vrondran said, which is his main focus.

Vrondran said he always wanted to be involved in such an intimate manner.

"There's a lot going on in the township and I just want to be part of it," he said.

One issue important to Vrondran is getting the public involved. He said as supervisor, he wants to see more public interaction with the issues facing the township.

Questions over hiring policy for school sports

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The new Charlevoix High School girls' basketball coaches have been chosen, but not everyone is happy with the procedure used to determine who received the positions.

Liz Grunch, previous varsity coach for volleyball and softball and physical education teacher, was chosen as the junior varsity basketball coach over former coach Lisa Carlson.

"I was told they'd rather have a teacher in that position," Carlson said.

Carlson said she doesn't have a problem with Grunch being chosen over her, but she does have issues concerning how Grunch got the job.

One of the reasons Carlson was given for losing her job was because she didn't have a teaching certificate.

She said she was also told teachers are more accessible during the day should something need to be discussed. Carlson understands the logic behind such a claim, but doesn't understand how a sport could take precedent over a classroom discussion.

"They're (teachers) supposed to be teaching during the day and not talking to the sport's director outside in the hall," she said.

If teaching certificates are what they're looking for, Carlson said she is currently attending Spring Harbor College in order to get hers.

"As taxpayers, we have just as much of a right to that job," she said. "We pay for their (teacher's) jobs."

Kanine said he doesn't favor teachers when looking at qualified candidates, but the experience in working with children does alert his attention because they are trained to work with a large group of children.

"As far as favoring teachers, absolutely not," he said. "We choose teachers because they have the training."

Carlson has been the junior varsity coach for eight years and has a wining record of 19 and 1 last year and 17 and 3 the year before.

"She has the best compiled record over the last three years," Norm "Boogie" Carlson, Carlson's husband said .

He is also concerned and upset over the whole situation.

"She's been involved in the program through three different head coaches," he said. "This is the first time they told her they got rid of everyone."

Norm Carlson said he went to all the school board meetings and questioned procedures as they were discussed. One such procedure was a head coach firing all those previously holding the said positions and hiring an entirely new staff.

Norm Carlson said Keith Haske, current Charlevoix Middle School principal and varsity boys basketball head coach, was chosen as the girls varsity basketball coach.

Norm Carlson said Kanine knew about this back in December, which would have given his wife more time to find a new job.

Lisa Carlson said that Kanine knew all along that he wanted Haske for the position even though others were allowed to apply.

"I was expecting Haske would get the job, but I didn't expect to lose my job," Carlson said.

The determination of a coach is supposed to be based upon yearly evaluations done by the head coach, and Carlson said she has not received an evaluation since 1999.

Norm Carlson said Kanine told Lisa he has two evaluations of her from Jim Parrish, previous varsity girls basketball head coach. Carlson said the evaluations were more of a critique and were turned in late so they aren't any good.

Kanine said he provided Lisa Carlson with copies of the two evaluations, but doesn't know if Parrish sat down with her to go over her evaluation.

Lisa said Kanine has a problem with her and yet never mentioned anything she should work on to her face.

"In the time I coached, never did he call me in there to talk about any problems he had with me," she said.

Both Carlsons and Parrish said they think Kanine is grooming Grunch to be the varsity girls basketball head coach, which is why he placed her in the junior varsity spot.

Lisa Carlson said Kanine won't deny to her that Grunch is to be the next varsity coach.

"If he didn't get Keith (Haske) in then no way of getting Liz (Grunch)," she said.

Carlson said the other varsity coach candidates would have probably kept her on if they had been chosen for the position.

Parrish said it's neat that Haske received the position and he hopes he receives the support he didn't receive during his time as varsity head coach.

Kanine said he doesn't have a plan to try and get Grunch in as varsity coach.

"I don't have any idea if Liz Grunch will or won't be the varsity head coach," he said. "I don't know if she'd apply or if she'd get it."

Kanine said he chose Haske because the previous coaches were not getting the team where he thought they should be.

"I wouldn't have hired anybody that wouldn't move that team forward," he said.

Kanine said he only wrote up Haske's recommendation for junior varsity coach, but didn't actually pick the person himself. He did say that Grunch's time as head coach for volleyball and softball gives her more experience in running a program than Carlson.

Despite any personal feelings, Carlson said she feels bad for the inconsistency the girls are having to put up with.

"The people who really suffer from all this are the girls," she said.

Grunch denied comment.

Hospice auction July 30

The 2004 Hospice of Northwest Michigan Auction will be on Friday, July 30 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. Through the generosity of Linda and Richard Mueller, who are donating the facility for the evening, and several local restaurants and caterers who are donating hors d'oeuvres, funds will be raised to help offset volunteer and bereavement services provided to Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

A new approach will be used in this year's auction. Donations will be grouped in package form, combining similar themes to showcase unique items from persons and businesses supporting Hospice of Northwest Michigan.

An example of this format is a condo at Big Sky, donated by Dick and Janine Schaible, with $500 towards airline tickets from Connie Saltonstall. Another major packages includes a scale model dragster donated and autographed by Kid Rock combined with a car detailing certificate from Great Lakes Motor Works. A party package includes a birthday party with clowns (Wowie the Clown with Wiggles and Wyatt the Magic Wonder) a chopper tricycle, a fabric clown and two large pizzas. A single item example features an Ashley Pie Saver and a wild game dinner party.

Festivities will begin at 5:30 p.m. with the silent auction.

Scott MacKenzie and Rip Hayes are the auctioneers beginning about 7:30 p.m. Margaret Thomson, a local pianists, will provide music before the live auction begins.

Ticket prices will be $30, $60 and $90 per seat. All prices include a complimentary beverage, a chance to win the $300 and $200 door prizes and hors d'oeuvres.

Tickets are available at Boyne Country Books in Boyne City, Busy Bridge Antiques in East Jordan, The Clothing Company in Charlevoix, Orchard Hills LTD in Bellaire and at the door. The Hospice office should be contacted regarding any questions (231) 536-2842.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan is working in partnership with Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency to provide a comprehensive hospice program for those facing a life limiting illness.

Crooked Tree to host McPartland jazz concert

Grammy Award winner, jazz great, Marian McPartland, will be in concert.

The Crooked Tree Arts Center and Bay View Association present the Marian McPartland Trio in concert, at 8 p.m., Friday, Aug. 20. The concert will be at Bay View Association in John Hall Auditorium.

This is the first performance in the Virginia McCune Performing Arts Series for 2004/2005.

Born Margaret Marian Turner in Windsor, England, the host of Piano Jazz began to teach herself Chopin waltzes on the piano by ear when she was only 3 years old.

McPartland later pursued classical training at London's Guildhall School of Music before joining a four-piano vaudeville act that traveled throughout Europe during World War II entertaining the Allied troops.

While on tour in Belgium, she met and began to play with her future husband, Chicago cornetist Jimmy McPartland. In the U.S. after the war, McPartland performed for a brief time with her husband's Dixieland band.

But McPartland heard the call of bebop and began to head in other musical directions. She formed her own trio and landed a two-week gig at the renowned Hickory House in New York City.

With her ability to gently shepherd a poignant ballad, to swing with real power, and to stay ahead of new developments in jazz, McPartland turned those two weeks into a ten-year residency. It became a gathering place for jazz colleagues like Oscar Peterson, Benny Goodman, and Duke Ellington.

After recording for several existing labels — including over 50 albums with Concord — McPartland founded her own imprint, Halcyon Records. Artists who have recorded on Halcyon include pianists Earl Hines, Teddy Wilson and Dave McKenna. McPartland's composing has not escaped notice either, and her material has been recorded by Tony Bennett and Peggy Lee, among others.

In addition to hosting Piano Jazz, Turner maintains a busy schedule, recording, touring, lecturing and teaching year-round. She is deeply committed to music education in the country's public schools and was inducted in the International Association of Jazz Education Hall of Fame in 1986.

She has received honorary degrees from Hamilton, Union and Bates Colleges, Bowling Green University and the University of South Carolina.

Her books include "The Artistry of Marian McPartland," a collection of transcriptions released by Columbia Pictures Publications and "All in Good Time," jazz profiles published by the Oxford University Press. In 1983, Marian McPartland's Piano Jazz received a George Foster Peabody Award for excellence in broadcasting.

The concert is part of Petoskey's Festival on the Bay Celebration and is sponsored in part by CMU Public Radio. Tickets are $100 Sponsor, reserved seating, includes an Afterglow with Marian McPartland Trio; $50 Patron, reserved seating; general admission: Adults $20 for Crooked Tree Arts or Bay View members /$25 non member, children $8 member/$10 non-member.

For more information, please call the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 347-4337 or visit www.crookedtree.org. Bay View box office will sell tickets through Aug. 6, call (231) 348-9551 to purchase at Bay View Association.

The FACTS are that Charlevoix County has the most criminal assistant prosecutors; the second highest paid prosecutor who has personally tried 2 trials since December 2000 (none in 2004 as of yet). It is time for a prosecutor who will try all cases, not just the high profile cases. I have personally tried over 100 trials while in the prosecutor's office and I will continue to try cases as your prosecutor. I will be a prosecutor for all the citizens of Charlevoix County.

Harbor Industries granted tax abatement

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Harbor Industries was recently granted tax abatement on a newly installed saw, valued at around $500,000.

The abatement falls under a five-year block set aside for construction renovation in which the company can file new property.

Harbor CEO Tim Parker said, "It's obviously the continued support of the city which helps us maintain our competitiveness. These tax abatements help us invest in new technology."

The tax abatement allowed the company more money to use toward renovation, and encouraged Harbor Industries to build a new building, he said.

Even though mayor Gabe Campbell said that he's not that thrilled about tax abatement, he said that the new building not only improves the looks of Charlevoix, but has also provided opportunities for employment.

"It sure is beautiful compared to what we had," said Campbell.

The site renovation by Harbor Industries received tax abatement under Public Act 198 of 1974, which was provided to allow companies more money through tax abatement to make renovation possible.

Before receiving the abatement, Harbor Industries had to file with the city of Charlevoix on a point system basis. Points are awarded for different criteria such as the number of new employees and the installation of money-saving properties.

The maximum number of tax abatement years granted is 12, with 110 points. Harbor Industries, upon the time of filing, had 200 points.

Because of the gap in the points, Harbor Industries reached a deal with the city of Charlevoix for tax abatement on any new property added within the first 5 years.

Businesses are taxed on both lot and personal property. The abatement that allowed for reconstruction drastically cuts the amount of tax paid on personal property.

"It's a substantial tax reduction, but they still pay a significant amount of taxes," said Carol Ochs, city clerk.

According to the city, Harbor Industries pays the second highest amount in taxes.

The taxable amount for businesses is calculated on Dec. 31 of the year before. This amount is subject to changes due to millage and formulas used to calculate taxes on new property, rehabilitation property, and personal property.

The five-year umbrella for new properties will end in the year 2005, concluding the tax abatement process this year. Although all properties added under this tax abatement deal will have 12 years of exemption, no new properties can be added after this year.

Planned Parenthood offers college kits

The first year of college is an exciting time for young men and women. But for too many freshmen, it will also be the first time they are in situations where they feel they are not in control.

Alcohol abuse, drug use, and date rape are, unfortunately, too common at many colleges and universities.

Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan (PPNM) is offering "Off To School – Play It Safe" packets for college-bound young adults to help prepare new students for some of the situations they may face.

Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan's Education Coordinator Kathy Snooks helps develop the packets, while a volunteer puts them together.

"Our hope is that college-bound young men and women will share this information with their parents and use it as a starting point for conversations about what they may face as first year students," said Snooks. "Even if students who pick up the packets are not faced with every situation covered, they will be knowledgeable about what's out there, and prepared to take care of themselves."

The "Play It Safe" packets contain a variety of written materials covering topics such as watch out for date rape drugs, abstinence and self-esteem, drinking and college life and contraceptive choices.

The packets are free to any interested college-bound students and are available at Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan at 1219 N. Third Street in Petoskey.

For more information, please contact Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan at 225-5070.

AUGUST 3, 2004 JAREMA FOR PROSECUTOR

Dear Fellow Residents:

This election is about trial skills and the ability to be the Chief Law Enforcement Official for Charlevoix County. It is about integrity, honesty and ethics. It is about seeking justice for each individual case. It is about compassion for victims of crimes, whether the crime committed against the victim is a misdemeanor or felony.

It is not about whom is more popular as a person but who has a willingness to try a case and seek justice effectively. Who knows that better than law enforcement. My endorsement by the various unions and associations, representing 38 officers, should answer the question loud and clear. When looking at any endorsements, ask yourself, "Has that person ever personally witnessed the candidate perform in the prosecutor's office, in the courtroom or in a trial?" Be cautious of endorsements from "friends" or people who have like minded jobs. Have they had personal experience with the person they are endorsing? Members of law enforcement work with the prosecutor's office daily.

I have prosecuted felonies and misdemeanors, many multiple day trials, vigorously. I am qualified to be your prosecutor. As your prosecutor, I will not sit back and wait for the "high profile" case. I will do what anyone should, my fair share. I will continue to have the support of law enforcement and will continue to be an in-court prosecutor. It is time for a change, a change for the better. On August 3, 2004, vote for John Jarema for prosecutor.

and producer/retailer would benefit.

Taxes are only part of the problem; massive government regulation drives the cost of production even higher and shuts the door to new competition that would force prices lower. A giant misconception exists that the position of large business and the consumer are always opposed. This is simply not true. Higher taxes and the cost of production are always passed on to the consumer; a reduction in both simply helps both parties.

Deregulation and competition drive prices lower, not further government investigations and action.

Simply because Mr. Ryan pumped gas for a local petroleum company does not mean that he is now somehow a slave to a "special interest." If I worked for McDonald's before I went into public service, would this mean that I was now a slave to the giant corporation of McDonald's? Businesses support Mr. Ryan because both the consumer and producer would benefit from the policies that Mr. Ryan supports. A vote for Craig Ryan this coming election is a vote for integrity, honesty, experience and good policy that benefits both businesses and the consumer.

Editor:

I've lived in Norwood Township for over 32 years and I've listened to a lot of bashing about our political officials during this time. I feel it's time they get something nice said, so I'd like to say that Wayne Boss took the bull by the horns (as they say) a couple of years ago on an issue in Norwood Township that had been going on for all of the 32 years that I've lived there and more so I've been told.

That issue was getting Richardson Road paved. One of the biggest issues was the road is a county line road and who will pay, to make a long story short Wayne worked with the County and came up with a plan to tar and chip the road. When the people who live on Richardson Road heard about this we ask to have the road asphalted instead. Wayne worked with the county and coordinated a plan that if the residents of Richardson Road would come up with a cash difference the asphalt could be done and it was.

Wayne also worked closely on the preliminary work and the spring areas under the roadbed tiled and drained so they would not cause problems down the road.

In summary this is only one thing but I feel it was a very important and difficult one and Wayne handled it very professionally.

Please be professional and vote Wayne Boss Aug. 3.

Kur best for county

Editor:

I must preface this letter with the fact that I am related to an employee of the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office, my wife is an assistant prosecutor and has worked for Mary Beth Kur for approximately 3-and-a-half years. Regardless, I do think it is only fair that I voice my opinion in regard to a letter to the editor written by Kelli Ward, the daughter of Sandy Ward, former Charlevoix County employee who quit and has filed a frivolous lawsuit against Charlevoix County, wasting valuable County resources and tax dollars.

I have been witness to the state of the prosecutor's office both pre-and post John Jarema firing. Since Mr. Jarema's firing, the office is once again an efficient and harmonious machine. My wife and her fellow assistants have done the best they can to continue working hard for the people of Charlevoix County, despite the best efforts of Mr. Jarema to falsely malign the office and their efforts.

Take the time to speak to a member of Mary Beth Kur's staff, they are without question dedicated to serving the people of Charlevoix County. They are not interested in frivolous lawsuits, simply results.

I urge you to vote for Mary Beth Kur on Aug. 3. She is an excellent lawyer and an even better person.

Kur a good prosecutor

Editor:

Our family would like to publicly thank Mary Beth Kur for her assistance in helping us resolve our family's 3-and-a-half year nightmare that began when we purchased a new construction house, that was later found to have over 100 building code violations. With the help and support of Mary Beth Kur, and her assistant Carrie Zahner, the Charlevoix County Building Department was successful in finding the builder in contempt of court for failure to repair the numerous defects and building code infractions in our home.

Because of our resolve to have our legal rights enforced and our investment in our home protected, we dealt closely with the prosecutor's office beginning in 2000 until the fall of 2003, when we finally moved to another house. At this point in time there was discord in the prosecutor's office, and through this ordeal it was Mary Beth Kur who we determined to be ethical, professional and of high standards.

We believe that the people of Charlevoix County deserve a prosecutor who will work for the citizens of Charlevoix. Ms. Kur was the one who was there to protect us when we were in crisis. We found out the hard way.

We throw our battered hat to Ms. Kur.

Vote Kur

Editor:

The people of Charlevoix County are fortunate to be served by Prosecuting Attorney Mary Beth Kur.

Ms. Kur is respected by her fellow prosecutors around the state. One measure of that respect is her election by her peers to the board of directors of the Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan. Her wise counsel and expertise are valued across the state. She is the only prosecutor appointed by the Governor to serve on Michigan's Domestic Violence and Treatment Board. Mary Beth has earned her reputation as a fair, hard working and dedicated prosecutor.

As prosecutor, Mary Beth Kur makes difficult decisions that affect the lives of individuals and the community as a whole. Her experience, sound judgment and profound sense of justice continue to serve Charlevoix County well. She should be re-elected on Aug. 3.

Vote Glass

Editor:

I am writing to make public my endorsement of Dale Glass as candidate for supervisor of Charlevoix Township. I have worked closely with Mr. Glass for over 30 years as member of the township board and am certain he is the right man for the job. He has always been very hard working and concerned with the affairs of township business. Upon my retirement from supervisor of Charlevoix Township he willingly took over my duties and has done an excellent job. I believe that his knowledge and many years of experience in township government will be an important asset to the township.

I therefore urge the voters of Charlevoix Township to re-elect Dale Glass as Township Supervisor.

Vote Jarema

Editor:

In response to the letter, "Kur works for Charlevoix," give me a break! Felony cases were listed that span the entire ten year career of this prosecutor in Charlevoix County. In case you didn't know Mr. Boss, in some of those cases the jury came back with a lesser conviction than charged; maybe a win but not a victory.

Some questionable legal advice has come down from Kur to the county and has resulted in the prosecutor and county being sued. Kur cost the county money when she tried to fight Sandy Ward's unemployment. The Administrative Law Judge ruled that Ward had a disability due to stress of the workplace and the county had liability for not placing her in other jobs within the county. As a result of this, the pending suits have a claim of disability under the State Disabilities Act. Kur's legal advice to the county that the employees were not in a "protected class" and that the county policy didn't apply was dead wrong. This will cost the county again.

As for Kur "assisting in three frivolous and ridiculous lawsuits brought about by John Jarema and friends"; the county is paying for legal counsel so why is Kur so consumed — is she afraid of something?

As for the lawsuits, the Jarema Whistleblower Lawsuit ended with a judgment against Kur and Charlevoix County.

It is absolutely ridiculous to say the other two pending lawsuits are frivolous. The cases were reinstated immediately when the element of constructive discharge was met with letters from Rozema and Ward of "retirement/resignation and instead of intolerable, intimidating and retaliatory conduct suffered from after truthful testimony in the Jarema Whistleblower lawsuit." Also added was a count of the State Disabilities Act claiming disability as a result of workplace stress.

There is no attorney or employee here trying to get rich as Bo Boss suggests, just citizens wanting the prosecutor and county held accountable for allowing as the Personnel Committee stated an intolerable work environment.

I want to make just a short comment on Mr. Kilgour's letter too. Kur's new, young staff replaces a support staff with a combined service of over 53 years with Charlevoix County. One of the replacements is a sister to an assistant prosecutor in the office, something the county policy frowns on, but then elected officials can do anything they want in their office. The other new employee is the granddaughter to one of Kur's campaign contributors.

All I can say is the former employees in the Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office should just consider it a blessing to be out of there.

Bernie Ward, III
Charlevoix

(Editor's note: The Jarema Whistleblower Lawsuit ended in a form of settlement called "judgment." It is not an admission of guilt. This was done by the county and Kur's insurance provider.)

Support Jarema

Editor:

I have been reading with interest and disbelief recent letters sent in by various supporters of the present prosecutor, Mary Beth Kur. Back in 1993, I was employed in the Prosecutor's Office under Department Head/Prosecutor Richard W. May, now Judge May of 90th District Court. During my tenure as Victim Assistance Coordinator (1993-2004) I was bestowed the honor of Outstanding Victim Advocate in 1998 by Governor Engler and Senator VanRegenmorter. It was my job to guide victims through the maze of the criminal justice system and inform them of their rights under the Crime Victim Rights Act. I found it extremely important to give compassion and understanding to everyone, as each case us unique and important to them. Unfortunately, when Judge May left the prosecutor's office so did the leadership I admired. In my opinion it was replaced with an extemporaneous attitude, I missed decisive, clear cut policies, leadership and integrity. I believe expert management skills are a necessary component to maintain an office responsible to the citizens of Charlevoix County.

Unfortunately, in my opinion the Victim Assistance Program also suffered. Over the years, as the Victim Advocate, I encouraged consistent policy, restitution protocol and case management, but these requests were not implemented as I had hoped they would be. Without a doubt if there had been better communication between attorneys and non-attorney support staff, many victims would have been better served and no victim would have ever fell through the cracks.

However, it was indeed a pleasure to work with John Jarema, Chief Assistant Prosecutor of Charlevoix County, for seven years. Mr. Jarema was a man of honesty, integrity and I was always proud to be in court with him. Mr. Jarema dressed and acted like the professional he is. Mr. Jarema was the attorney I went to as Victim Assistance Coordinator to see that the job got done right. John Jarema treated everyone fairly and with respect. He could take the worse situation and make everyone feel whole. Mr. Jarema was a man of values and found worth and importance in his work. High morals were of the utmost importance to him. Take the time to ask any attorney that you may know in the northern Michigan area of the work quality and expertise John Jarema brings to the table.

This is a significant primary election coming up in August. Up until now, the people of Charlevoix County have not had an opportunity to pick their prosecutor. Let me assure all the citizens of Charlevoix County if you choose John Jarema as your prosecutor, you will be proud of the choice you made. Give John Jarema the chance to prove his work ethics and to show you that family values count in a politician. Indeed, I too believe this election should be based on experience and performance. Jarema has a proven track record as an excellent and prepared trial attorney. Jarema has the experience in all phases of the legal system: Criminal law, civil law, environmental law and has an outstanding performance record. Now is the time to make your choice, make it the right one. Vote Jarema.

MaryLee, MaryLee how does your garden grow?

By B. JON GOHS
Special to the Courier

Each year the Charlevoix Garden Club invites a new group of gardeners to showcase their flora in their annual garden walk earlier this month, including MaryLee Campbell.

According to Campbell, one of this year's participants, July is a good month for a walk in the garden.

"One of the nice things about hot weather is that you get immediate feedback from the plants because they grow so fast," she said.

But, it can also be a busy time for gardeners, because according to Campbell, plants love the heat and since perennials have a tendency to want to take over the rest of the garden by spreading and reseeding, they must be trimmed back on occasion.

Although Campbell is new to the garden tour, she is no stranger to the world of horticulture.

"When I was a kid my grandmother had a big garden and I used to help her in it," she said. "She used to put her peas in on Good Friday so they could rise with the Lord."

It seems Campbell's grandmother wasn't the only one to influence her bourgeoning hobby.

"I had a big redwood box my dad built for me. It had a cactus at one end, that was the desert and it had different plants at the other end, with horses and stuff," she said. "Like a kid would play with a dollhouse I had my little animals in my little garden."

But there is nothing childish about the intricate placement of annuals, perennials and trees in Campbell's garden. And it is her fondness of vibrancy which directly influences her planting decisions.

"Because I like bright colors I've always tended to put annuals in. But due to spatial restrictions, I'm trying to put more and more perennials in," she said. "My favorite colors are oranges and reds and yellows, but I have a little bit of everything."

Indeed there are over a hundred varieties of plants and trees in her yard and although she hasn't expanded her garden since it was redesigned two years ago, Campbell did plant some flowers under her European weeping beech tree this year for the first time. A tree, which according to Campbell, was at one time a runt in her husband's nursery.

"He thought he couldn't sell it so he brought it home and planted it," she said.

Now some 30 years later the weeping beech is over two stories tall.

Among Campbell's other agricultural specimens are a weeping cherry tree, zinnias, mums, chard, beebalm, and delphinium just to name a few. And her raised garden, which contains an "Italian section" consisting of peppers, basil and tomatoes, is replete with. a deer proof fence and brick flooring — which according to Campbell, aids in plant growth.

"Because the floor of the raised garden is made of brick," she said. "It is hotter than the rest of the yard."

Although Campbell does all of the weeding and bed work with the plants, it was her husband's landscaping company, Site Planning Development, who built the raised garden, rock walls and brick flooring.

According to Campbell, the best thing about gardening is its introspective qualities.

"Gardening is good for the soul — it's good think time," she said.

Another Venetian Festival ends

staging and safety aspects of the parade's new route. If weather conditions permit, Barron said the new route will be continued in the years to come.

Another new feature to Venetian was the Rayder Rumble, in which the Charlevoix High School 2001 state finalist team played against the 2004 state finalist team.

Barron said this first time event generated enough profits to be split between the Venetian Festival and the Charlevoix High School Athletic Department.

"We'll build on it in the future and stage it every year or so," Barron said.

Having the Venetian kickoff at the Castle turned out well considering it was a first time event. Barron said the Venetian Festival Board is looking into the potential of Castle Farms as a midweek venture.

"We hope we can work it out and continue our wonderful relationship with Linda and Richard Mueller for future years," Barron said.

Barron said Castle Farms also has the possibility of bringing in more nationally known performers.

This year's theme was sports legends, which will remain a part of Venetian but not necessarily the theme, Barron said.

The sports legends exhibit put on by the Charlevoix Historical Society focused on basketball this year and highlighted some local heroes.

"There's some general history and other areas of local history, but we're looking to keep Charlevoix sports as part of that historical display," he said.

Barron said next year's sports legend exhibit will focus on football because there are a number of coaches and players from Charlevoix who went on to play college football and a few who played or coached in the National Football League.

Barron said the Venetian Board will explore the idea of having all-star games with Charlevoix High School alumni facing off against one another or other alumni from local schools such as Petoskey High School.

Of all the new events that were tested out this year, Barron said those that have long-term prospects will be pursued in the years to come.

"We'll probably roll out new twists next year," he said.

One change that may occur is the cancellation of the Friday night fireworks.

"We need additional funding and revenue to continue with the Friday fireworks display," he said.

The Friday fireworks have been conducted for the past five years.

Barron said the Friday fireworks are the first to go if sufficient funds aren't there next year, but some mid-week activities will be looked at next.

Barron said the Castle Farms venue may help create needed funding by charging an admission fee to see nationally known performers and through food concessions that could directly benefit the festival.

"We'll explore and see where we'll stand financially," he said.

Barron said the number of people visiting northern Michigan this year was down due to weather and the economy, but specific festival events were up this year.

"Our festival numbers are strong and up, but the overall number of people in town may not be," he said.

The carnival set an all-time record, Barron said, and Kids' Day wrist bands sold out at 850 this year compared to 700 last year.

The large crowds attending the festival didn't cause too many problems for local law enforcement.

Like many Venetian Festivals, traffic on Bridge Street was congested in the downtown area last week. Thanks to jaywalkers, like this one above, traffic problems were only worsened.

Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the police were involved in about 129 events this year, not including parking tickets.

These events are not limited to unlocking cars, noise and parking issues and alcohol induced situations.

Halverson said the new remote control the police can use to change the light at the intersection of Bridge and Clinton streets was a little helpful after the initial rush of traffic had passed.

"Probably the first half hour after the fireworks was over, probably the only thing that would help is David Copperfield," Halverson said.

The device helped some, but Halverson said there's just not enough room to handle the flow of pedestrian and vehicular traffic.

Halverson said his officers handled the week well, but are happy to return back to their normal routine.

"I don't think we'd like to turn around and do it again next week," he said.

Not a Lawyer. Not a Politician.
A Strong Voice for Charlevoix County.

The Only Businessman in the Race for State Representative.

Send Someone with Business Sense to Lansing.

- Started an International company in his garage.
- Created nearly 1000 jobs.
- $1.3 Billion in sales.

Ramsey Plan to Create Jobs

- Eliminate unnecessary taxes and regulations such as Single Business Tax.
- Spur private angel and venture capital to invest in Northern Michigan.
- Invest in natural resources because we have a competitive advantage.

"Not only is John Ramsey the only businessperson in the race, but he is the most qualified candidate for state legislature that I have seen in my 30+ years in politics. Please join me in support of John Ramsey." –Cluck Yob, Michigan Republican

"I have gotten to know John Ramsey and am impressed with his ability to get things done as a businessman.. Rather than send another lawyer or politician to Lansing, lets send a strong voice with real life business experience. He will be a strong voice for Antrim County that we can be proud of. Please join me in support of John Ramsey for State Representative on August 3rd!" –Dale Roggenbeck, former Antrim County Sheriff

RAMSEY PLANS:
Job Creation for Northern Michigan

1. Job Containment
The state's responsibility is to insure that it is not inhibiting the business climate for existing businesses through onerous taxes, unnecessary regulations, or bureaucratic requirements. Michigan needs to have the objective of being known as the most "business friendly" state in the union.

2. New Business Initiatives
Businesses tend to stay where they start. Through private capital and government initiatives, Northern Michigan needs to be a fertile breeding ground for new business creation. This requires the availability of significant risk capital, a network to put ideas in front of available capital, an aggressive approach by government to encourage new business, and a climate that supports new business. Business deterring taxes such as the SBT must be eliminated.

3. Recreation Industries Investment and Protection
The objective is to maximize Northern Michigan's competitive advantages in attracting consumers for the summer, fall and winter recreation industries. Investment in infrastructure, national advertising, and protection of environment and natural resources are important to the Northern Michigan economy.

Protection of Rights

1. Right to Life
There is nothing more fundamental than the Right to Life. Fight to stop partial birth abortion and reduce unwanted pregnancies through abstinence education.

2. Right to Bear Arms
The second amendment, and all constitutional rights, are sacred and should not be infringed upon.

Health Care Plan

1. Low Cost Alternative
Allow prescriptions to be purchased at the lowest cost alternative–even if that means purchasing them in Canada.

2. Cooperation Among States
Encourage more cooperation among states to purchase prescription drugs in higher quantities at lower rates.

Voters make their picks

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor
And by COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The race for prosecuting attorney was a close one, but John Jarema ended up winning over incumbent Mary Beth Kur.

Jarema had 3,055 votes to Kur's 2,868.

Jarema said, "I can't wait until Jan. 1 to take office and be the Charlevoix prosecutor. It is truly an honor to be prosecutor and something that I have always wanted to be."

He said he realizes that the vote was very close, meaning the public is divided on him getting the office. Therefore he said healing is needed in the community and he is willing to sit down with any citizen so they can see what kind of person and attorney he is.

He added he needs to work with the local law enforcement agencies.

"I think there needs to be a healing process with some of the police departments because they have had a wedge driven through them. I will see that it happens," he said.

As for Kur, Jarema said he does not hold any ill will toward her.

"I wish Mary Beth and her family the best," he said.

Jarema added he does not have any plans to fire the current staff of the county prosecutor's office. All of the current employees of the office have stated their support of Kur.

NBA, WNBA trophies coming to Charlevoix

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Get ready to have a brush with fame when the 2004 NBA Champion Detroit Pistons and the 2003 WNBA Champion Detroit Shock championship trophies come to Charlevoix.

The trophies are traveling throughout Michigan as a part of the 2004 Championship Trophies Tour and will be available for photo opportunities for those who want to take a little piece of sports history home with them.

Patti Barraw, event coordinator for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, said the proceeds will be used to purchase a Computer Aided Detection System for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Imaging Department.

"It detects cancer at earlier stages than mammograms," she said.

Barraw said the money will also be used to expand the Boyne Rehabilitation Center and to help underwrite the hospital's community outreach programs.

This isn't the first time a famous trophy has come to Charlevoix. Barraw said the Charlevoix Area Foundation brought the Stanley Cup to town about two years ago.

Pictures with the NBA and WNBA trophies cost $25, with $15 being tax-deductible, and will be taken from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Aug. 10 at the Charlevoix Bandshell in East Park.

Marell Staffel, owner of Charlevoix Camera, will be taking the photographs. Barraw said people will be able to pick up their 8 inch by 10 inch pictures at Charlevoix Camera approximately an hour after they are taken.

The event is sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation's Hospital Employees Reaching Out (H.E.R.O.) Club.

For more information call the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation at 547-4024.

Other opportunities to see the trophies are on Aug. 12 at the Michigan State Fair, Aug. 16 at the Detroit Pistons Basketball Camps in Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, Aug. 21 at the Woodward Dream Cruise and Sept. 3 at the Chrysler Arts, Beats and Eats Festival. Correction

A story on page 3 of last week's edition of the Charlevoix Courier about a former resident passing away in Lake Charlevoix, should have said the incident took place off of Ferry Beach.

Also, in a story on Page 11 of the July 21 edition of the Charlevoix Courier about a resident writing an account of her life, it should have said she has six living brothers.

Friends luncheon to honor Edith Gilbert

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Longtime Charlevoix resident and etiquette legend, Edith Gilbert, will be honored at a luncheon given by the Friends of the Library at noon on Aug. 18 at Castle Farms.

Gilbert, who is renowned for her books on weddings, party's and etiquette, is also a longtime supporter of the Charlevoix Public Library. In the early 1960s, Gilbert started the first Friends of the Library in Charlevoix because she thought the city needed one.

"I was active in the Friends of the Library in Detroit and when I came up here there was no organization," she said. "It was a good thing to do."

Gilbert said the original Friends of the Library died off, but was resurrected over the past few years.

She has summered in Charlevoix since 1940 and has been a year round resident for about 42 years. Gilbert said she loves Charlevoix because of the people that live here.

"I call it an assisted living community because everybody is so helpful," she said. "All my friends and neighbors are wonderful."

Over the years, Gilbert has become a very active member of the community by giving her time as a board member of the Waterfront Art Fair and the Charlevoix Historical Society. She said she also volunteered at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Her involvement in local affairs goes beyond volunteering.

Gilbert said she is also responsible for the current railings on the drawbridge in downtown Charlevoix.

"The thing I'm most proud of is having the beautiful railings installed," she said.

Gilbert said she wanted the new railings so no one would be able to fall.

"It was a very dangerous situation," she said. "People could have fallen through the railings into the channel."

At the Crooked Tree Arts Center located in Petoskey, Gilbert said she has an art gallery named after her.

"At the fund-raising campaign for Crooked Tree Arts Center, my friends made a donation in my honor," she said.

Aside from donating her time to local issues, Gilbert is an author, columnist, wedding consultant and special events speaker. Her articles are published in The New York Times, the Chicago Tribune and by United Feature Syndicate. Gilbert also writes a column for the Charlevoix Courier.

As an author, Gilbert has penned several books that help guide young couples through the sometimes complicated process of planning a wedding and books that explain how to properly throw a fashionable party.

Gilbert's books include: "Summer Resort Life: Tangos, Teas & All," "Complete Wedding Planner," "Easy Entertaining," "Wedding Details FAQ's: 101 Answers to Your Top Wedding Planning Questions," "All About Parties," "Let's Set the Table with Edith Gilbert" and "Tabletop the Right Way: An Informational and Training Guide for the Professional in the Hospitality Industry."

At the luncheon some of her books will be available such as "Wedding Planner" and "Easy Entertaining" from the Bridge Street Book Shop. Copies of "Summer Restort Life: Tangos, Teas & All" will also be available.

Joyce Herbert, co-chairman of the luncheon and a member of Friends of the Library, said the cost is $50 for the luncheon and it will occur in the Knights Hall at Castle Farms.

Gilbert said the Gilbert family has always been friends with the Loeb family, previous owners of Castle Farms. She said going there will be neat because the facility has changed over the years.

"I'm thrilled to see what's happened there since it's been restored to its former glory," she said.

Kay Heise holds the designs for the new library with Edith Gilbert sitting below.

Herbert said the facility was donated by Castle Farms owners, Linda and Richard Mueller. She added the proceeds will go toward the capital campaign fund for the new library.

Alberta Beyers, co-chair of the luncheon and a member of Friends of the Library, said the menu will feature recipes from Gilbert's "Easy Entertaining" and will be catered by Gray Gables.

Beyers said the luncheon will start with a sweet and sour spinach salad accompanied by a schnecken, a type of pecan roll followed by a main course of shrimp and artichoke casserole. Dessert will be a trifle, which is a type of sponge or pound cake topped with fruit and mousse or cream.

During the luncheon a question and answer session called "Ask Edith" will occur.

A proposal that could save Venetian money

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

The end of July and the start of August means one thing in the newsroom of the Charlevoix Courier — Venetian Festival is over and we have a reprieve in our busy schedules until school starts.

This year's Venetian Festival was just as fantastic as the many Venetian Festivals in the past. This all-volunteer festival continues to be a shining star of the summer for Charlevoix and northern Michigan. The people who put this on deserve a salute.

However, the Venetian Festival organization is saying changes may be needed to keep the festival going in the future. They cite lack of funding as the reason for these possible changes. One of those changes is getting rid of the popular Friday night fireworks over Lake Charlevoix.

This, I believe is a mistake. The fireworks are one of the most popular events at Venetian — many times more important than many of the other activities that Venetian Festival hosts. Getting rid of it would be detrimental to the festival and cause a loss of visitors.

Then there are the parts of the festival that have either outlived their welcome or are just plain unneeded. These cause the festival to be thought of as a joke, an inconvenience or something that needs to be eliminated.

Therefore, I believe there are many more areas that the Venetian Festival organizers need to look at cutting before the fireworks and changes that will keep the festival viable in the future.

Here are my thoughts as the editor of the local newspaper — one that covers the festival intimately each year:

Carnival

This is by far the biggest complaint I have about the festival each year. Since this carnival is located right outside of my office on Mason Street, I have to put up with its annoying lights, sounds and odors for four days.

But, I recognize that the carnival is a very popular attraction at the Venetian Festival, one that brings in many young people and families.

However, the location of the carnival is horrible. Every year it closes down Mason Street and takes up an entire city parking lot. This comes at a time when the festival is bringing in thousands of new people, and shoppers, to the downtown area for the many events in East Park. But, because the carnival takes up so much of our usual parking, we experience a serious parking problem — much to the happiness of the Charlevoix Police Department's parking ticket department.

This parking problem causes much unhappiness among the locals and the visitors. We must move this carnival to a more appropriate location near the downtown area.

There are locations available, so that argument is not valid. And, the argument that the Venetian Festival organizers want to keep activities as close to downtown as possible is moot now that Castle Farms and Charlevoix High School have become a part of the Venetian week.

Length

By shortening the time of the Venetian Festival the organization will save countless amounts of money each year.

Sure it is fun to go to a different activity each night for a week, but honestly, Venetian Festival doesn't really get going until Thursday or Friday night. By starting Venetian Festival on Thursday or Friday night, we will save money on musical and other events that take place on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Music

We really don't need three acts a night during the Venetian Festival. Keep it down to one act with an opening band and you will save money.

Sure it is nice to have so many bands, but it is not needed. And when you are strapped for cash, you need to cut out the unnecessary things.

Sports

While the actual Venetian Sports events are vital to the festival, I think the whole sports legends theme this year was too silly. And I am not alone with this one. Many people were confused by the sports legends theme and how it actually fit into the Venetian Festival. After all, the Venetian Festival is not called the Charlevoix Sports Festival.

The Venetian Festival organizers should take off their musty old varsity jackets. If you must come up with a theme, stick to something that makes sense to the summer and Venetian ideals. Although a theme for a festival is really just overkill.

There is more to Charlevoix than our high school sports teams and more to Charlevoix history than what high school teams went to the state finals. Those are simply side notes in the wonderful character that is Charlevoix.

Thank you

Editor:

Last week the schooner Madeline, Michigan's official Tall Ship, spent several days in dry dock at Irish Boat Shop. She was there to have her bottom scrapped and repainted. The crew of the Madeline would like to publicly thank Irish Boat Shop for the wonderful treatment that we received. Charlevoix is lucky to have such a facility!

And, we would also like to thank the Harbor Master for allowing us to use the grocery dock for an evening's lay over.

Venetian thanks

Editor:

The summer jewel of Charlevoix, "Venetian," has once again smiled upon us due to many, many generous financial contributions and the legions of dedicated Venetian volunteers. The Charlevoix spirit of community was once again exemplified by the team effort of the Coast Guard and law enforcement, the hard working Venetian Board and the employees and staff of the City of Charlevoix who staged "Venetian" in an outstanding manner.

The Venetian Board hopes that the 2004 festival has graced you with warm memories and thanks each and every Venetian supporter for a job well done.

A great crop

Editor:

We would like to say a special thanks to the Charlevoix Band Parents for the incredible work they are doing in keeping the petunia beds weeded. They are doing a great job, getting all the weeds and not disturbing the flowers. It is a real joy for us to water each day, knowing that faithful workers are out there giving the flowers their chance to grow. Your dedication to weeding even in the cold and rain is commendable.

This year, new dirt was put in and weed killers were left out, and you can see the results. The flowers are growing like they are supposed to, with water and soluble fertilizer being the only thing touching them. We fertilize lightly every six days and they are beautiful. We found out that granular fertilizer or weed killers cannot be put on or even near them on the grass.

Again, our heartfelt thanks to all of you for making it possible to have the wonderful crop we have this year, and one of the best crops we have had in the last 23 years.

How to save money

Editor:

I have read a article lately how we need more money for fireworks during the Venetian Festival. Why do we need fireworks on two consecutive nights?

Also, I can't for the life of me see why they shoot off four or five rockets at the same time. All they do is conflict with the each other. It is much more beautiful to shoot one off at a time and leave a little space between blasts. We are wasting a tremendous amount of money. We could get by on a quarter the amount of money and it would be more beautiful.

Editor:

This year's Venetian Festival honored basketball coaches and athletes as legendary. Of those mentioned, Cheryl Pence stood out as the only female. She was a tremendous athlete and is deserving of this honor.

However, several people were wondering about Toni Felter and the women of the 1972 and 1973 teams. Many consider these women legendary. Although community members suggested Toni and her teams to the Venetian Sports Legends Committee, they were not considered. It is my understanding that a coach or athlete had to have state honors in order to be considered legendary. Men's athletics have always had state opportunities. Did the committee consider the fact that state honors did not exist for women until the mid to late 1970s?

In 1970, there was no women's basketball program. Toni Felter started it as a girl's club. These young girls borrowed T-shirts from their fathers and taped numbers on them. During the 1971-72 year, the girls were given team status. This was significant as Toni and these young women had to battle a society that did not believe women's sports deserved any funding, gym time or attention. In 1973, the girls were allowed to use uniforms that were for all sports, not just basketball. Toni was coaching the entire women's basketball program (JV and Varsity) on her own until 1974.

Under the guidance of Coach Felter, the 1972 and 1973 Charlevoix High School women's basketball teams went undefeated. Not only did these women have back-to-back undefeated seasons, they posted a 33 game winning streak that ran from 1972 into 1974. The 1972 to 1974 Charlevoix High School women's hasketball teams posted 30 straight conference wins. There was no state recognition for these women, no all-state honors or state tournaments. Again, did the Venetian Sports Legend Committee even consider this? What Coach Felter and her teams accomplished is legendary. They created an outstanding program that gave girls and young women a chance to dream.

Toni Felter was the coach of the Charlevoix High School women's basketball program from 1970 to 1981. When the program collapsed in the 1980s, Charlevoix High School asked her to come back and rebuild it. From 1989 to 1992, Coach Felter worked to put the program back on its feet. In 1970, when women had no athletic opportunity and were given even less consideration, Toni Felter took it upon herself to fight and create a program that young women could be a part of. Toni still takes part in the Charlevoix High School basketball programs today by running the clock and attending games. Coach Felter gave so much to so many young women. Her courage, character and accomplishments are legendary!

Great job with petunias

Editor:

I am writing to thank all of those who diligently weed the petunias.

One morning on my way to work at 7 a.m., I witnessed many volunteers in the pouring down rain picking out the weeds to ensure the beautiful flowers would flourish.

The petunias look incredible this year, and it is greatly due to your efforts.

Thank you for helping keep Charlevoix beautiful.

Symphony a success again

The weather was perfect – a little cool – just right for dancing under the stars, when the sixth annual Symphony on the Green presented the Jimmy Dorsey orchestra.

More than 350 people turned out for the concert and helped raise over $53,000 to benefit Charlevoix Area Hospital.

This year's symphony was in support of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation goals to assist in the purchase of a new CAD Mammography machine for the hospital, for the expansion of Boyne Rehabilitation Center in Boyne City and for community outreach programs hosted by the foundation.

"We very much appreciate Charlevoix State Bank, Citizen's Bank, Spectrus, Inc and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pew for helping to sponsor the event," said Patti Barraw, Event Coordinator. "Without their support and the support of John & Ranny Riecker, Stephanie and Richard Mueller, III, Glenn and Valerie Mueller and all our contributors and donors we would not have reached our goal of $50,000."

Barraw said the committee is already looking into orchestra ideas for next year and hopes to bring "something a little different" for the 7th Annual Symphony on the Green.

"The Castle was a wonderful location and Richard and Linda Mueller and Allan Lovelace were very helpful in making the night a big success," Barraw said.

Charlevoix skater to be featured in movie

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Chris Couture, a Charlevoix resident and a serious inline skater, will be featured with a profile in an inline skating movie that is soon to come out.

After playing travel ice hockey and street hockey for years, Couture began to get interested in doing tricks on skates in about 1996.

The profile will allow Couture to show off his vocabulary of tricks, much more than he would be able to exhibit in the short run of a competition.

Couture, who remains without a sponsor for his sport at this time, said that the profile will give him "a big possibility for a sponsor."

Getting a sponsor would help Couture out a lot with the expenses of his sport. His skates have to be replaced about every four months.

Couture is also a psychology major at Kalamazoo College.

The profile, which runs approximately 5 minutes, is part of the movie "Penniless" that will premier at 7:30 p.m. at the State Theatre in Kalamazoo on Aug. 27 and come out to buy on DVD in September or October.

Since street and park skating were removed from the X-games, inline skating has received a lot less exposure. The X-games showcase extreme sports each year on television.

"The people that do it really love to do it," said Couture.

Couture recently participated in a skating demonstration at Castle Farms during Venetian week.

Although he doesn't usually skate park, Couture did tricks to please the kids, such as fulfilling a request to touch the rafters in the demonstration area.

"I try to be a role model as much as possible," Couture said.

St. Mary youth return from neighborly trip

A team of young people and adults from St. Mary's parish in Charlevoix spent a week of their summer vacation reaching out to persons in need in the inner city of Pontiac.

The team participated in a project called Young Neighbors in Action (YNIA). Young Neighbors in Action involves over 2000 participants in providing service to poor children and families all across the United States.

This is the seventh missionary trip to the inner city for the youth from Charlevoix. In the previous six years they have spent time remodeling an old convent that is now being used to keep the youth off of the streets, graffiti removal, landscaping, fixing up a home that will be used for the homeless, working with Alzheimer patients, distributing literature door to door about illegal toxic dumping and other environmental issues, working with refugees who are seeking asylum in the United States and working in a soup kitchen.

This year the youth worked at Lighthouse Emergency Services, located in Pontiac. They worked with a program called PATH. PATH stands for Pontiac Area Transitional Housing. Lighthouse PATH is an empowerment program providing transitional housing for homeless women and their children in a safe, structured environment.

While at PATH, the youth from Charlevoix spent the first 90 minutes of each day working with 3 and 4 year old children whose mothers were in the PATH program. All these children had been homeless at one time.

The youth played with, read to, and became fast friends with these beautiful children. The rest of the day was spent doing manual labor for the benefit of the children.

Charlevoix youth spent three days turning an abandoned area of concretet into a playground. They did this by painting on the concrete a basketball court, a baseball diamond, a four square area and a place to play hop-scotch.

The youth also spent some time painting murals on the walls of the areas where the infants and toddlers had their daycare.

The team this year consisted of: Jaleesa Baier, Sonya Plude, Scott Plude, Jamila Baier, Joel Kippe, Jack Wisneiwski, Lauren Bradley, Scott McFalls, Eric Baldwin and Patty Furtaw.

BUSINESS

Teens break into business world with pontoon

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Boaters on Round Lake need not worry about docking and walking to a restaurant in Charlevoix. Its seems the Charlevoix harbor is becoming a beacon for its own restaurants with the start of another floating food distributor called Two Guys and a Grill.

Two Guys and a Grill is the brainchild of Charlevoix High School juniors Kenny Anderson and Josh Saur. It joins one other floating restaurant on Round Lake this summer.

The two boys came up with the idea of grilling and selling food on Round Lake last summer when they transformed a small barge into their own floating picnic spot, complete with lawn chairs, a stereo and a cooler. According to the boys, when they were out enjoying themselves, they would have boaters stopping by their barge to see if they would sell them some food.

So Saur and Anderson came up with the idea to go into business for themselves.

"It is extremely nice to set your own hours," Anderson said.

Saur added, "And be your own boss and make a profit too."

The two boys spent the winter looking for a pontoon boat they could turn into their new job, decorating it and obtaining the necessary permits from the city and health department.

Two Guys and a Grill opened for business on June 13. They serve hamburgers, hot dogs, brats and chicken breasts, along with beverages and potato chips.

They said business has been really good on the weekends.

Boaters can order food by calling 881-3116 or hailing the business on VHF channel 71. Food can be delivered to a boat or dock, via an inflatable raft the boys tow behind their pontoon.

Boaters can also tie up to Two Guys and a Grill, but they can not eat on board the vessel.

Two Guys and a Grill are open on sunny days from 12 to 5 p.m.

Pool auction breaks record

The Charlevoix Area Pool's annual auction last weekend broke its previous fund-raising record this year by raising $80,000.

The auction is the major fund-raiser for the non-profit pool, located on US-31 near the Charlevoix Country Club.

Bruce MacArthur, a board member for the pool, said this year broke last year's record of about $70,000 thanks to Allen T. Ackerman's underwriting of the auction dinner. He said bidding at this year's auction was fierce at times.

On the very first item, a ticket to the Michigan State University versus the University of Michigan football game, a bidding war was started between a state fan and a University of Michigan fan.

Eventually, the ticket was won with a $2,800 price tag.

Another big prize was a ride on the Cemex freighter the Challenger. It went for $3,000.

MacArthur said one of the biggest tickets was placed by Charlevoix resident Bill Schuiling, who paid $15,000 for a trip on a boat owned by resident Mike Dow. But, this was a deal for Schuiling, who bought the same item last year for $30,000.

And the pool was not the only organization to win with this auction. According to MacArthur, Glen Catt bought the Gift of Love item for $1,600. This item allows participants at the Bergmann Center use of the pool for six days a week.

West Nile Virus found in Charlevoix County

Officials from the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties announced that a crow submitted for testing from Charlevoix County on July 14 is positive for the West Nile virus.

West Nile virus is a mosquito-born virus that can infect birds, horses and humans.

"West Nile virus cannot be spread directly from birds to people," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, Medical Director. "However, increased sightings of dead jays and crows can sometimes predict an increase in human cases of West Nile virus. We're asking people to report dead birds at www.michigan.gov/westnilevirus."

People who do not have access to the Internet can telephone their local health department to report dead birds.

By tracking the locations and numbers of dead birds, the health department can keep the community informed about any increased risk of West Nile virus. After reporting a dead bird, it is important to dispose of it properly. Meyerson recommends wearing heavy gloves or using tongs to double-bag the dead bird and throw it out with other household garbage.

According to the Michigan Department of Community Health, one human case of West Nile virus has been reported in the State so far this year, in Kalamazoo County.

To reduce the risks of becoming infected with West Nile virus, Meyerson recommends the following precautions from April through October, the West Nile virus "season":

- If outside when mosquitos are most active, wear protective clothing and an insect repellent containing DEET. Avoid applying it to children under 2 years of age and always follow the manufacturer's directions.
- Reduce exposure to mosquitoes around the house and the yard by making sure that doors and windows have tight fitting screens and drain all standing water from mosquito breeding sites like flower pots, pet bowls, clogged gutters and pool covers.
- Help remind neighbors to eliminate mosquito-breeding sites on their property.

Although the decision to institute a mosquito abatement program is up to individual communities, the health department is not recommending counties, cities or townships to institute any spraying programs at this time.

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties. Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities.

For additional information about West Nile Virus. Contact your physician or your local health department office or visit www.michigan.gov/westnilevirus.

Hiroshima Remembrance to be in Petoskey Sunday

Steve Little, a local musician and Vietnam veteran, will tell of his recent trip to Vietnam at the annual Hiroshima Remembrance and Reflection Sunday, Aug. 8.

The program, sponsored by the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom, begins at 1:30 p.m. at Petoskey's Mineral Wells Park.

In an attempt to heal the psychological wounds of war, Little returned to Vietnam with a team of Veterans for Peace members to work on humanitarian projects. With the help of the Veterans Vietnam Restoration Project, Little and his team built a primary school in the Hue province.

Following his talk, Little will accompany Nancy MacArthur-Smith in a brief singing session.

Don Hartman, a well-known Mennonite from Brutus, will give the moment of reflection on the fifty-ninth anniversary of dropping of an atomic bomb by the U.S. on Hiroshima Aug. 6, which instantly killed more than 70,000 Japanese. On Aug. 9, Nagasaki also was bombed. More than 200,000 lost their lives either to the bombs or later to radioactive fallout.

Blossoms will be floated on the Bear River as memorials to the victims.

Audience members are asked to bring a flower and folding chairs.

Businesses report good sales during Venetian

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Business was booming during the 74th Annual Venetian Festival despite a smaller crowd.

Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, said the businesses she talked to said their sales were either equal to last year or up over the Venetian weekend.

"The chamber thought it was a great, spectacular weekend," she said. "It (Venetian) was very well run and an outstanding event."

Merta said no one was down in sales out of the merchants she talked to. One of the businesses that did well over the weekend was Stafford's Weathervane.

Jeff Sprecksell, general manager of Stafford's Weathervane, said business was good.

"This year was better than last year," he said.

Sprecksell said the restaurant broke its previous record of the number of people served on the Saturday night of Venetian. He said the restaurant served 466 dinners on Saturday night during Venetian, which bypassed last year's record of 428.

"It went very smoothly," Sprecksell said in regards to the usually hectic atmosphere of Saturday night during Venetian.

Sprecksell said compared to last year, the Weathervane is up in sales for the Saturday night of Venetian and for the month of July. He also said the restaurant is up about 12 percent for the whole year compared to last year.

"Saturday night of Venetian food sales were up, but alcohol was about the same," he said.

Another restaurant in town had a good Venetian weekend as well.

Chuck Whitney, owner of Whitneys of Charlevoix, said his establishment did better than last year.

"I don't think the numbers of people were here in Charlevoix," he said. "But enough for what we needed."

Whitney said the number of people that flocked to Whitneys was satisfactory because too many people can bog things down.

"We can't serve anymore dinners than we can get out," he said.

Whitneys is a restaurant that features an upstairs, partial-outdoor bar called Top Side, which Whitney said is a very popular place for people to go during Venetian.

Whitney said having some events down at Castle Farms took some of the people away from the downtown area on Tuesday night, but it didn't really affect business.

"The Castle should be incorporated into the community," he said. "It's too nice of a facility."

Whitney said individual merchants shouldn't worry about their own numbers, but the numbers of the town as a whole.

"The numbers are down because Charlevoix is competing with other cities and the chamber doesn't promote Charlevoix on a whole," he said.

Overall, Whitney said it was a good Venetian and people are spending money even though there aren't that many people in town.

"People want good, solid service and a quality item," he said. "They'll pay money for it, but it has to be a good item."

Whitney said it is important for him to satisfy guests so they will remember the service and come back during the off-season.

"We use the summer to advertise for the off-season," he said.

Whitney said businesses used to make enough money during the three peak summer months to practically get through the off-season. Now, he said some businesses are making more money in the off-season than the peak season.

"The way we advertise is by doing as well as we can in the summer," he said.

Aside from restaurants, Venetian provided good business for local merchants.

Rhonnie Egger, manager of the Rocking Horse Toy Co. in Charlevoix, said she didn't have the final figures in but business was good.

"It was a very good weekend," she said.

Pam Beer, manager of The Clothing Company, said business was good, but about equal to last year.

"It was actually quiet, but steady," she said.

Author to speak about hostage experience

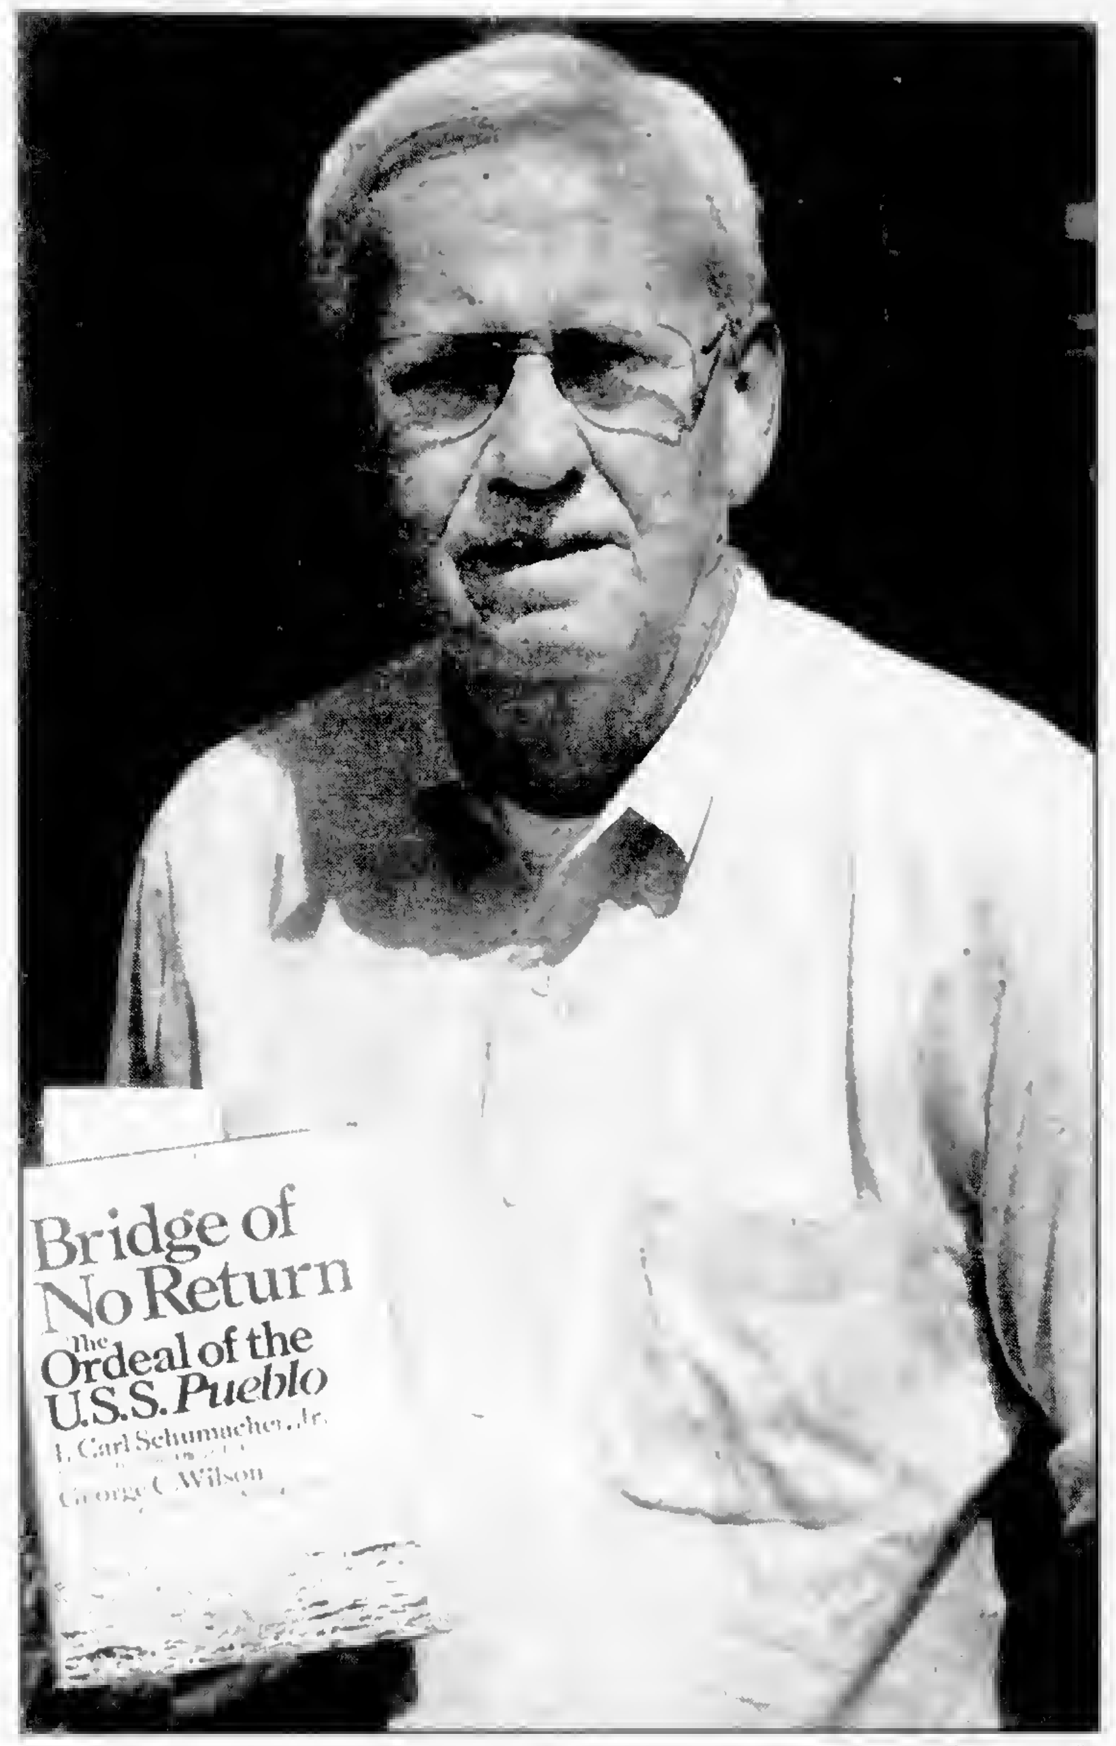

Photo credit

Carl Schumacher will detail the time he spent in North Korea as a hostage in the 1960s Aug. 10 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Lt. F. Carl "Skip" Schumacher Jr. will bring history alive when he tells of his experience during the U.S.S. PUEBLO incident at 7 p.m. on Aug. 10 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

The PUEBLO incident occurred 36 years ago, but still brings emotion to those who were involved.

"Even though it's a footnote in history, it still commands feeling," Schumacher said.

Schumacher, 61, lives in St. Louis, but he is not a stranger to Charlevoix for his family has been coming up to Charlevoix for several generations.

He wrote a book about his account of the PUEBLO incident called "Bridge of No Return," which is no longer in print but available at most libraries. He donated a copy to the Charlevoix Public Library in the 1970s.

Schumacher graduated from Trinity College and served in the Navy from 1965 through 1969. He later went on to receive a graduate degree from Harvard and currently runs a financial service in St. Louis called Financial Support Services that provides bookkeeping for individuals and foundations.

During his talk, Schumacher said he will describe in detail the mission he and other U. S. Navy men were sent on, what things looked like in the mid-1960s, and he will address intelligence requirements at the time.

Schumacher said interest in the PUEBLO incident remains because of the lack of support the men received when they needed it the most.

"The interest is largely stimulated by the reaction of the Navy and the way they handled the whole incident," he said.

The incident occurred on Jan. 23, 1968. Schumacher said the PUEBLO was sent to gather intelligence off the coast of North Korea when they were attacked.

Schumacher said the underlining assumption is that the United States wanted to put an unarmed ship in hostile territory and get away with it, which is what the Russians were doing.

The PUEBLO, a converted AKL, was attacked by the North Koreans and the crew was taken hostage. Schumacher said one man was dying, three more were severely wounded and nine were incapacitated with wounds when the late Cmdr. Lloyd M. "Pete" Bucher decided to surrender in order to save the rest of his crew. Schumacher said the PUEBLO did not receive any military aid.

Schumacher was 24 when he was taken prisoner along with the other men aboard the PUEBLO, but the average age of the crew was 19.

During the talk, Schumacher said he will describe what it was like to be taken as a prisoner of war by the North Koreans. Schumacher said the PUEBLO crew was the first United States hostages taken by hostile force.

"That fact really distinguished the way we were treated," he said.

Schumacher said the crew was treated as hostages instead of POWs, and as a result were used for North Korean propaganda purposes.

The men tried to undermine the propaganda efforts of the North Koreans, which Schumacher said was reasonably effective. He said their efforts did not have any international impact, but it did help keep the crew's morale and focus together.

Things turned sour when Time magazine published a photograph of the crew and explained how they were trying to undermine the North Korean propaganda movement.

Around the first of December 1968, Schumacher said the crew endured three weeks of beatings they referred to as Hell Week.

"They were upset with us," he said. "It was a confirmation that our anti-propaganda efforts were successful."

Schumacher said a negotiation break through occurred during the bleakest moment and after 11 months the men were set free on Dec. 23, 1968.

"We were beaten severely on a Thursday and three days later the North Koreans were sending medics to clean us up," he said.

When the men returned home Schumacher said the nation greeted them with great fanfare, but the Navy was to hold a Court of Inquiry to blame Bucher and two other officers for violation of naval regulations. Court-martials were recommended, but were thrown out by the Secretary of the Navy.

Schumacher said that was supposed to be the end, but 36 years later people still feel that Bucher was mistreated by the Navy.

"There was no satisfactory resolution or conclusion," he said.

Schumacher received the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star and the Silver Star, which was also awarded posthumously to Duane Hodges, who was killed when the North Koreans attacked the PUEBLO.

Schumacher will be available to answer questions the audience may have after the talk, which is a part of the Charlevoix Public Library's Author Series.

More information about the PUEBLO incident can be found at www.usspueblo.org.

Business offers customers a new view

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

There's a new watersport for the adventurous spirit now that Sunshine Charters is offering parasailing in addition to their long-standing sailing charters.

Captain Gary Dawson, owner of Sunshine Charters, said it's hard not to take advantage of the geographic nature of Charlevoix.

"It offers another way to really see Charlevoix and all its beauty from the water," Dawson said.

Dawson said it's a shame there aren't more options available for people to enjoy the lakes while in the Charlevoix area.

Sunshine Charters has been in operation since 1997 and Dawson said he has taken probably over 10,000 people sailing and is hoping people enjoy parasailing as well. It offers private charters and group charters for those who want to experience the open waters.

The parasailing option has been running since July 27 and Dawson said business has been good and trips were made every hour during the second day of operation on July 28.

Sunshine Charters was run for five years by Captain Nicole Dawson and is now run by Captain Josh Leese of Charlevoix.

Leese, 22, who has been with Sunshine Charters for seven years is accompanied by Co-Captain Charlie Godfrey, 20, of Wolverine.

Leese has been sailing since he was 10 years old, but this year is his first year as a parasailing instructor and captain.

"It's been so much fun," he said. "Everyone's having a blast."

Leese said many people are happy that parasailing is available in Charlevoix so they don't have to drive somewhere else to enjoy the experience.

The clientele parasailing brings in is different from that of the people who take the sailboat tours, Leese said. He said some people who already own boats don't necessarily want to take a boat tour, but they will go parasailing.

Godfrey has six years experience in parasailing through working with Jim Rizzardi in Mackinaw City. Rizzardi, who has been doing parasailing since 1988, runs Mackinaw Parasailing and is also co-owner of the parasailing in Charlevoix.

Leese and Godfrey said the reactions they have gotten from parasailors is nothing but excitement and fun.

"Most people have a good time," Godfrey said. "No complaints."

Leese said it's fun to watch people take off from the launch deck on their first time up.

"It's cool to see people's eyes get real wide," he said.

Before the crew harnesses a person in, they ask if the person wants to get wet. The crew can dip just a person's toes in the water or dip someone so their chest gets wet.

Lori Karakashian, 20, and her sister Kim, 16, of Farmington Hills, flew tandem and loved the trip even though some fear was there in the beginning.

Lori said the experience was less stressful than one would imagine.

"It was a lot more relaxing than I actually thought it would be," she said. "It was really nice to fly up there and see the lake."

Kim, on the other hand, had some reservations about soaring 600 feet in the air.

"I was kind of scared at first because normally I'm afraid of heights, but when you're up there you can't really tell how high you are," she said.

Parasailing is available Monday through Sunday with the boat leaving at 9 a.m., 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. from the Charlevoix City Marina Dock 32.

For those who want to start their day in style with the early 9 a.m. trip there is a discount. When one full price ticket is purchased for the early trip the second person flies for free.

To some 600 feet may be a little too high, so Sunshine Charters offers heights of 150 feet and 300 feet as well with all flights lasting approximately 10 to 15 minutes each.

Prices for 150 feet cost $45 for a single flyer and $75 for a tandem flight. For 300 feet a single flyer costs $55 and $95 for a tandem flight. The 600 foot flight costs $65 for a single flyer and $115 for a tandem flight.

Tickets can be purchased from the Kiosk across from the Charlevoix City Dock 32 or reservations can be made by calling 231-547-0266. Parking is available in the Beaver Island Ferry parking lot.

When a couple learns they are about to have a child, they experience an enormous surge of pure joy!

If things go wrong with a pregnancy, there seems to be no end to the pain. Hospice of Little Traverse Bay understands that the loss of an infant, by miscarriage, premature birth or stillbirth is perhaps one of the most difficult times anyone must face. And it ripples well beyond the parents – to other children, aunts and uncles and grandparents.

"Nobody knows what to say to a parent who has lost a baby. They have no experience of your baby, which I believe makes it hard for them to know how to acknowledge your baby's life and the impact that your baby's loss has on you, no matter how short the life was."

"After my son Alex died, almost no one simply said, 'We are sorry for your loss,' or 'Your hearts must be broken, we're so sorry.' What most parents who find themselves in this horrible situation really need is acknowledgement of their loss and a chance to talk about it if they choose to."

Library working on design plans in several meetings

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Final schematics for the new library were approved at the July 29 library board meeting and the plans include a magical atmosphere for children and a graffiti area for teens.

Valerie Meyerson, director of the Charlevoix Public Library, said the library is pleased with the plans for the children and teen areas.

"We're really excited about it," she said.

Alice Riemenschneider of Riemenschneider Design Associates presented ideas to create a Hansel and Gretel type cottage as the entrance to the children's area.

At the board meeting, Riemenschneider said she thought the cottage entrance should feature a mushroom-type roofing that parallels Earl Young's architecture seen throughout Charlevoix.

She also presented ideas on featuring what she called an enchanted walk-way that could be castle-like with cobble stones and trees with passageways.

Riemenschneider said she wanted the area to be very interactive for the younger children.

The teen area will be enclosed in glass so those using the room can have privacy, but others can supervise the room.

Riemenschneider presented the idea of painting a wall with a special coating that would enable it to be used like a whiteboard, enabling teens to write messages to one another and work out homework problems with dry-erase markers.

Meyerson said the writing wall is a good idea.

"I like that because the kids have a good place for them to do projects," she said.

Meyerson said having a message wall fits in with the original planning to feature more interactive items for patrons to use.

The ideas in the schematics will become more detailed during the design development phase, which Meyerson said lays out what things will look like and where they'll be located.

Four meetings will take place during the design development stage and will cover site designs, exterior designs, interior designs and miscellaneous items.

The first design development meeting is scheduled for 1 p.m. on Aug. 19 and 9 a.m. on Aug. 20 and will be in the basement of the Charlevoix Public Library.

The following meetings are tentatively scheduled for the same times on Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, Sept. 21 and Sept. 22 and Oct. 11 and Oct. 12.

A regular library board meeting will occur at 4 p.m. on Oct. 14.

Islanders to celebrate homecoming

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Decades of tradition will be continued from Aug. 6-8 with the continuation of the Beaver Island Homecoming celebration.

The Beaver Island homecoming tradition started with native islanders coming back to visit at the same time each year. Today, homecoming has grown to be a big event for the island and is the longest running annual event for Beaver Island.

"It's grown beyond that into an island festival party," said Steve West, director of the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce.

A very important event associated with the homecoming is a softball tournament. Four original teams and four newer teams will participate in the double-elimination bracket-system tournament. It is by invitation only.

"It brings a lot of interest and money to the island," said Tim McDonough, who has run the tournament since the death of his father.

He added that the tournament is "entertaining for a lot of people."

The tournament has been named "The Bud McDonough Memorial Softball Tournament" in honor of the man who started the event 29 years ago.

Game times are on the hour every hour on Friday from 1 to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Weather permitting, the tournament winners should be decided by 8 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 7.

Beaver Island Sports Boosters will be selling hot dogs and soft drinks at the softball tournament to benefit the sports program.

There will also be a chicken dinner at 5 p.m. on Sunday, Aug. 8 to benefit the Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island.

Adult tickets are $10 each for "an exceptionally good meal," said West. He added that the event "goes until they run out of chicken."

The homecoming celebration is open to anyone who wishes to come, but at this time, a place to stay is hard to come by. Accommodations must be booked many months in advance.

People make their way to the Beaver Island homecoming in one of three ways. Some take a boat with Beaver Island Boat Company or take a plane with Island Airways out of Charlevoix. Others take their own boats to Beaver Island.

Although the two marinas are not yet full, West said they fill up pretty quickly. Boaters also have the option of anchoring in the harbor.

The celebration packs many people onto the island each year and brings a lot of people to area businesses.

"It's important part of the island economy," said West.

Executive Director Dean Davenport was especially pleased with the program this year.

"Our mentor program had over 35 adults that committed to attending each session and that allowed for a safe teaching and playing environment. Both the Belvedere and Charlevoix Country Club provided incentives which rewarded our mentors, and as a result, our program continues to improve," he said.

Both courses allow mentors special golfing dates.

Davenport also cited the teaching professionals that donate their time.

"Steve Braun and Marty Joy from the Belvedere, Joan Waha from Ye Nyne Olde Holles, Scott Blechel from the Charlevoix Golf Course and Steve Good from the Charlevoix Country Club. Kasey Davenport and Katie Zhlerjewski served as teaching assistants. In addition, all these courses plus Antrim Dells and Dunmaglas provide course time for teaching and playing sessions even during the busy summer time. The Charlevoix Recreation Department and Director Ike Boss have provided us with administrative help which has enabled us to handle the tremendous amount of paper work associated with having this many golfers," he said.

A few juniors did not pick up their colored, framed picture during the award day and can now pick them up at the Aartvark Studio and Gallery on Bridge Street in Charlevoix. There is no charge.

The Charlevoix Country Club will salute the Junior Golf Mentors by hosting them to a morning of golf and a luncheon on Thursday, Aug. 19. Those planning to attend are asked to call 547-6433 to make a reservation.

Local student cheers on Armstrong in France

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Kevin Kusina, who has watched biker Lance Armstrong on TV for years, recently went to France to support Armstrong in his sixth Tour de France victory.

Kusina, who will be a junior at Charlevoix High School, made the decision to spend his money on the trip about a year ago, when Armstrong won his fifth Tour de France.

"This sort of caught my eye," said Kusina about choosing to attend the race.

Kusina made the trip with his sister, Kelly, who is 24. The two backpacked and camped while in France to save money on the trip.

Kusina said it was "awesome" to see Armstrong.

"Up the mountain, he always has this blank look on his face. It's incredible how much pain he can take," he said.

Tour de France has been an annual bicycle racing tradition since1903, with the exception of the years 1915-1918 and 1940-1946.

This year participants began in Liege, Belgium and biked 3,391.1 kilometers (about 2,102 miles) to Paris, France. The race began on July 3 and commenced July 25. Only 147 of the 188 entered finished the race.

To finish first among the 146 other competitors, Armstrong maintained an average speed of over 40 kilometers per hour.

"The speed at which he goes is inhuman," said Kusina.

Each part of the race is called a stage. Participants start each stage in groups. Elapsed time is scored at the end of the stage, and the biker with the lowest total elapsed time wins the Tour de France. This year's Tour de France consisted of 20 stages.

Kusina saw about seven stages of the race while in France. He was able to see both starts and finishes. The last day of the race is run like a circuit race, so viewers get to see the competitors about eight times.

Kusina is a bicyclist himself, but he says that biking is just "recreational fun" for him.

While in France, Kusina met people from Austin, Texas who gave him and his sister rides to five of the Tour de France stages.

He was with the family in a group of Armstrong fans when Armstrong pointed towards the group in appreciation.

"It was great," said Kusina about the fan recognition.

The family also invited Kusina to stay with them at their home in Austin in October and attend the Ride for the Rose, a benefit for the Lance Armstrong Foundation.

The entrance fee for the Ride for the Rose is a donation to the Lance Armstrong Foundation which goes to benefit cancer research and survivorship.

"If I do that, I'd have to do some fundraising," Kusina said.

If you wish to donate to the Lance Armstrong Foundation, go to wearyellow.com to purchase a Live Strong bracelet. One hundred percent of proceeds go to benefit the foundation.

"I encourage everyone to read his books and wear the bracelets," said Kusina.

Char-Em ISD to offer five day workshop on youth

A special type of training, Life Space Crisis Intervention, offers parents and other adults an array of tools to respond to a child/student's chronic pattern of self-defeating behavior.

Offered by Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District, Life Space Crisis Intervention (LSCI) is a five day workshop geared toward anyone who works with youth — probation officers, school personnel, counselors, foster care workers, court officers and others. The workshop will be offered 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Aug. 19, 20, 23, 24 and 25, at Char-Em ISDin Charlevoix.

According to LSCI co-trainer James Marquoit, the foundation of LSCI is based on developing a caring relationship with the student/youth.

More than 250 people have been trained in LSCI throughout the ISD, said Nancy Koehler, a co-trainer for the workshop. Koehler has been an educator for more than 20 years with 11 years experience teaching severely emotionally impaired youth. She is currently a behavior specialist to local school districts throughout Char-Em ISD.

Information about registering for the workshop is available by calling Diane Heinzelman, Char-Em ISD Special Education Director at (231) 547-9947 or online at www.charemisd.org. Click on "Professional Development" and scroll to the bottom of the page for the "Life Space Crisis Intervention" heading. Deadline to register is August 12.

"I need to sit down in the near future and figure out who wants to join my team and be committed to the citizens of Charlevoix and who doesn't," he said.

Kur said she is proud of the campaign she put on and is prepared for what lies ahead.

"If it turns out he wins, life is going to switch gears for me," she said.

At the time of the interview, she was unsure about the results of the primary.

Given their past history, Kur said she is willing to work with Jarema in order to provide a smooth transition in the office. Kur had fired Jarema as Chief Assistant Prosecutor.

"I'll do what needs to be done in the best interest of the citizens of Charlevoix County," she said.

After serving the citizens of Charlevoix County, Kur said she doesn't have any definite plans about what she will do now.

Those who currently work for Kur don't have a certain future as their jobs may be lost when Jarema takes office.

"That's not their decision," she said. "That will be his decision."

Kur was not the only incumbent to be bested Tuesday at the polls.

In Norwood Township, incumbent supervisor Wayne E. Boss was beaten by challenger Wayne D. Wynkoop, 110 votes to 175. Also, incumbent clerk Doris Pearl was beaten by Michelle Cyr, 139 votes to 145.

Wynkoop said there have been some issues hanging over the township for the past two years that need to be worked out.

"We need to reunite the town in the worst way because there's a lot of ill feeling between all the citizens of the township," he said.

Facing old issues isn't easy, but Wynkoop said he's positive about what the township officials can accomplish.

"We need to move forward and try not to think about things that have happened in the past," he said.

Boss, who served as the Norwood Township Supervisor for five years, said the people have spoken.

"I think it just means they weren't satisfied with the people in there and decided to pick somebody else," he said.

Boss said he doesn't have any specific future plans related to government, but will continue with his business.

And in Eveline Township, incumbent supervisor Dan Skrzeczkoski was beaten by challenger John E. Vrondran, 154 votes to 272.

Other county results were:

- For Charlevoix County Clerk, Jane Brannon kept her seat against challenger Nathan Jason, 3,346 votes to 2,028.
- For Charlevoix County Commission District Six, incumbent Shirley Roloff kept her seat in a race against challenger Richard Gillespie, 823 votes to 625. Gillespie is a resident of Beaver Island and handily took the votes there, winning 260 votes to 76.
- For Charlevoix Township supervisor, incumbent H. Dale Glass beat back a challenge from Theodore S. Felter, 352 votes to 176.
- For Charlevoix Township trustee, Charles Center and Nancy Rajewski were picked for the two open board seats. Center got 368 votes and Rajewski got 411. Challenger Charles Scherping got 134 votes.
- For Marion Township trustee, Joanne Jones and Joe Seidel were picked for the two open board seats. Jones received 243 votes and Seidel received 249. Challenger Robert L. Fales received 155.
- For Norwood Township trustee, Sadie A. Bartosik and Denny L. Way were picked for the two open board seats. Bartosik received 136 votes and Way received 120. Challenger Frank Hamilton received 100 and Lynn Smolenyak received 108.
- For Peaine Township Trustee, Peter Lodico and Paul Welke were picked for the two open board seats. Lodico received 81 votes and Welke received 108 votes. Challenger Terry L. Saxton received 66 votes.
- The Transit Millage Proposal passed by 64 percent, the Separate Tax Limitation Proposal passed by 58 percent, the Senior Citizen Millage passed by 77 percent and the Recycling Millage passed by 72 percent.

Lastly, while the final results were not in for all the counties, John Ramsey won in Charlevoix County for the 105th District with 2,413 votes for the Republican nomination. Kevin Elsenheimer was in second with 1,049 votes.

However, at press time, the Michigan Secretary of State had the unofficial totals for Antrim and Otsego counties. According to those totals, Kevin Elsenheimer was leading in those two counties with 3,202 votes. Craig Ryan was in second with 3,116 votes.

Added to the Charlevoix totals, Elsenheimer was in first with 4,251 votes, Ramsey was in second with 3,889 and Ryan was in third with 3,743.

For the Democrats, Jim McKimmy won in Charlevoix County with 373 votes to Greg Dean's 321 votes. McKimmy was also leading when added to Antrim and Otsego counties' numbers with 1, 345 votes to Dean's 1,042.

Cheboygan County still needed to report its numbers.

There are 19,775 total registered voters in Charlevoix County. On Tuesday, 7,125 of them showed up to cast their ballots. Therefore the total turnout for the election was 36 percent of registered voters in Charlevoix County.

Not a done deal for Jarema

Green party candidate trying for prosecutor

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

John Jarema's hopes to be the next Charlevoix County Prosecutor have another hurdle to jump, now that he will be facing an opponent in the November general election, Green Party candidate Ellis Boal.

"I have long been a supporter of the Green Party. This was an opportunity to serve, with no Democrat on the ticket and the Republicans split," Boal said.

Jarema, a Republican, beat incumbent prosecuting attorney Mary Beth Kur, also a Republican, in a close primary race last week. At the time, it was not known that he had an opponent, therefore it seemed that he would be the only name on the November general election ballot.

Boal, 59, said he believes a wide selection of people will be supporting him for election.

"I will have a coalition of Green Party people. I expect the Democrats to support me and a lot of Republicans to support me who were very much on one side (in the primary race)," he said.

Boal is a 1972 graduate of Wayne State University law school. After graduation he spent a year with a law firm working on labor law. After that, he said he worked for himself in labor law and went into semi-retirement in 2000, when he moved to northern Michigan.

Do we have enough parking for handicapped in Charlevoix?

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

At least one resident is asking: Is Charlevoix handicapped friendly or are there needs that haven't been met yet?

During the city council meeting on July 6, Charlevoix resident Christa-Maria expressed a need for more handicapped parking spaces, especially along Bridge Street.

"I just want our town, with all the festivals and activities, to be a handicapped friendly town," Christa-Maria said.

She said she isn't out to better the situation for herself, but to enable everyone with a handicap to have an easier time getting to the downtown area.

Christa-Maria told the council that if a city has 100 parking spaces, four percent are to be delegated for handicapped parking.

Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the police department is currently conducting surveys to determine how much the handicapped parking spaces are used in Charlevoix.

He said once all the data is gathered it will be analyzed to determine whether or not more spaces are needed due to the usage history.

If all of the parking spaces are full most of the time, then more spaces may be necessary.

Halverson said his parking people are checking the spaces a few times a week and at varying times in order to get a more accurate determination of usage.

Local attorney and Charlevoix resident Richard E. Joseph has been in a wheelchair for the past two years and would like to see more handicapped park-

Owner has plans for debated property

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

According to the owners of this property on US-31, near Marion Center Road, it will look very different within a year. The property was once the site of a proposed Wal-Mart Supercenter.

While there may not be a Wal-Mart going in on his property, Al Wojan has plans for it.

Wojan owns the land on US-31, near Marion Center Road, that was being looked at for a possible Wal-Mart supercenter last winter. He is one of several land owners the mega-retailer was considering to buy out in that area to build a new store over 150,000 square feet in size.

However, Wal-Mart abruptly pulled out of the project in May.

"I have plans," Wojan said when asked what the future of his property may be. "There are several things that I am tentatively trying to do."

Previously, Wojan had a manufacturing facility on the property that made door molding and furniture parts. However, that business came to a halt when it burned down in October 2001. The burnt-out remains of the manufacturing facility have been left standing since, prompting some complaints to the township over their appearance.

But, Wojan said people need not worry, as he is planning on cleaning the property up within the year for his new venture. He would not say what plans he was considering for the property.

Wojan said he did not know if Wal-Mart would ever be interested in his property or Charlevoix again in the future.

"I believe my plans will be going forward quite soon," he said.

And, he added, the remains of his old building will be renovated or torn down.

This will be good news for Charlevoix Township, as it has been working with Wojan to get the property cleaned up, township supervisor Dale Glass said.

But, Wojan's property is just one of several in the township, that officials are trying to get cleaned up. To help them with this, Glass said the township is working on a updated nuisance/blight ordinance.

He said the ordinance is in committee now and he is not sure when it will be presented to the township board.

Glass added, the township is also working updates to its zoning ordinances to limit the size of buildings that are build there and throughout the township. This type of ordinance could prohibit large retailers like Wal-Mart from building "big box" stores in Charlevoix Township.

This change is also being studied in committee and Glass did not know when it would be brought before the planning commission or township board.

The anti-Wal-Mart group This Is Our Town — which put up a strong fight to keep Wal-Mart from building a store in Charlevoix Township — has been working with the township and other government agencies to create this building size restriction.

Bob Hoffman, president of This Is Our Town, said, "There are a number of townships that have indicated an interest in it."

However, Glass said the current ordinance was strong enough to keep Wal-Mart out of Charlevoix Township. He added Wal-Mart's plans were in violation of the township ordinance when it submitted its information for a site plan review.

Wal-Mart never got that site plan review before the township because it pulled out before ever meeting with the planning commission.

Hunter education clinic to be given

There will be a lunch break, and registrants are asked to bring a drink and sack lunch.

This clinic is open to all residents 12 years of age and up, or who will be 12 prior to purchasing a 2004-2005 hunting license.

A testing session, for those who complete the Aug. 28 clinic, will be in Charlevoix, with the time and date to be announced at the Aug. 28 clinic.

Attendance is mandatory at both sessions (clinic and testing) to receive the Hunter Education Certificate.

Dogs should not be in park during festivals

EDITORIAL

What will we say if a child gets bit?

What will we say if a beloved pet is killed or hurt on accident by the crowd?

The time has come for the community and the council to address an issue that has been simmering in East Park for quite some time. It is time that we address dogs and other pets being in the park during festivals.

Sure, it is fun to take your dog for a walk in the park. East Park is a great place to toss a disk in the air for your pet to chase, run and play with your pet or show him off to others. But, these are all great activities to do with your pet when the park is not crowded.

It seems some people just don't understand that it can be confusing to a dog to be placed in a crowded situation such as East Park during the Venetian Festival. Everywhere they look, there is a person standing there. Everywhere they walk, they are bumping into someone. There is no room to run and various people keep coming up and touching him.

To an animal this would be a very stressful situation to be placed in. And when an animal is under stress, there is no telling what could happen. We are lucky that nothing really has to this point.

Simply put, dogs need to be kept out of East Park during festivals. And since it seems that dog owners probably will not willingly keep them out, it is time that we — as a community — make sure they keep them out with a ban.

Sure, the Charlevoix City Police Chief has concerns about enforcing such a ban, but it still needs to be done. We have trouble enforcing many ordinances in the city, such as no parking signs; does that mean we need to get rid of every one of those ordinances?

It is real simple. If you see a dog in East Park during a festival, the police need to tell the owner that city ordinance prohibits pets in the park during those times. If the owner does not comply with this warning, then they are issued a ticket. Therefore the city makes money, the park is safer and the dog is safer — everyone wins.

The chief of police, the city council and the citizens need to take this issue seriously.

Try telling the parents of the first child that is mauled by a stressed out dog that you could not keep her safe because you felt a ban was unenforceable.

Writer may have a reason for problems facing Texas

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Years as a practicing scientist and teacher have taught me a considerable degree of skepticism and disdain for the easy answers.

Those years have also taught me to look for physical explanations for what is happening. After years of school test scores dropping, they began to rise again about six years after we stopped using lead as a gasoline additive.

Prior to the ban on lead, the air in many of our cities had enough lead content to possibly have caused minor loss of educational capability of children breathing it from birth. Blood of the few children tested in that long ago time had lead content that we now consider somewhat hazardous. Our air is now freer of lead, although it might still contain troublesome elements of other sorts.

Polluting elements in water can be avoided, as can hazardous substances in food. We have some choice over what we eat and drink. But what is in the air can affect all of us, and substitute sources of air are pretty much unavailable.

What follows is not an explanation, only an enjoyable logical exercise.

I have read that Texas has the most polluted air of any state. That is certainly arguable, but suppose for a moment it is true. Is there something in the air of Texas that might affect all of us? Consider two examples.

When Rod Paige was superintendent of schools in Houston, the school dropout rate plunged, culminating in an almost unbelievably low dropout rate of 1.5 percent in 2000-2001. It was called the Texas miracle in education.

Mr. Paige apparently believed the reports of his school principals. It is now clear that the figures were seriously in error, if not outright lies, but Mr. Paige believed them. He is now the Secretary of Education in the Bush administration.

More recently the police crime laboratory in Houston was accused of possibly providing false information to juries in what may be 10,000 cases over the past 25 years. A panel of six independent forensic scientists has concluded that officials in that laboratory may have offered "false and scientifically unsound" reports and court testimony.

There does not appear to have been any overall scheme to accomplish this. But people in charge of the laboratory believed what turned out to be sloppy laboratory work without seriously questioning it.

James Bolding who was in charge of a serology laboratory in 1987 gave testimony that was critical to convicting an accused rapist, who is now on his way to freedom after 17 years in prison. Mr. Bolding apparently believed in the results his technicians reported, and hundreds of juries may have believed Mr. Bolding and others from the crime lab.

Mr. Bolding has not been nominated for head of the FBI crime lab, but it wouldn't surprise me.

I would suggest, only partly tongue in cheek, that there might be something in the air of Texas that reduces or eliminates normal human skepticism, something that causes those affected by it to believe without question what they are told by others.

You will surely be able to think of other examples of equivalent loss of normal skepticism on the part of past and present citizens of Texas.

It's just a thought.

The groundbreaking ceremony at Charlevoix Middle School for the Butterfly Garden was held May 1. Since that day there have been many hours of hard work by garden club members, students and teachers, donations and contributions. The Butterfly Garden is planted, in full bloom and even attracting butterflies.

This was a joint project between the Charlevoix Area Garden Club, the Kiwanis supported Builders Club with their advisor Larry Roth, faculty members, student counselor Kasie Laframboise, both science teachers Paul Gelderblom, Amy Pott and their students.

The garden could not have been completed without the generous contributions from our wonderful community. I would like to express my appreciation to all those who contributed and helped out.

This project has been a great learning experience with many rewards and memories but most wonderful was the involvement and enthusiasm of all the students.

Thank you all!

I have watched Venetian parades and fireworks over the years and the idea of having the boats move through the channel to Round Lake is long overdue. The fireworks were spectacular and there were activities for all ages to participate in. My family especially enjoyed running the Drenth races.

On behalf of the committee to elect John Jarema for Prosecutor, I would like to thank all of the voters in Charlevoix County who supported John. We are humbled and honored at the number of voters in the Aug. 3 primary election.

The many encouraging words and prayers received throughout the campaign were also appreciated.

Premature planning

Editor:

In my opinion, Mr. Jarema is planning his restructuring of the Prosecuting Attorney's office a little prematurely.

Mr. Jarema's win at the primary only secures his position on the November ballot: It does not give him the keys to the office.

Again Mr. Jarema is not presenting the whole picture. Mr. Jarema is not running unopposed in the November election.

To narrow the Rayder basketball legends to players from seven teams is doing an injustice to great players and teams of the past that didn't put it all together to get "down state."

Blood drive success

Editor:

There was an amazing response in Charlevoix on July 22 to the news from the American Red Cross of the severe shortage of blood products for the sick and injured.

The summer blood drive at the Community Reformed Church is traditionally attended by fewer donors because of all the activities going on in the area. I'm so happy to report that July 22 proved to be the exception!

The American Red Cross collected 87 pints of lifesaving blood from 97 donors. Most of those donors proved their devotion to and zeal for helping others with their tremendous patience as they went through the blood donation process. I cannot express enough gratitude to them!

I want to thank all of my volunteers who worked hard and went the extra mile to make sure everything went smoothly. Thanks to the Charlevoix Lions Club, Connie Pischner, Ed Whitley, and our very own "blood drop" and blood drive promoters, Jerry Shea, son, John, and wife, Michelle.

To those who could not stay to donate because of time restraints, thank you for trying! Our next community blood drive in Charlevoix is Sept. 16 at the Reformed Church. Please return to give the gift of life!

Letter reponse

Editor:

Those of you who regularly read the letters to the editor are probably thinking that Norwood Township is one sorry place by now. One faction of our township has repeatedly sought to discredit, and malign our township officials. They have presented you with half-truths and less facts.

Case in point: as the past Zoning Administrator, (referred to by Marilyn Maynard July 14) I offered my resignation in a letter to the board in January 2004 effective February 2004. I fully documented my reasons to the board which is public record. The "13 counts" referred to by Mrs. Maynard amount to personal opinion of actions and decisions with which she may not agree, but are issues and decisions that were reported to the Board, discussed and acted on by the Planning Commission and ZBA, or are incorrect. In addition, during the majority of my tenure as Zoning Administrator, Mr. Maynard, a current elected trustee, was the head of the Planning Commission, and member of the ZBA which gave him every opportunity to question any of my actions within the public forum of those meetings.

There exists in government the public forum for voicing concerns and questions. This is what should be used to question our public officials before anything else. I believe that our township officials are honorable and have been trying to do their best to conduct township business, and act in the township's best interest.

Editor:

Thank you, thank you, thank you to Mr. Dale Boss and the parents of the band boosters for their tender loving care of the petunias. Every single block of the miles and miles of petunias are healthy, weed-free and just plain beautiful.

The hanging petunia baskets were a wonderful addition to our downtown lamp posts and Jake Teuscher and Madison Ramsey are doing a great job of adding just the right amount of water and plant food because every basket is thriving. Thanks so much to all of you for making Charlevoix's petunias extra beautiful this year.

COMMUNITY

Library wraps up reading programs

The Charlevoix Public Library, once again, had very successful summer reading programs.

The Charlevoix Public Library hosted its annual summer reading programs for six weeks this summer. One club targets children ages 0-11, and the other was for children 11-13.

Its younger club met Tuesday evenings for an hour. Children brought in reading records to show the librarians how many books they had been reading and to receive a prize. Over 100 kids joined the club and read a combined total of over 1,700 books

The "tween" club had 15 kids attend Tuesday afternoons for special events. These kids brought friends, wrote book reports and completed over 75 hours of reading. Each time they read for 15 minutes, completed a book report, attended a library teen event or brought a friend, they received a slip to put their name on for a chance to win a downtown-shopping spree.

One of the special events for the tweens was a pizza taste off. Local businesses donated pizzas for a chance to win the title of "Best Pizza in Charlevoix." Fourteen teens participated in the taste off creating a deadlock vote 7 to 7 to award Pizza Hut and BC Pizza as the "Best Pizza in Charlevoix."

Jordyn Fassett was the grand prize teen winner this year. She walked away with a basket filled with prizes and gift certificates donated from Charlevoix businesses.

Because of the generosity of local businesses every teen that completed the club received gift certificates and/or prizes. A special award basket was given to Lynzie Gotshall for having the most slips in the drawing — a total of 128.

For further information about library programs, contact Amy at 547-2651.

Lions to have White Cane Safety Days

On Friday and Saturday, Aug. 13 and 14, the Charlevoix Lions will be out and about in Charlevoix for their annual "White Cane Safety Days" Fund Drive.

Since its 1930 conception in Peoria, Ill., the red-banded white can is recognized worldwide for identifying and protecting those with little or no vision while they are crossing streets and otherwise moving about. It's the law in Michigan and every other state in the US to give white cane bearers the right-of-way.

As a symbolic reminder to the public, each lion collecting contributions will be carrying an official "White Cane."

Donations to the Lions help support the Michigan Eye Bank and Transplant Center; the Michigan Leader Dog Training Center and Puppy Search and Development Program; the Welcome Home for the Blind in Grand Rapids. Locally the Lions Club helps support the low-vision reading center at the Charlevoix Public Library and pays for glasses for needy individuals with special eye problems.

Recently the club made a special donation to the newly updated optical surgery section at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Lions Bruce Herbert and Rick Sutton are co-chairing this year's fund-raiser.

The Lions also take in used eyeglasses for distribution in third world countries. Currently, used glasses can be dropped off at the Charlevoix library, Charlevoix State Bank, Steve Voci, OD's office at 103 Clinton and Reed Freidinger, MD's office at 14730 Park Avenue.

Charlevoix Fire Department responds to smoke call Aug. 3

The City of Charlevoix Fire Department was called to a report of a basement full of smoke around 3 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 3, at the James Green residence at 03300 Barnard Road.

Tillers to host second annual Farm Festival

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Tillers International is preparing for its second annual Farm Festival that features traditional farming methods.

The Farm Festival will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 14 at Inwood Farm, which is owned by Tillers and located near the intersection of US-31 and Ferry Road. The cost is $5 per car.

Dulcy Perkins, project coordinator for Tillers International, said the Farm Festival is more of an open house where people can come and see what Tillers has to offer such as blacksmithing, timber framing and ox-driving demonstrations.

Last year, Perkins said quite a few neighbors showed up for the event, but overall the Farm Festival is still a relatively new aspect in the community.

Those who are curious or seek more knowledge of traditional farming methods are encouraged to stop by.

Perkins said Tillers has been at Inwood Farm since 2002 when the land was donated by Charlevoix resident Betty Hoffmann, who's nephew took a draft horse class.

Dick Roosenherg estahlished Tillers International in 1991 after leading an ox-training project in Benin, Africa in the 1970s during his time in the Peace Corps along with the aide of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization.

Roosenberg and talented craftsmen came together to share their knowledge and skills at the Kalamazoo Nature Center.

Perkins said Roosenberg realized the importance traditional farming skills used during the development of America and Europe, which he then applied to developing countries.

Some of the countries that have been aided by Tillers are Nicaragua, Honduras, Kenya, Tanzania and Madagascar.

Foreign countries aren't the only ones receiving aid. Tillers also teaches farming techniques to communities throughout the United States and Canada.

Tillers is a non-profit organization and Perkins said the group has donors from all 50 states and has taught students from almost every state.

Those who wish to learn more about ox-driving, fence building, timber framing, blacksmithing and other traditional techniques can attend the classes offered through Tillers. These classes teach skills important for small farmers.

For more information ahout Tillers International and Farm Fest call (800) 498-2700 or go online at www.wmich.edu/tillers.

Library close to meeting its capital campaign goal

With a volunteer fund-raising committee and a generous community, the Charlevoix Public Library is approaching its capital campaign goal of $1.6 million.

There have been twenty-three major pledges of $5,000 or more, starting with a lead gift of $600,000 from the Downtown Development Authority. Individuals have contributed a total of $607,000; foundations, $105,000; and businesses, $20,000.

This amounts to $1,332,000 or 83 percent of the goal.

The new library will be housed in the old middle school on Grant Street between Clinton and Mason streets. Plans include landscaping the grounds to beautify the neighborhood, replacing windows to resemble their original 1927 design, restoring the old fireplace and renovating the interior to accommodate all library services on one floor.

Among the stacks of books, magazines and audio materials, there will he adult spaces with quiet corners, a teen area with computers and lounge chairs and a children's center for reading and learning activities.

In addition to the personal requests for support, many community events are taking place on behalf of the library's building fund.

Literally every penny counts as library patrons drop their copper coins into the million penny box in the lihrary entrance lohby.

The Community Pool is sponsoring a pool party on behalf of the library on Aug. 15, and the Friends of the Library are having a fund-raising luncheon in honor of Edith Gilbert on August 18.

For information on any of these events, or to find out how to contrihute, call the library at 547-2651.

Father and son open gaming 'shire'

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Video gamers in Charlevoix without high speed internet or powerful computers have a place to go in Charlevoix — Cyber Shire.

The business, owned by father and son Kurtis and Alex Busman, of Atwood, have several computers for customers to use to gain access to their e-mail, computer games on the Internet or Local Area Network (LAN) or to brush up on their computer skills.

The Busmans wanted to do something as a father and son business team and they felt their enjoyment of video games was the perfect way to do it.

"This is something (playing video games on the Internet) we have been doing at home for a while," Kurtis said.

Alex added, "We knew there were a lot of gamers around that would like to play."

Those games the Busmans are talking about are high speed video games where users can compete with other users from across the world on the Internet or throughout the area on a LAN.

While customers have a host of video games and other computer related activities to take part in, those who are not really sure about how to play these new internet games or LAN games need not fret, Cyber Shire is planning on teaching these and other new computer uses — such as navigating the internet — in on-site workshops in the future.

Kurtis said he hopes to start offering classes within the next month.

"The first class is going to be on how to buy and sell on eBay (an Internet auction site)," he said.

Plus, the Busmans are open to their customer's suggestions on what other classes to have.

Kurtis said they are also planning on hosting LAN parties. At these parties, computer users will get to play a video game against one another and many other people in the Local Area Network.

The Busmans have been residents of Atwood for about 16 years. In addition to running Cyber Shire, Kurtis is the director of maintenance at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Alex is a student at North Central Michigan College.

Cyber Shire is currently open from 10 a.m. to midnight, Monday through Saturday and noon to 10 p.m. on Sunday. The hours will change after Labor Day to 3 p.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to midnight on Saturday and noon to 10 p.m. on Sunday. It is locaed in the Oleson's Plaza on Bridge Street.

However, Kurtis said the hours of operation are not set in stone.

"If people are here doing stuff, we will stay," he said.

Cyber Shire can be contacted by calling (231) 237-1439.

Top Rank sells out to Waste Management

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Charlevoix waste hauler Top Rank was officially sold to its main competition in the area Waste Management recently.

Tom Horton, government affairs manager for Waste Management, confirmed the sale of Charlevoix's Top Rank to Waste Management occurred sometime in the last couple of weeks. He would not say what the terms of that sale were.

In a written statement, Horton said, "The employees and operations of Top Rank Disposal are now a part of Waste Management's northern Michigan operations. We are pleased that nearly all Top Rank employees have opted to remain with the company, helping maintain Top Rank's excellent service reputation."

Horton said Top Rank customers will not experience any change in their service or current collection schedules. Eventually, they will see a change in the color of their collection truck and will begin receiving invoices from Waste Management, instead of Top Rank.

He added, "Collection days will remain the same, but could change in the future as efforts to minimize truck traffic in neighborhoods impacts schedules. Customers will be notified well

New haulers extend service to Charlevoix

WASTE

in advance in future schedule changes become necessary."

Horton said customers who purchased the Top Rank stickers that they attach to their garbage bags will still be served. He added the stickers will still be available in the future.

Furthermore, Horton said the company has no plans for any price changes at this time. He said there will still be plenty of competition for Waste Management in the area.

"Our experience throughout Michigan is there is more competition in the state now, more than ever. There is never a lack of competition," he said.

Besides Waste Management, Top Rank was the only waste disposal service that served the Charlevoix area. But, this is changing in light of the sale of Top Rank to Waste Management as two new waste haulers are moving in.

Dennis Hass, owner of Walloon Lake Refuse Service, said he will now be offering his services in the Charlevoix area. Previously, he served the east and northeast side of the county, as well as Petoskey.

"Generally speaking, anytime Waste Management makes a move that way, it impacts our business and people are looking for alternatives," Hass said.

He said this buyout will help increase his business, especially as he moves into Charlevoix and East Jordan.

Matt Bergon, owner of North Country Sanitation, located between Kalkaska and Mancelona, said he is also going to be offering his services to Charlevoix area residents.

Bergon said he is not concerned at all about competing with Waste Management and has been doing so for the past three years in Kalkaska and Mancelona.

"We have been taking a lot of business from Waste Management," he said.

Walloon Lake Refuse Service can be contacted by calling (231) 535-2222. North Country Sanitation can be contacted by calling (231) 587-5848.

Waste Management is the largest waste service in the United States. It is headquartered in Houston, Texas.

For more information about your local service if you have Waste Management or Top Rank, contact the company at (231) 547-1035.

Top Rank officials could not be reached for comment before press time.

Mariners to host annual boat auction

By GINA ATTEE
Special to the Courier

Through the generous donations of many businesses and boat owners, a boat auction will provide money to run the Charlevoix Mariners program.

"The auction represents almost 100 percent of total income," said Tom Barnes, treasurer of the Charlevoix Mariners.

The auction, which has been running annually for three years, and every other year for about 20 years, will be at the Irish docks parking lot north of Ferry Beach.

A preview from 3 to 9 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 13 will allow for pre-registration and a sneak peek at items to be sold at the auction. Anyone is welcome to volunteer their time to help clean boats during the preview time. Registration begins at 9 a.m. on auction day, Saturday, Aug. 14. Bidding will begin at 10 a.m.

The auction includes "powerboats to sailboats, big and small," said Keith Attee, vice president of the Charlevoix Mariners.

Some of the boats to be auctioned off are a Catilina, a Sea Ray, a Crestliner, a Supra Ski Boat, small sailboats and runabouts.

"It's a well-rounded bunch of boats to serve everyone's interest," Barnes said.

Other items, from artwork and jewelry to a Beaver Island trip, have been donated to the auction in the past.

The Mariners auction is run on absolute sale, which means that there is no minimum bid on any of the items. Because of this, many people get great deals on boats at the auction.

"It's a fantastic opportunity to get good quality boats at a tremendous price for a good cause," said Barnes.

Jeff Glenny, auction coordinator, said that the auction is used to "promote youth sailing programs in the area."

The Mariners run a sailing school with the money raised at the auction.

"It's everything. It is our major fund-raiser," Glenny said.

Woman hurt in auto crash

A 24-year-old East Jordan woman was injured in a one vehicle crash around 3 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 6 in Eveline Township.

Jennifer R. Snyder was northbound on M-66 near Holy Island Road.

Snyder lost control of her 1995 Buick when she braked to avoid hitting a vehicle she was following when it slowed. Snyder's vehicle left the roadway and rolled.

Snyder was treated at the scene by Charlevoix and East Jordan EMS and transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The crash remains under investigation.

Sheriff warns residents about paving scammers

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is warning residents about paving scams in the area.

Each year traveling criminals come to northern Michigan to do hit-and-run paving work. Homeowners and business owners are urged by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office to be especially cautious when approached by people selling asphalt paving and sealing products. Traveling criminals were very active in northern Michigan last year. They are expected to return in force during the spring, summer and fall of 2004.

If suspicious of fraudulent activity, consumers should call the nearest local law enforcement agency.

Traveling criminals usually leave their customers with a driveway or parking area that will eventually reveal poor workmanship. Poor work is not always evident immediately. Problems may not appear for several weeks or months.

The traveling criminals paver will be long-gone when the pavement begins to break up, making legal action difficult or impossible.

Traveling criminals sell asphalt paving material door-to-door after having scouted neighborhoods for their best targets. Their sales pitch is designed to appeal to those who are especially susceptible to the offer of a so-called bargain.

Their victims are often northern Michigan senior citizens.

If suspicious of fraudulent activity, please contact the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office or any police agency so they can assist you. The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office can be contacted by calling 547-4461.

German man falls in love with Charlevoix area

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

Charlevoix may be small, but it may become home to one German man in the future.

Laurent Feyen, 20, of Buxtehude, Germany, came to Charlevoix as an exchange student during the 2001 to 2002 school year and fell in love with the city.

"I don't like big towns," he said. "I like Charlevoix because Charlevoix is the opposite of a big town."

Feyen, who goes by Larry, said he likes the slower pace of life in Charlevoix compared to his hometown in Germany.

"I'm more at peace here," he said due to the calming effect the environment has on him.

Feyen learned about the exchange program from his brother, Timo, 33, who studied in Iowa 15 years ago.

"Since then I had that American thing in it," he said.

His brother returned to the United States the next summer and brought Feyen back a 48-star flag that was over 50 years old. Feyen was told the flag was marched in a parade during World War II.

Feyen said he knew he wanted to come to the United States at age 10.

"It was never a question," he said.

High school in the United States was interesting and harder than expected for Feyen.

His year at Charlevoix High School did not count back in Germany due to the differing school systems, which Feyen said added to his lack of academic focus.

"I focused more on the social than the academic skills while I was here," he said.

The hard part was balancing sports, academics and the time needed to make friends, which Feyen said didn't work out so well for the others who were exchange students the same time he was.

Feyen said there was a student from South Korea and one from the Ukraine, who didn't enjoy himself and said he wouldn't return.

Despite the hardship of getting to know people in another country, Feyen said he recommends taking part in an exchange program.

"It gives you a lot more globalized view on the world," he said.

Feyen said he thinks people should spend time in other countries in order to find out what the country's real opinion is on topics affecting the world such as the war in Iraq.

"You see where someone comes from whether you agree or not," he said.

His term as an exchange student wasn't his first time in the United States. During sixth grade, Feyen said he came to the United States for a three to four week tour of the south.

He said it was amazing to see nothing in either direction while driving down the highway.

Feyen went to Chicago during his exchange program and followed that up after graduation with a four week trip around the United States with his parents.

He ventured all over to some places such as Mount Rushmore, Yellowstone National Park, the Grand Canyon and Las Vegas. He went to the south again and relished in what it has to offer.

"What I liked about the south is that you get a decent steak," he said.

Western apparel is what Feyen likes to wear, which he got hooked on while in the United States.

"Montana is where I think I got hooked on that cowboy thing," he said.

This is Feyen's third summer in Charlevoix and he hopes to come back next year to visit all of the friends he has made over the years.

"If you know these people you have to stay in contact and e-mail and phone calls don't just do it," he said.

Laurent Feyen, 20, is a German visitor who came to Charlevoix as an exchange student during the 2001-2002 school year. Feyen loves Charlevoix and the quaintness not found in larger cities.

Rotary Club to have annual 'affordable' golf tournament

The Rotary Club of Charlevoix will host its annual "Porker" golf tournament Thursday, Sept. 2 at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course.

Billed as "The Affordable Golf Tournament," the entry fee is only $40 per person.

"We have had players comment that it is almost as if we are paying them to play because of the amount and quality of the prizes distributed at the tournament," said tournament director Tim Petrosky. "Last year we distributed gifts with a retail value of more than $3,000 to golfers. Everyone went home with a prize."

The event is a four-person scramble. The entry fee includes golf, a buffet dinner at Giuseppe's Restaurant and the traditional tournament trademark: oodles of prizes. Prizes will be awarded based on skill, luck and random draw, and to teams that finish first, last and right in the middle.

"This tournament is more about fun than competition, although we do have strong teams every year," said Petrosky. "Year after year area businesses generously donate great prizes that pretty much assure everyone goes home with a smile on their face no matter how they golfed."

Registration forms are available at the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course pro shop. The event is limited to the first 20 teams that register.

An optional skins game and "mulligans" will also be available to teams. The shotgun start is at 4:30 p.m. Dinner follows at 6:30 p.m.

Rotary uses proceeds from the event to benefit the community with an emphasis on area youth.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Charlevoix's Staffel returning to art fair

Bonnie Staffel is back and that's good news for all the fans of her craft.

It has been 20 years since Staffel has shown her work in the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair and she is eagerly looking forward to the opportunity of establishing a personal connection with her customers once again.

The twists and turns of Staffel's career, like the coils of clay she carefully molds into art, have created a life of artistic self realization and accomplishment. Pottery has been the life blood of Staffel since the mid 1940s when she had her first artistic introduction to clay at an art class at the Toledo Art Museum in Toledo, Ohio.

"It was at that moment that I knew pottery was for me," Staffel said.

Years followed, which defined Staffel as an artist in the medium of clay. These included an "amazing" semester at the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, being part of the Artists of the Round Table in Toledo, being a participant in one of the first Ann Arbor Art Fairs and eventually heading north and settling into the little studio and showroom on US-31 South that locals fondly remember.

Staffel entered the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, still in its formative stages in the 1960s for the first time. Her husband, William, in fact, designed the logo for the event that has been used ever since. The Staffels became catalysts in forming an arts community known as Artists North, along with other local artists at that time.

In 1985, certain events occurred that changed the direction of Staffel 's career. At this time, she accepted a position at John C. Campbell Folk School in Brasstown, N.C., as a resident artist. She subsequently became the program director and also became involved in an exchange program there with Danish folk schools where she took new techniques in smoke and reduction firing abroad. Staffel was in her 60s and still going strong.

Artist a local favorite

In 1991, Staffel was invited to join a restoration effort in Canton, Miss., modeling after the folk school concept. The idea was meant to revive tourism to the area. The three year experience was stressful and unfulfilling, and Staffel returned to Charlevoix in 1994.

Staffel has been back in the area for 10 years, continuing her career as a professional potter. Her work has been shown at the Crooked Tree Arts Center and the Artists Market in Petoskey, and sold at the Bier Studio. She has also taught occasional workshops in pottery techniques.

A recent diagnosis of carpal tunnel has hampered her ability to handle clay and throw her pots with the same ease as she once did. But where there's a will, there's an 81-year-old Staffel with a way.

"I stick pretty much to objects I can manage," Staffel said.

Platters, bowls and casseroles line the workroom's shelves waiting to be fired and painted for the upcoming show. Production is slower but that makes each piece more unique. Staffel will he presenting, among her offerings, the hand-painted utility dishes that have hecome her signature pieces over the years.

Waterfront Art Fair to be Saturday in East Park

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Art lovers will get to satisfy their cravings in Charlevoix Aug. 14 when the forty-sixth annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair fills East Park.

About 145 artists out of over 1,000 applicants of all types and from all over the country will be at the annual juried show. The Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair is considered one of the foremost art shows in the midwest bringing in 25,000 people at times and is the second oldest juried art fair in Michigan.

The show opens as early as 6 a.m. and closes around 5 p.m.

At the art fair, spectators and buyers will see watercolors, oils, acrylics, jewelry, ceramics, pottery, fibers, paper sculpture, mixed media and photography with a midwest flavor.

The artists will be on hand to show off their work and greet visitors.

The art fair is organized by the non-profit organization Charlevoix Council for the Arts. The mission of the founders is to bring fine art to the community.

The art fair also channels its proceeds back into the community in various forms of promotion of and exposure to the fine arts.

TEARS of MOTHER BEAR
Written by Anne Margaret Lewis
Illustrated by Kathleen Chaney Fritz

Perhaps the answer lies in the discovery that Mother Bear has been leaving her tears all over the beaches of Lake Michigan for hundreds of years.

Tears of Mother Bear is this summer's brand new bestselling children's book published by Mackinac Island Press, Inc., skillfully illustrated by the most talented Kathleen Chaney Fritz and wonderfully written by Anne Margaret Lewis. Kathleen Chaney Fritz is the #1 collected print artist in the great lakes region. All 15 original oil paintings from the book were purchased as a collection by one collector at the books premier party earlier this summer by one collector.

Some have said this is the best book they have seen in 20 years. Bookstores are calling Tears of Mother Bear a great summer bedtime story and some have said that every cottage in northern Michigan should have a copy for kids and adults alike.

Stop by the Kathleen Chaney Fritz booth to get your signed copy, booth #'s 10 and 11 at Saturday's, August 14th Charlevoix Art Fair.

Author of Tears of Mother Bear, Anne Margaret Lewis will be signing books from 9-11 a.m. at The Appletree and from 11-12 at Bridge Street Books.

Illustrator Kathleen Chaney Fritz will be available to sign copies all day at booth #'s 10 and 11.

Five different prints from Tears of Mother Bear are available for purchase at the Kathleen Chaney Fritz booth and The Appletree.

Artist calls Charlevoix show one of the best

Fresh as a breeze, Douglas David's calming impressionistic sea and landscapes and warm peony still-life compositions will once again grace the scene at the 46th annual Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair this weekend.

David, of Indianapolis, Ind., is notable for having received many awards for his work including the design of the 2003 Indiana State license plate, the Individual Artist Program Grant of the Indiana Arts Commission (2000, 2002), the Merit Award granted by the Hoosier Salon of Indianapolis, Indiana (2001), The Kokomo Art Association First Place, First and Second Place (2002-2003), and the TERA/Teaching Excellence Award in 1998 from the Herron School of Art, Indiana University.

David only presents his work in five art shows annually and considers this art fair to be one of the best. He has shown at the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair for the past eight years.

"I love the Waterfront Art Fair. There is a quality of artists who show here, and educated, well traveled buyers, many with multiple homes, who aren't afraid of price points," David said.

His loose, spontaneous brush strokes and palettes of blues and violets in the spirit of the Monet school of impressionism capture the moments he paints.

"You have to know when to quit so it doesn't look labored or overdone," David said. "I strive to make my work calming, so people can get lost in it. There are color harmonies in everything. When I paint, I am painting an atmosphere with light and its effect."

Participating in art fairs, gets artists out of their studios and out to meet the public. Artists, like David, keep abreast of the trends in interior design, in order to maximize saleability. The peonies have been a new interest for the past five years. They are cheery above-the-fireplace pieces that have proved quite popular. And of course, there are the lovely scenes that meld warm sun into cool atmosphere.

The biggest compliment for David, he would admit, is when "someone buys a piece and then comes back for more."

He is looking forward to being revisited by returning patrons at this year's Waterfront Art Fair.

Transmission purchase may save city money

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

During the Aug. 2 city council meeting, members gave the go ahead for a transmission purchase that will enable Charlevoix to own more power and thus save money in the long run.

Electric and Water Superintendent Ed Whitley, said purchasing transmission is a lot cheaper than leasing it.

The purchase will cost the City of Charlevoix an estimated $209,007, which Whitley said will be paid back in about a five year period by saving $97,000 a year through ownership.

Whitley said Charlevoix will own close to 10 mega watts of transmission once the purchase is complete.

"It will cover over two-thirds of the transmission with what we purchased and already owned," Whitley said.

Charlevoix will own 70 percent of transmission needs and lease only 30 percent.

Transmission is what takes the power from the generator to distributors, which then distribute power to local customers.

"It gets the power from wherever the generator is at," Whitley said.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said with the purchase the city will become closer to guaranteeing electric power to Charlevoix residents.

"We already know there's going to be an electric shortage," he said. "We're closer to getting to guarantee kilowatts, closer to a comfort zone."

Campbell said he is excited to use money from the electric fund to actually purchase something that has to do with electricity and power.

The purchase enables the city to have a long-term fixed price instead of dealing with changing leases, Whitley said. He said the only additional cost is for operation and maintenance of the transmission.

Whitley said he the purchase will enable Charlevoix to have a reliable source of power at a reasonable cost.

"This is a real good move," Whitley said. "Council has done real well in Charlevoix in planning for the electrical future."

Travel baseball team finishes fourth place

The Charlevoix Rayders 14 and under travel baseball team finished its season with a fourth place finish at the Otisville tournament.

The Rayders lost to tournament champion Belleville, 4-1; defeated Otisville, 16-8; lost to Richfield, 7-2; lost to Kearsley, 5-3; and defeated Tecumseh, 9-2 in pool play.

Tied for third following pool play, Charlevoix then entered a mini-playoff for third place where they beat Tecumseh, 1-0 and lost to Kearsley, 5-0 in two inning games.

Nic Williams scored the only Rayder run against Belleville, as Charlevoix was no-hit by a pair of Belleville hurlers. Ty Telgenhof threw three innings giving up only two hits and no earned runs but was the tough luck loser. Michael Heckendorn pitched three innings of no-hit relief, striking out four.

Two-out rallies were the key against host Otisville as the Rayders scored five with two down in the second inning and eight runs with two outs in the fourth.

Nate Golovich had two hits, two runs scored and two RBI. Joey Anthony and Clayton Mitchell each had a hit, a run scored and two RBI. Heckendorn scored three runs while Sam Balasz and Woody Nitchman each scored two.

Telgenhof earned the pitching victory in relief, retiring all four batters he faced.

Against Richfield, Williams was two-for-two at the plate with two RBI. Telgenhof was also two-for-two with a run scored and two stolen bases. Heckendorn threw over two innings in relief, giving up no runs, no hits and striking out three.

Heckendorn ran his consecutive no-hit streak to over seven with two more hitless innings against Kearsley. Nitchman had two hits, one run scored and one RBI. Ethan Towsley singled and scored two runs.

The Rayders set the tone early against Tecumseh as the first five hitters of the game scored, highlighted by Heckendorns two-run over the fence home run. Heckendorn was also the winning pitcher, throwing a five inning complete game, yielding only three hits and one earned run while striking out four.

J.D. Speigl had two hits and scored two runs. Telgenhof singled and doubled, scored a run and drove one home. Ethan Towsley and Williams each singled, scored and had two RBI.

In the playoff against Tecumseh, Heckendorn made a game-saving diving catch from his shortstop position in shallow left field turning a run scoring hit into a double play. In the bottom of the second, Williams started the winning rally with a walk, Anthony singled him to second and Nitchman singled to center to drive in the winning run.

In the tournament finale, the Rayders finally tired, having played 15 straight innings of baseball, giving up three unearned runs in the first inning against Kearsley on a hit batsmen and two errors. Telgenhof took both pitching decisions in the playoff games.

The Rayders finished their travel schedule with a 7-8 record. Other team players are Andrew Towsley, who had two hits in the tourney, and Trevor Cole, who was unable to travel to Otisville.

Woman injured in motorcycle crash

A 38-year-old Bayshore woman was injured in a motorcycle accident around 1:30 p.m., Aug. 6 on Horton Bay Road near McCraney Road.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Susan J. MacLeod was southbound on Horton Bay Road on her 2000 Harley Davidson motorcycle and failed to negotiate a curve.

She ran off the pavement and crashed on the side of the road.

MacLeod was transported by Boyne City Ambulance to Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey. McLeod had purchased the motorcycle earlier that day and had not yet obtained a cycle endorsement on her driver's license.

The crash remains under investigation.

Council debating dogs in East Park

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

The fate of dogs in East Park came up again during the Aug. 2 city council meeting when Charlevoix resident Jill Picha raised the same issues she has been addressing since last year.

"They talked more about it Monday night than last year," she said.

The issues Picha focused on concern the health and safety of children and the elderly.

Picha said even though dog owner's pick up after their pets, a smear is left in the grass that children play in.

She also is concerned about the possibility of the elderly tripping over a dog leash and falling. Picha herself almost fell when she tripped over a dog leash during this year's Venetian Festival.

At the city council meeting, Picha said the city could be liable if someone should trip over a lease or get bitten.

City Attorney Jim Young said the city would not be liable in those instances.

"The city has a right to regulate animals in public parks because of its ability to protect the general welfare of its citizens," he said.

Young said this right is for safety, health and welfare of the people and not because of liability.

Picha's said her 7-year-old granddaughter, Ricky-Ireland Alpert, was almost bitten by a dog during a craft show last year.

Picha said Alpert's family has dogs so the child started toward the dog and was saved because her brother noticed the dog bare its teeth.

Picha said it's unfair to dogs and people in the park due to the chaos surrounding public events such as Venetian and concerts.

"They could be friendly normally, but may bite out of fear and confusion," she said.

Picha isn't against dogs being in the parks, but doesn't want them in East Park due to its family-oriented setting and congestion that happens in the summer.

"The dog's scared and somebody's going to bet bit," she said.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said he doesn't think dogs should be allowed in places where a large amount of people will be.

"The dogs should be kept out of East Park because that's where all the activity takes place," he said.

Campbell and Picha both said the dogs are not the ones to blame, even if something happens.

In the past, city council decided against banning dogs from East Park, due to some enforcement concerns.

Campbell said he is bothered when the police say they can't enforce not having dogs in East Park when other cities do.

In Red Wing, Minn., Campbell said he saw a sign that stated there was a $750 fine concerning dogs and cleanup.

Campbell said a heavy fine really makes a person think twice before going ahead with what they had planned.

The council did vote in the past to ban dogs from the sandy part of beaches and only allow them to be on the grass, but no further decision was made.

Charlevoix Police Chief Dennis Halverson said the issue was officially brought up for the first time this year at the city council meeting.

Halverson said from an enforcement standpoint a total ban is easier to enforce and educate people about versus a partial or periodical ban given the tourist nature of Charlevoix.

Kris Leonard, of Grayslake, Ill., walked her Miniature Schnauzer Holly through East Park last Friday. The city of Charlevoix is looking into banning dogs in East Park during festivities and possibly permanently. Leonard said she wouldn't want dogs to be banned from the park, but understands the concern for the safety of children.

There are ways to deal with the issue without banning, which have proven to be effective in other towns.

Halverson said the city of Frankfort simply asks dogs to not be brought to events with advertising throughout the city. He said this has never been tried before and may work for heavily populated events such as Venetian.

Frankfort also uses a dog corral, where dogs are cared for while their owners enjoy the festivities occurring that day.

"It supposedly works well too," he said.

Halverson said he can see both sides of the issue, especially in regards to the marina. Dogs come with their owners and use the park for exercise and other needs.

"There are a lot of issues and there isn't really many easy answers," he said.

Kris Leonard of Grayslake, Ill., said she enjoys walking Holly, her miniature schnauzer in the park. She said she doesn't like it when dogs bark or scare people, but she wouldn't want dogs to be banned from the park.

"It's the owners responsibility to keep the dogs under control," she said.

Leonard said it's hard to tell what temperament a dog has.

"There are little kids running around and if you have a dog that's unpredictable that could be a disaster," she said.

Jaylee Levine-Krucks, 24, from Chicago, said dogs should be allowed in the park because Charlevoix is a beautiful, friendly place. Krucks and her sisters were walking their dog Madison, a three-year-old WestiPoo in East Park.

Krucks said dogs are a part of the family and don't cause a problem.

"If you don't like dogs, don't walk up to one," she said.

The concern about children playing in dog fecal smears is outrageous to Krucks.

"It's ridiculous especially because it you pick it up it shouldn't be a problem," she said. "There are animals every where."

Greta Krucks, 18, said it's up to the owner to know if their dog is safe to bring downtown.

"If it's crowded use your best judgment when taking out your dog," she said. "Know your dog's temperament."

City council has not taken action yet concerning this issue.

Sheriff arrests woman for using forged checks in area

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has arrested a 38-year-old northern Michigan woman on Thursday, Aug. 5 for multiple counts of Uttering and Publishing forged checks — a 14-year Felony offense.

Virginia Kay Murphy of Cheboygan and East Jordan appeared in front of a 90th District Court Magistrate on Aug. 6 and her bond was set at $20,000. Murphy was arrested after she cashed stolen checks at local banks and businesses throughout Charlevoix and Antrim counties.

The checks had been stolen in early July from an elderly Fenton man while Murphy stayed at his residence in Livingston County. Murphy was awaiting sentencing in Cheboygan County for bad checks at the time of the most recent incidents.

Jarema to face Boal in general election

CANDIDATE

Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, he does not have criminal law experience.

"That is one place John (Jarema) has me on," he said.

Boal said he will be focusing on several issues in the election.

The first issue is that the criminal justice system needs to be changed in light of our social situation.

"I think the reason we have crime is because the overall conditions of society. Our society does not feed, clothe and educate all of the children," he said.

By serving as the prosecuting attorney for Charlevoix, he said he hopes to help transform our society.

Secondly, and one of Boal's biggest reasons, is to bring environmental and corporate law breakers in the area to justice.

Boal would not say which companies he believes are violating environmental law, adding he will be looking more in depth into this issue in the next few weeks and will name those companies at a later date.

And lastly, Boal said he wants to address the drain commissioner situation in Charlevoix County as the prosecuting attorney. He said the current Drain Commissioner, JoAnne Beemon, has been in disagreement with the current prosecutor, Kur, over what powers she has and does not have.

Jarema said he takes this new challenger seriously.

"I am going to wait and see what happens. I have to gear up the campaign again and go," he said.

"I have to just see how things go."

Jarema said he was going to meet with his challenger, Boal, over lunch yesterday.

Boal confirmed this meeting and said he was also planning on speaking with current prosecutor Mary Beth Kur about the campaign.

He has not contacted her yet.

Braun to play 100 holes in a day

A local athletic event that has become a summer tradition is about to be repeated as Belvedere golf professional, Steve Braun, will again play 100 holes in a single day.

While some local golfers might talk a "good game," wishing they could play golf all day, not many could do so going 100 holes in a 12 hour period. Steve does and plays the rounds averaging in the mid 70s.

Many have asked why he puts himself through the physical and emotional agony. The simple answer is he is a dedicated believer in Charlevoix's Junior Golf Program and the potential it has to impact young people so that they can learn life skills through the game of golf.

As in the past, pledges made go into the program's scholarship fund, which allows deserving junior golfers to attend the Ferris State University's week long golf camp. The program has sent over 70 youngsters through the years. The week away from home and the educational setting has proven to have a positive effect on each camper that has attended.

Steve tees off at 6:30 a.m. on Monday, Aug. 23 and finishes approximately 12 hours later. Those interested in pledging in support of the Junior Golf Scholarship Fund or in monitoring Steve's progress can do so by calling the Belvedere Golf Club at (231) 547-2611 or Dean Davenport at (231) 547-6433.

SCRAPBOOK

Writer reminisces about the people of Charlevoix

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

The townspeople I remember from 1940 were from all walks of life.

We knew each other personally, and it was rare for anyone to move out of town. I went to school with quite a few who decided to live here when they graduated, and many of those who lived elsewhere, returned to live here after retiring. There is just something about Charlevoix.

When I was in second and third grade, a family lived near us, and we kids played cops and robbers on the hill in back of my house, and the alley which ran between the homes on Hurlbut and Antrim streets. Harley Adair and his wife Olga lived on Antrim Street, with their children, Kathleen, Kent, who was in my grade, Carol and Colleen. We had many good times sliding down the hill together. Charles and Elizabeth Reinhart owned the Charlevoix Hotel, also on Antrim. Their son Bill was a playmate.

Leo Allard was the street commissioner for the city and he would always be seen driving a big 36 Federal truck around town. He and his wife, Lela, raised Bill Steffens, who later married B.J. Cunningham. Leo was quite stubborn, and if he was plowing the streets, and someone had their car parked where he had to plow, he would blow the air horn until the owner would come out and move the car.

LeRoy Allers was a marine captain. He and his wife, Hazel, and two children, Dorothy and Paul, lived at 205 Alice Street. Dorothy was one of those who moved back here to live. LeRoy piloted the Mary Margaret, the main boat between Charlevoix and Beaver Island. Lloyd and Aletha Arnold and son David lived at 106 Green. He was a carpenter. One day in the fifties, he was driving his pickup truck headed south on Bridge Street. He was in front of the building where Vacation Properties is now located. One wheel on his pickup fell through the street and he was stuck tight. There had been a big water leak under the street that no one was aware of. They had to get a wrecker to hoist him out.

Art Dry Cleaners was located at 230 Antrim, on the southeast corner of Antrim and Grant Streets. Art Wexstaff owned and operated the business. He also had an orchestra which played at various places in the north. Bernice, his wife, was a talented woman, and wrote historic articles.

Ray Ashdon, who lived at 704 Bridge, was a mail carrier for the post office. Dale remembers him going down the street singing at the top of his voice. In later years, Ray had a barbershop in his front room, and he did barbering for quite a few years. He had a wife, Nellie, and son, Charles. Those of you who recall the good old days in Charlevoix, know how many men and women whistled or sang a song as they worked around town. It was a time when cares and worries were put in the background and people were more content. Making the almighty dollar wasn't as important as happiness.

Winnifred Bambach lived at 603 Bridge. She was a widow and her children were Donald and Luanna. They were good friends and we used to bicycle together.

Elmer and Caroline Barber lived at 929 State Street. Their children were Gene, Bonnie Lou, Bill, who was in my class in school, and Bruce, who was a best friend of Dale's brother, Dean. Charles and Mae Barnhart and children, Frieda, Clyde and C. Willard, lived at 315 Mason, near Dale's home at 319. The kids were neighborhood friends. Clarence and Sadie Bartlett lived at 313, and their boys were Bob and Norman. Fenn and Dean Welsheimer, who lived on Park Avenue were also friends. They lived with their widowed mother, Ida. The Bulow girls, Janet, Marilyn and Patty lived at 308 Mason. Their parents were Fenton (County Clerk) and Ruth.

Lola Lewis, who was also a widow, lived at 306 Mason, with her children, Russell, Maxine, Lorna, Jim and Beth. Lorna was a best friend. I always admired Mrs. Lewis for working two jobs to feed her family. Most of these neighbor kids played stone roller in the evenings, and I also joined them.

That is where I met Dale when I was 13, and he, 15.

Edgar Behrens was a deputy sheriff at that time. He was a handsome officer who was always dressed in a police uniform and rode a big black motorcycle. He and his wife Gwen, and boys Eddie and Tom lived at 221 Clinton. He was my hero, as he was at the jail every day when I was at my grandparents. I will always remember the day when I was too big for him to toss up in the air. That was such fun and it was a big disappointment.

In 1940, Walter Bergeon and his wife, Catherine, lived at 209 Clinton. Their children were Clark, Mike and Deborah. Mike was in my class at school. Walter's dad, Arhur, owned Bergeons Clothing Store at 321 Bridge. Harry Bingham, our high school principal, lived at 303 Mason, with his wife, Monica. He taught history, and also was the high school principal. I admired him for being a no nonsense principal.

David and Sally Blake and daughter, Davida, lived at 101 W. Lincoln. David was a pen artist, and his flourishes with the pen were beautiful Mr. Blake was my Sunday School teacher at the Congregational Church. I remember sitting by her during church, and she would close her eyes and pray. She impressed me very much. She taught me many truths about Christian living and love.

Nate and Marie Blissett lived at 205 May Street. Their children were Bill, Marilyn and Bettie Jane. Marilyn was in my class, also. Marie was later widowed and worked as school cook for years. She was great cook, and I still remember her home made rolls. Everything was home made in the cafeteria at that time, and having wholesome food every day was the norm.

Lewis Brant owned the grocery and meat store at 205 W. Garfield. He lived with his wife, Gertrude. He was one of the neighborhood grocers, and sometimes I walked through three alleys to get there. The business is called Andy's today. In 1940, the men on the Public School Board of Education were: Henry Partridge, Carl Kohler, Clarence Meggison, Clair Webster and Carlton Dean. Don Herrick was the Board of Commerce Secretary. Robert Bridge was the President of the Charlevoix County State Bank, and he also had a general insurance business. He and his wife, Marian, and son, Gene, lived at 200 Dixon, and in 1940, he was the mayor.

One of the things I remember were the packs of dogs that ran loose around town. It was frightening at times when we had to walk to and from school. What a difference it made when the dog law came in. The fire whistle back then would blow one time for one part of town, and two or three times for other parts. That way we would know where the fire was located, and it was convenient for the firemen.

Charlevoix has changed, and mostly for the better, and so it should be. Reminiscing about those days is wonderful and I am glad I have those wonderful old memories.

Resident wants handicapped issue addressed

PARKING

ing and see the curbs smoothed out more evenly.

"I don't think the city has done anything intentionally to help the handicapped, but it's okay," he said regarding building plans for the city.

Joseph said he doesn't think the city went out and designed things with handicapped people in mind, but some things just worked out that way.

Bridge Street doesn't have any handicapped parking and Joseph said there should be at least one spot on the corner in front of Central Drug downtown.

If there are to be handicapped spaces, Joseph said they need to be on the west side of Bridge Street in front of all the shops.

Halverson said there used to be a handicapped parking space in front of Central Drug, which was removed when a court found the signs inappropriate.

"When the court finds something we're enforcing isn't fair, especially in parking, then we change our direction on that," Halverson said.

Joseph said there should be more van-accessible handicapped spaces. Instead of a hashed mark allowing room for a ramp to come down, many spaces are just for one single car. Joseph said he has gotten blocked in on numerous occasions because a car parked next to his van.

"I do think it's not right to not have handicapped parking on Bridge Street," Joseph said.

Mayor Gabe Campbell said he would like to see more spaces downtown.

"I don't think there's enough handicapped parking downtown," he said.

Council member Bill Haggard suggested at the July 6 council meeting that he's heard of drop off zones being useful in getting handicapped persons to downtown festivities.

Christa-Maria said at the council meeting that such a zone wouldn't work for her because she lives alone and doesn't have someone that could drop her off.

Joseph added to this saying he wants to get around by himself.

"Even though I'm in a wheelchair I still want to be independent," he said.

Most of his driving is done by himself and he makes his way into stores and restaurants. He said most merchants are accommodating to him when he comes into their store and some help bring things out to his car.

Aside from parking spaces, curbs are another major issue for Joseph. There are handicapped accessible ramps built into the sidewalk, a cut away in the cement, which are meant to provide handicapped accessibility from the sidewalk to the street.

"It doesn't take very much to get thrown out of your chair," he said.

Joseph said these ramps are not smooth at the bottom, especially the ones at the corner of Bridge and Antrim streets.

But, Halverson said he thinks the small hump where the slope connects to the street would be helpful for the visually impaired.

"If it's too smooth they may not be able to pick up the fact that they're not on the sidewalk," he said in regards to crossing the street.

Joseph added the incline of a street is not that noticeable to someone who is walking, but is felt by those who have to push themselves up the street. He said an 8 percent incline in a wheelchair is hard enough and a 10 percent incline is almost impossible.

"It's sort of a different world," he said. "You can't really experience it even if you tied your legs together because you still have stomach muscles. They could do more to make it a little easier without much expense."

During a city council meeting on Aug. 2 a need for more handicapped parking was mentioned. Some spaces are located right next to one another without a hashed area to allow room for ramps and other necessary equipment.

Kiel Tilley and Michelle Rowe saved two lives last week.

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Two Charlevoix lifeguards, Kiel Tilley and Michelle Rowe, are being credited for saving the lives of two teenagers in the Pine River Channel Thursday.

According to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, the lifeguards went to the rescue of three swimmers around 2:30 p.m., Thursday in the channel who were jumping into it from near the Charlevoix lighthouse. The swimmers had become fatigued in the water and could not make it to the ladder leading to the deck of the pier.

"All I could think of was, 'We just got to get these kids out of the water,'" Tilley said.

According to the lifeguards, they were both watching over Michigan Beach when some people came running up to them to say some swimmers were in the Pine River Channel and they couldn't get out. Tilley, 20, and Rowe, 18, said they ran over to the channel where they saw three swimmers in the water, clinging to the side of the pier.

Tilley immediately jumped into the channel to help the kids, but the waves and current were too strong and pulled him and two of the swimmers further out into the water near the end of the pier. Therefore, he called to Rowe to jump in to help, which she did.

"It was everything we could do to fight the current," Rowe said.

In the meantime, the third swimmer reached the ladder himself and was able to climb to safety.

Both Rowe and Tilley used their floating lifesaving devices to fight the current and help the second swimmer to the pier. But, this still left one swimmer in the water.

Tilley attempted to swim to the third swimmer, but realized the current was too swift and the waves too rough. So, he climbed out of the water and ran over to the area of the pier the swimmer was

President makes another northern visit

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

Many Charlevoix residents were in attendance when United States President George W. Bush made a campaign stop in Traverse City at its civic center on Front Street, Monday, which was his second visit to northern Michigan this summer.

Upon arriving to the rally before a crowd of 7,000 to 10,000 supporters and those just curious to see a sitting president, Bush said, "It is good to be here in Cherry Country. Today it looks like Bush/Cheney Country."

During his speech, the president spoke about his usual topics, such as lower taxes, the No Child Left Behind Act and its impact on schools and the war on terror and health care, which h sys he has made more affordable and more available.

"There is so much more to do to move this country forward. We have made much progress and we have much more to do," he said.

Young American actress visits Charlevoix

By COURTNEY E. PACE
Staff Writer

An American girl with Charlevoix connections will take her place among famous actors in Italian television.

Megan Thompson, 16, will star in "Un medico in famiglia," which centers around a doctor and his family. Thompson will appear as Emma, the girlfriend of the main character's grandson.

"Hopefully, it will lead to a nice career," she said.

The season starts in September and Thompson's character can be seen in eight or nine scenes during the seventh episode.

Thompson may possibly be seen in more episodes if the producers want her character to return.

Thompson said the main character is played by Lino Banfi, Italy's most famous actor.

Banfi was funny on-screen and improvised a lot of his lines, Thompson said, which allowed him to personalize the script.

Off-screen, Thompson said Banfi was nice but more quiet than his on-screen persona.

All the benefits of being a star were given to Thompson, who had her own dressing room with her name on it.

She was also pampered by professional makeup artists and hair dressers.

Thompson said acting wasn't something she thought seriously about as a career option.

"I never really thought about it," she said.

"Everyone always dreams of it, but never really gets there."

Thompson is on her way to getting there and it helped to be herself. The role of Emma called for a 16-year-old girl who spoke English. Thompson was a shoe-in and beat out a German girl who was her only competition.

Nerves didn't get to Thompson, which she attributes to her success.

"I wasn't going to get disappointed if I didn't get the part," she said.

Thompson said she cared about getting the part, but concentrated on the excitement surrounding the whole experience and process.

Thompson is the granddaughter of Mayor Gabe Campbell and Karen I. Campbell and the daughter of Senior Master Sgt. Gerald Thompson and Erin Thompson.

Born in Myrtle Beach, S.C., Thompson has called Europe home for the past 11 years, spending four years in England and seven years in Italy. Thompson currently calls a small town outside of Pisa her home.

Thompson is a junior in high school, but plans on attending college in Rome for a year after she graduates before coming back to the United States to attend college for marine biology in Virginia.

With her vast cultural background, Thompson said she also plans on going into translation as a part of her college studies.

Thompson is visiting Charlevoix with her family and will return to Italy in September.

"Un medico in famiglia" will air from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. every Sunday on Italian cable networks.

Bomb squad called out to Ferry Beach Friday

By JEREMY MCBAIN
Editor

The Michigan State Police Bomb Squad was called into Charlevoix early Friday morning when city police found suspicious looking container at Ferry Beach.

The container, a suitcase, was empty.

"I don't know what would be on someone's mind to leave an empty suitcase," said Charlevoix City Police Chief Dennis Halverson.

The suitcase was found by an officer on patrol around 3:30 a.m., Friday on the north end of Ferry Beach near the pavilions, said Halverson. The site was cordoned off and the bomb squad was called in.

The bomb squad arrived around 8:30 a.m. and soon determined the suitcase was empty. The beach was opened again at 9:30 a.m.

Halverson said people need to be aware of their belongings and not leave items behind when at the beaches or other public places.

Losing weight by eating carbs and spewing hate

Jeremy McBain

'Just a thought'

Here are a couple of columns I wanted to kick out this summer, but ran out of time. Enjoy.

Low carb

I have just about had it with this low carbohydrate craze. Every where you look, you see "low carb" this and "low carb" that, as if that was the only way to make your body healthy. I blame that Atkins guy for all this silliness — I should point out he is dead.

For some reason, a lot of people think that by simply limiting the amount of carbohydrates in their food, they will have that sexy body ever one drools over. Sorry, but it is not that simple.

First of all, simply changing your diet will not have a great impact on your body — other than making it sick and in need of carbs or whatever it was you are keeping from it. You need to add exercise to any diet that you put your body through.

I know, I know, this is a tough idea to grasp. But, yes, you must actually break a sweat to lose weight. There is no magical diet or pill that can make you lose weight — except for liposuction, I guess.

Secondly, your body actually needs carbohydrates to function. Carbohydrates, or carbs, provide your body with needed energy and are essential — according to some medical reports – in keeping your brain running in top form. By cutting out carbs, you are doing nothing other than making yourself tired and forgetful.

However, this could explain some things in current pop culture. It was right around this whole carb craze that reality television became a big hit, wasn't it? And, maybe this "bad information" about Iraqi having weapons of mass destruction given by the CIA to the president was because the CIA agents were on the Atkins Diet?

If you want a better, healthier, body, the key is not to fall prey to any of these fad diets. The key to a better body is eating healthy — low fat meats and fresh fruits and vegetables — combined with exercise. And you must remain patient. Changes to your body from this healthy lifestyle will not happen overnight.

Remember, it took years to add that pudge to your midsection, it will take a while to get it off.

Elections

I am really getting tired of the negativity that is being spewed forth in the elections this year.

Sure, some of you will say, "But every election year has the same amount of venom." It just seems this year is even more vicious in the presidential election.

What I do get a kick out of is that both sides seem to blame the other for being negative.

The George W. Bush people will say, "Those Democrats are just bashing Bush and spitting out their hate." Then in the next sentence, they say, "That John Kerry is nothing but a crazy liberal who wants to take away our guns and tax us to poverty. And I think his wife is snotty."

Then you speak to a Kerry supporter who says, "Those Republicans are so hateful to us and the world. If you don't agree with them, they insult you." Then in the next sentence, "That Bush is a fascist who wants to take away our freedoms and is an out-of-touch little frat-boy. Plus, his daughters are snotty."

Ugh.

Whatever happened to civil discourse in this country? What ever happened to candidates stating their positions on the issues, telling us what they will do if elected and the people debating those issues? Is it because focusing on the issues takes too much brain power and in this television world we live in we like to focus on the easy insults instead?

Whatever it is, it is making me very cynical and tired.

What gives me hope is that poll after poll shows that a majority of Americans are not these party hacks that spew hate. A majority of Americans say they are in the middle on most issues and are also getting tired of these attack tactics.

Maybe the future of elections will brighten. Maybe we will have a reblooming of participatory democracy in this country — one where the issues are debated civilly and mud slinging is frowned upon. But with the hired political pundits dominating the airwaves and controlling the message coming from these candidates, you have a better chance that rainbows will actually lead to pots of gold.

Bring on November.

Letter response

Editor:

A writer expressed the opinion that "Mr. Jarema is planning his restructuring of the Prosecuting Attorney's office a little prematurely," based upon the idea that there is still a general election and another candidate to face off against.

To me, this idea seems odd. Is not the concept of running for office that you tell the voters what you plan to do, and then let them decide if that is what they want? If I did not believe Mr. Jarema had a plan for what to do if elected, I would not have voted for him.

What strong economy?

Editor:

President Bush claimed in Aug. 2's radio remarks that, "This week we received encouraging reports that show our economy is gaining strength!"

The news reports that I've seen confirm what American families already know: As a result of George Bush's economic policies, household budgets are being squeezed by rising prices for essentials like health care and gasoline and milk — while wages aren't keeping up.

The chief economist for Morgan Stanley says, "...fully 81 percent of total job growth over the past year was concentrated in low-end-occupations...This puts households under enormous pressures."

The New York Times writes that the average take-home pay for workers, adjusted for inflation, is actually less than it was in January 2004. In fact, it is "the lowest level of weekly pay since October 1991" — when the other Bush was president!

Even the Wall Street Journal admits "declines in working hours [and] low wages hurt workers."

Two of my sons-in-law have economic problems to illustrate these reports. With a dozen employees, the first ran a business, a plant which made broaches. A business which had been successful and improving for much of its 17 years until the economy took a dive. He lost the struggle to hold on and lost his business. He took a low paying job well beneath his abilities in order to put food on the table. He's just been laid off.

The second has been a highly successful car salesman for over 15 years, his earnings having grown to six figures. He can testify to what the huge chunk of consumer non-spending is: car buying. There have been weeks lately when he has not been able to put a single car "across the curb." That means there's no paycheck the following week.

I'd like to see good news for a change. Does anyone have a copy of one of those reports President Bush received?

Update

Editor:

As many of you know, my husband Steve Paterka suffered a catastrophic illness in early April. Following neurosurgery and a lengthy stay at Munson Hospital in Traverse City, he returned to Charlevoix in late June, for a prolonged stay as a patient in the Rehab wing at Boulder Park Terrace. Steve will be at Boulder Park through at least Sept. 1 and welcomes any and all visitors (especially evenings and Saturdays, when he has no scheduled rehab).

Many people have asked us to keep them advised of Steve's progress by reporting such in the Courier. Here's a quick update: Though he remains in a wheelchair, Steve's recovery from the spinal paralysis continues on a daily basis. Recently he began to stand and has even begun to take a few limited steps, assisted by the wonderful professionals in Boulder Park's rehab department. His nerves and muscles seem to be "firing up" again, and it is our hope and prayer that Steve will eventually recover in full and someday walk again - all by himself.

There are no words to express the deep gratitude our family feels at the outpouring of care and concern, compassión, support, and loving generosity we've experienced throughout the past months. So many friends (and some wonderful souls we didn't even know) have selflessly donated their time, talent and treasure in helping our family, to name but a few: both the Charlevoix Township and City Fire Departments (the township fire department volunteers tirelessly continue to mow our lawns this summer - thank you again guys!) Larry Campbell, Curt Thompson, Paul Ivan, Rod Kippe, Dave Christiansen, Chuck Center, Scott Volmer, Dr. Richard Wakulat, Rich Wojan, Bill Parton, Shirley Roloff, John Ferguson, Carol Martin, Dale Glass, Nancy Rajewski, Larry Levengood, Mary Plumm Clark, Gordie Solomon, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sneathen, Steve Seelye, Dennis Kusina, Lil Left, Carol Gagnon, Fr. Pierre de Charlevoix Knights of Columbus, Drs. Jim Stewart, Dennis Joy, Ed Newcomb and Melodie Brown, as well as Dr. James MacKenzie, plus the entire staff at Boulder Park Terrace.

Our family considers ourselves privileged and blessed to live in this wonderful community of Charlevoix the Beautiful. It's truly a beautiful place to live — not only because of the beautiful surroundings, but even more so, because of the beautiful spirited people who live here.

God bless each and every one of you, and thank you for continuing to keep Steve in your prayers.

Can't force democracy

Editor:

Is it possible that all countries are not ready for our brand of democracy? We've certainly learned that democracy cannot be forced on people who still believe in tribes, militias and warlords.

So why doesn't our president take the opposite track and kill them with kindness? It's a lot cheaper in lives and has far lasting results that bode well for political change. Kindness in the form of schools, hospitals, wells, fertilizers and tractors is more apt to bring about change than bullets, bombs and tanks. Political change cannot be forced on people. It is an evolutionary happening as evidenced by what happened in Mexico which went through endless dictators before happening on its own form of democratic government.

We ought to be working for stability in the world and back any government that promotes a civil, stable society with humanitarian aid rather than selling countries weapons.

Charlevoix is beautiful

Editor:

As a person who has spent 27 summers in Charlevoix the Beautiful, I would like to express publicly just how much I appreciate this town.

It is my theory that folks who live in harsh climates have the most beautiful gardens. I think this must be a self preservation practice. This year my husband and I were fortunate to be able to participate in the Charlevoix Garden Club's garden tour. As a Master Gardener in central Oregon (high desert country), I always love to see what other gardeners are doing and this tour did not disappoint.

The tour took us to places that we had never seen, but more importantly it took us through neighborhoods of Charlevoix, areas that we have appreciated every summer and the average tourist never sees. Yes, the main drag of the town is clean, well kept, and the window boxes, petunias and planters most beautiful. But the neighborhoods! How wonderful they are, neat and lovely no matter what side of town you are on. Every year for twenty-seven years the sight of these homes, yards and gardens has filled my eyes with beauty and my heart with delight. People who live year round in Charlevoix should know, must know what pleasure they provide to those of us who summer in their beautiful town. Thank you to all who continue the tradition of liveliness.

Thanks for running

Editor:

I want to pause for a moment to thank all of the good citizens who braved running for public office. Even though only one candidate could win, the fact that so many tried was very admirable.

Congratulations to those who made it through the primary, and for those who will be leaving public office after the votes were tallied and they were defeated, thank you so much for your years of service. God bless and guide all of you.

Peace.

We need new ordinance

Editor:

This letter is in regards to a property located on Antrim Street. I have lived next door to this property for 19 years. I built my home here so that I could enjoy Charlevoix and all that it has to offer.

In the last several summers I have not been able to enjoy my summers here as the home next to mine on Antrim is in deplorable condition; it has a trailer filled full of trash in the backyard that has been there since May, an upper porch that is rotted through and presents a safety hazard as well as being an eyesore to the neighborhood. The roof has shingles missing and moss growing around the top. The attic has become a bird sanctuary.

The home is a rental property with constantly changing renters.

I have been to the city on several occasions expressing my concerns over the past several years and nothing has been done. I have contacted the owner of the house on several occasions and still nothing has been rectified. The property needs to be condemned.

This city needs zoning ordinances put into place so that these types of nuisance properties are not allowed to exist.

It is unfair to those of us who maintain our property and constantly make improvements to have to live with sub standard housing in our midst.

"Charlevoix the Beautiful" is not so beautiful with this type of blight in our neighborhoods.

Visitors to Charlevoix's beaches are not just human as this family of ducks attests to. They were seen enjoying the cool waters of Lake Michigan at Michigan Beach recently.

Crooked Tree to have annual meeting

The Crooked Tree Arts Center's Annual Meeting is scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 23.

Light refreshments will be served at 9 p.m. and the business meeting will follow at 10 p.m. in the Ross Stoakes Theatre of the Crooked Tree Arts Center. The Volunteer of the Year will be awarded during the meeting.

The arts center's programming has blossomed over the past few years, due in part to the newly renovated arts facility and as a result of the generous support of residents and resorters of northern Michigan. The School Tour program provides cost-free gallery tours and hands-on projects for over 3,000 students each year. The new dance program offers classes in ballet, hip hop and jazz.

The Gerber Music Education Program and Dorothy Gerber Chair for Children and Music provides funding for the Beginning Strings Program and the Crooked Tree Youth Orchestra. Over 400 children in Charlevoix and Emmet counties are provided with tuition free strings instruction and many of those students receive scholarship funds for their instrument rental.

The Visual Arts Series offers exhibitions for both local artists and traveling exhibitions. The Virginia McCune Performing Arts Series brings world renown performers to northern Michigan, including jazz, dance, classical, children's productions and opera.

For more information, please contact the arts center at (231) 347-4337. The Crooked Tree Arts Center is located at 461 E. Mitchell Street in downtown Petoskey.

Addington awarded for helping peace

The Beatrice and Hugh Henshaw Peace Builders Award was given to Ellen Addington in recognition of her efforts to promote peace and justice in Central and Latin America.

The Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom chose Addington, a long time member, for her work as an election monitor in Haiti and Nicaragua and as a Witness for Peace in strife-torn Colombia. As a league educator, she has written and spoken about issues in those countries for many years.

The award is named in honor of the late Hugh Henshaw and Mrs. Henshaw, founders of the League. League chairman, Bruce Sanderson, presented the framed certificate following the annual Hiroshima Remembrance program held recently in Petoskey.

Charlevoix artist Christa Maria presented Addington with a peace pillow which she designed and applied a peace dove.

Addington, a resident of Ellsworth and former choir director of the Charlevoix First Congregational Church, is a retired teacher and former student at Julliard School of Music in New York.

Wording of the certificate is as follows:

"The Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom hereby presents the Beatrice and Hugh Henshaw Peace Builders Award to Ellen Addington in honor of her work as a Peace Builder to bring justice and peace in today's world. As a Witness for Peace, she traveled to Colombia, Haiti and Nicaragua to convey empathy to the peoples and to ensure fair elections. She has served the Little Traverse League for Peace and Freedom well for many years with her ability to inform and educate others on peace and justice issues."

Shade trees available through city

It's time to have those gaps in the street tree-line in front of your property filled.

Call Charlevoix City Hall at 547-3270 and ask for your free shade tree, which will be planted by a city crew this fall. Choose from Maples, Little Leaf Linden, Callery Pear and American Elm.

Due to the devastating loss of Ash in South Michigan due to the Asiatic Emerald Green Ash Borer, too many of one type of tree such of as Maples in Charlevoix is a recipe for possible disaster. Ash are on hold until the city can determine what impact the Ash Beetle has on Ash in our area.

If you requested a tree last year and have not received it, call the above number to verify your request still is on the list.

It will be planted this fall unless it has been canceled for a valid reason. The main reason for carryover requests to this fall from last year is bad weather.

Health department gets foundation grant

Maureen Radke from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently presented two checks to officials from the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department that serves Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties.

Suzette Daly, a public health nurse from the health department's Family Health Division, accepted grant funds that will be used to purchase educational materials for developmental screening on children and for one-on-one sessions with pregnant and breastfeeding women.

Patti Ulrich, a dental hygienist from the health department's partnership with Dental Clinic North, accepted a check that will be used to purchase a portable nitrous system for their East Jordan location. Nitrous sedation, or "laughing gas," is a commonly used sedation to calm children's fears during dental procedures.

"We were referring children who were particularly anxious about dental work to other clinics, where nitrous sedation was available," said Ulrich. "We're all very grateful to the community foundation for making it possible for us to offer nitrous sedation right here in East Jordan."

The Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency is the local health department serving Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego Counties.

Its staff is dedicated to preventing disease and injury and promoting healthy communities. For additional information about Dental Clinics North or Family Health Services, please call (800) 432-4121 during regular business hours or visit www.nwhealth.org.

Obituaries

Edson F. Gallaudet, II: Nov. 27, 1936 - July 31, 2004

Edson F. Gallaudet, II of Beverly Hills, an avid outdoorsman and semi-retired manufacturers' agent, died unexpectedly July 31, 2004 of a cerebral hemorrhage at Northern Michigan Hospital in Petoskey.

Mr. Gallaudet, 67, who was president of PSI Detroit, was an enthusiastic duck hunter, golfer, skier and food and wine connoisseur. He was an entrepreneur and business owner for 35 years and a board member of Ducks Unlimited, Canada. He was a member of Stonycroft Golf Club in Bloomfield Hills.

He was born on Nov. 27, 1936.

"Ed was the consummate outdoorsman," said his sister, Andy Anderson of Bloomfield Hills. "And he loved life, his family, his friends and fun. He was a wonderful cook, a great host, and was always ready for excitement."

He was fondly called "Deuce" by his five grandchildren who thought he was "larger than life," a description echoed by his many friends.

A life-long resident of Oakland County, Mr. Gallaudet was a graduate of Gilmour Academy in Gates Mills, Ohio, and attended the University of Michigan before graduating from Miami University in Coral Gable, Fla.

Mr. Gallaudet is survived by his wife of 42 years, Niki, and their two children, Edson F. Gallaudet, III (Julie) of Seattle, Wash. and Susan E. Gallaudet (Brian Whitney) of Nederland, Colo. and five grandchildren: Claire, Grace and Edson Gallaudet, IV and twins, Graham and Tate Whitney. He is also survived by his sisters, Janet Sturgess (Ralph) of Old Lyme, Conn., Michelle Willison of Big Rapids and Andree Anderson (Roger) of Bloomfield Hills as well as his brother, Thomas (Gail) Gallaudet of La Quinta, Cal.

Arrangements included visitation on Wednesday, Aug. 4 at the Bell chapel of William R. Hamilton Co. Funeral services were Thursday, Aug. 5, at St. Hugo of the Hills on Opdyke Road in Bloomfield Hills.

Memorial tributes may be sent to Gift of Life, 2203 Platt Rd., Ann Arbor, Mich. 48104.

Garden Club visits Kinross

On Friday, Aug. 13, members of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club visited the flower and vegetable gardens at Kinross Correctional Facility in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan.

A former air force base, Kinross was closed some years ago and became a medium security prison. The 1,200 men live three to a room, to which they have a key, quite different from cell blocks and barred windows. The grounds are surrounded with high wire fences with rolls of barbed wire near the top; if you even touch the fence an alarm goes off.

Prior to the club's visit they had to submit vital statistics for a security check. Upon arrival they placed all personal belongings in a locker, passed through a metal detector, were thoroughly searched and allowed to carry nothing.

The club was then escorted through the yard where prisoners walked and were met by one who gave them the garden tour — a young grey-haired man with nice haircut and neatly trimmed beard, wearing one of the bright blue jackets with orange stripe, so knowledgeable and personable we had a hard time accepting the fact that he was a prisoner.

This group calls themselves the Horticultural Organic Gardeners or HOGs and have about 65 Master Gardeners, graduating 10-12 a year. Some have become so expert that they now teach the classes themselves, which reduces the cost to $120.
